Although Foryou's auto business could see more margin headwinds in 2H26, it is leveraging auto casting know-how to supply zinc/magnesium alloy casting to AI-related components. This implies 6-8% 2026 revenue growth with better margins.

2Q26 results in line: Revenue grew 36% YoY to Rmb3.8bn and earnings grew 27% YoY to Rmb236mn, outperforming the 2% YoY decline in 2Q China auto production volume. 2Q gross margin fell 2.4ppt YoY, but recovered 0.6ppt QoQ to 17.1% as it started passing through cost inflation to customers. 2Q recurring earnings grew 8% YoY to Rmb187mn, excluding government subsidies.

Auto electronics under margin pressure: Revenue from auto electronics grew 34% YoY to Rmb5.1bn but gross margin fell 2.1ppt YoY to 14.8% in 1H26, reflecting OEM price cuts while material costs kept increasing. We expect Foryou's auto electronics growth to be sustained, backed by new project launches (such as AI-Box and P-HUD), but margin pressure to remain into 2H amid tough price competition.

Expanding into AI-related precision casting: Revenue from precision casting grew 22% YoY to Rmb1.6bn in 1H26 as it diversified casting downstream from auto to AI tech. In particular, Foryou makes zinc alloy housing for optical transceivers and high speed AI connectors. Management targets Rmb0.8-1.0bn AI-related revenue for 2026 (vs. Rmb0.3-0.4bn in 1H26), implying 6-8% revenue growth for 2026, and has prepared Rmb1.4bn capacity for AI business.

Synergies with new shareholder: Foryou announced on 21 August that state-owned Sichuan Jiuzhou will buy a 28.3% stake in Foryou for Rmb5.66bn (implying Rmb38.1 per share), becoming the new controlling shareholder. Foryou management sees synergies in humanoids and low-altitude economy with Jiuzhou.

Stay OW, but trim PT: We cut our 2026, 2027, and 2028 earnings estimates by 8%, 9%, and 4%, respectively, to reflect lower auto gross margins due to material cost hikes. Our price target falls 9% to Rmb38. We remain OW on the stock as it should benefit from continuously rising smart cockpit penetration and newly entered AI-related precision casting opportunities.

Takeaways from 2Q26 earnings call

Going global – overseas revenue to ramp up from 2027: Foryou continued to make progress with global OEMs, with 1H26 overseas revenue growing 31% YoY to Rmb1.05bn, broadly in line with the group's growth and accounting for 15% of total revenue. Management expects overseas growth to accelerate in 2027 as current backlog points to stronger project ramp-up next year.

Auto electronics – strong HUD momentum; margin recovery could start from 3Q26: Foryou delivered 1.06mn unit head-up displays (HUD) in 1H26, more than double YoY. Auto electronics remained the key growth engine, with 2Q26 revenue up 38% YoY to Rmb2.8bn and 1H26 revenue up 34% YoY to Rmb5.1bn, although GPM fell 2.1ppts YoY in 1H26 amid raw material inflation and continued price competition. Management indicated that cost pass-through for the 2Q cost increase should gradually be reflected in 3Q, and it expects sequential margin improvement. Another highlight is AI Box, which is expected to enter production this month and adds edge AI computing power without changing the existing vehicle architecture, enabling a smoother user AI experience.

Precision casting – zinc/magnesium alloys becoming key growth engines: Precision casting revenue grew 25% YoY to Rmb0.9bn in 2Q26, with zinc- and magnesium-alloy businesses both growing close to 50% YoY. Zinc alloy is increasingly exposed to AI infrastructure demand, while magnesium alloy benefits from auto lightweighting and continued share gains in EV components. Foryou is also expanding capacity across Huizhou and Thailand to support continued growth as existing orders ramp. Management remains prudent on capex expansion by adhering to the "order-driven capex model."

AI-related new business – growth curve starting to deliver: 1H26 AI-related revenue topped Rmb0.3bn; management sees Rmb0.8-1.0bn for 2026 and Rmb1.2-1.4bn for 2027. Current AI-related capacity is ~Rmb1.4bn with Huizhou and Thailand factories. The product portfolio is broadening from zinc-alloy components for optical transceivers/high speed AI connectors to thermal management parts leveraging precision casting capabilities.

Robotics – another emerging growth opportunity: Foryou started expanding into robotics last year, with products spanning robot brain controllers, projection-based interactive displays, charging solutions, and dexterous hands. Foryou also casts humanoid robot joints, with revenue expected to reach Rmb50-60mn next year.

Three Charts

1. Margin recovery in 2Q26

Foryou's gross margin has been dragged by OEM price cuts and rising material costs this year. As price renegotiation progresses, Foryou should be able to partially pass through cost hikes to customers from 2Q26.

2. Market share gain in HUD

According to Gasgoo, Foryou's market share in HUD has been continuously growing, from 22.6% in 2024 to 29.8% in 1H26. This supports Foryou's revenue growth in auto electronics.

Valuation Methodology

We cut our 2026, 2027, and 2028 earnings estimates by 8%, 9%, and 4%, respectively, to reflect lower auto gross margins due to material cost hikes. Our price target falls 9% to Rmb38.

We use the base-case scenario value from our DCF model to derive our price target. Other key assumptions (all unchanged) include:

- 14.5% cost of equity – derived from a beta of 1.6, an equity risk premium of 7.0% and a risk-free rate of 3.3%
- 12% WACC – derived from a 14.5% cost of equity and a post-tax cost of debt of 6.3%
- 3% terminal growth rate

OVERWEIGHT THESIS

- We expect Foryou to gain market share in HUDs given its solid pipeline from Chang'an, Geely, Great Wall, Chery and Xiaomi.
- We project value content growth from a higher mix of AR-HUD and P-HUD.
- Foryou should also benefit from increasing adoption of cockpit domain controllers.

BULL CASE

Rmb53.00

28x bull-case 2026e EPS

Faster-than-expected smart cockpit adoption: HUD penetration grows faster than expected while boosting Foryou's auto electronics business. Foryou continues to gain share and establish stronger-than-expected pricing power in the HUD business. Gross margin grows steadily in 2026.

BASE CASE

Rmb38.00

23x base-case 2026e EPS

Growing smart cockpit adoption: The company's HUD business benefits from growing HUD penetration among Chinese local brands such as Great Wall, Chang'an, Geely and Chery. Foryou's gross margin edges down slightly in 2026, reflecting scale benefits from HUD and DCU ramping up along with falling ASP amid increasing competition.

BEAR CASE

Rmb19.00

18x bear-case 2026e EPS

Price pressure from increasing competition: Foryou's HUD volume growth slows as OEMs delay HUD projects amid growing price competition. Its ASP falls more than expected as a growing number of new entrants, including tech players, enter the smart cockpit business, where Foryou's gross margin declines more than expected in 2026.
