

Key Call: Samsung Electronics

AI demand keeps strengthening

Positive takeaways from UBS 3Q26 APAC Tech Tour

In spite of recent calls for an AI slowdown, Samsung has seen no evidence of customers' memory demand being paired down. On the contrary, it continues to see upside for server DDR5 and server SSD, with the latter improving at fast pace. Whilst acknowledging HBM de-specing (Nvidia Rubin Ultra to use HBM4 -Hi; link), this has actually translated to slight upside to HBM bit procurement into '27. Samsung is hence not changing its forecast capacity allocation to HBM and targets high 30s % share in HBM (UBSe: 42% in '27E). Its logic foundry backlog is growing much larger, with 8nm and below process nodes fully utilised. At 1.82x NTM book, the stock is not discounting our LT ROE estimate of 34%. With a '26-30E FCF yield of 27% on average, we expect the stock to positively react to upcoming shareholder returns: 1/ possible incremental special dividend or buyback before YE; 2/ presentation of new shareholders return policy for '27E onwards (we expect minimum 50% FCF) late January.

DRAM ASPs supported by reset up in Mobile DRAM

We now forecast DRAM blended ASPs up 27% QoQ in 3Q26E (was +23%) on the back of better negotiations for DDR. We believe Mobile DRAM ASPs in particular reset upwards and narrowed some the gap to server DDR. On the other hand, we factor in higher COGS impact from profit sharing to employees. Net, we keep our 3Q26E OP forecast at Won117tn for 3Q26, 6% ahead of VA consensus on the back of slightly higher ASP assumptions. We slightly increase '27E onward OP (+1-2%) and are 19% ahead of consensus for '27E.

Increasing capex forecasts

We forecast semis capex of Won71tn in '26E, Won86tn in '27E and Won100tn in '28E. This translates to wafer fab equipment spending of US$30bn in '26E (+54% YoY), US $37bn in '27E (+26% YoY) and US$44bn in '28E. In DRAM, Samsung is on track to ramp 1d nm in '27. It will start moving in equipment into P5-1 in July '27. From there on, it could set a cadence of one new clean room every 6 months (P5-1 will have 6 clean rooms of c. 50k wpm). For NAND, it could use one of the P5-1 clean rooms for '29 output. P5-2 could see ground-breaking by late '27. Samsung will also build up a second fab in Taylor for logic foundry, with timing TBC as negotiating within the US CHIPS Act.

Valuation: Won535k; APAC Key Call Buy

We value Samsung ordinary shares at 3.39x NTM P/BV based on our LT ROE estimate of 33.8% and CoE of 10.0%. Our Samsung GDR PT is US$9,780 (was US$9,690) with the latest FX.

UBSResearch THESIS MAP a guide to our thinking and what’s where in this report

PIVOTAL QUESTIONS

Q: Will memory undersupply continue into 2028?
Yes, in our view. Agentic AI is boosting further memory demand on multiple fronts beyond HBM, including DDR5/LPDDR5 for conventional servers and CPU head nodes in AI servers, as well as NAND flash for KV Cache and Storage. We now forecast an acceleration of memory demand growth into '27 with DRAM bit end-consumption growing 40% YoY vs 21% in '26, and NAND flash 24%. As almost all of the incremental wafer capacity addition for DRAM is going to HBM, and no new capacity ex China is being added to NAND, supply is not catching up with demand. The main risk remains affordability as memory industry revenues are approaching US$1.64tn in '27E.

Q: Will HBM execution improve?
To some extent. Samsung has improved yields and performance for HBM4. Thermal issues may persist, hence we believe Samsung is trying to pull in the rollout of 4F2 DRAM chip design to '28. Even before this though, we forecast Samsung may surpass SK Hynix in terms of HBM bit share in '27 at 41% (SK Hynix: 37%; Micron: 22%). It also retains the advantage of being able to deploy more new wafer capacity than peers due to still significant floor space available in its P4 fab, and the pull-in of P5 to first clean room readiness by 1Q27.

Q: Will shareholder returns grow?
We expect Samsung to stick to its policy of returning 50% of FCF ex M&A to shareholders with a potential annual dividend "floor" of Won9.8tn. Considering our FCF forecasts of Won258tn in '26E and Won448tn in '27E, this could imply additional shareholder returns of Won112tn in '26E. Assuming the same policy is rolled over, this would be a return to shareholders of Won214tn in '27E (on top of existing quarterly dividends).

UBSVIEW

Samsung shares have recovered 32% from the July trough but still down 25% from their June peak. Despite the recent volatility, however, we believe fundamentals remain strong with (1) agentic AI driving a significant uplift in memory demand, (2) improving HBM execution, and (3) enhanced LTAs likely to benefit Samsung more than peers. At current valuation, we do not believe Samsung shares fully reflect structurally higher memory profitability, stronger FCF generation, and significantly enhanced returns to shareholders.

EVIDENCE

1) HBM demand is resulting in more capacity allocation away from DDR, which may smoothen cyclicality in the longer run. We estimate front-end DRAM capacity for HBM could reach 500k/690k wpm by the end of '26E/'27E. 2) LTAs continue to be signed by memory players, which should narrow margins through the cycle and be ROE accretive. 3) Agentic AI continues to level up memory demand, as evidenced with strong server CPU and conventional server demand.

WHAT’S PRICED IN?

Samsung shares now trade at 1.82x NTM P/BV, discounting a long-term ROE of 18.1% vs our estimate of 33.8%.

Company Description

Samsung Electronics is a leading global electronics conglomerate, with a presence in handsets, tablets, PCs/PC peripherals, networking, consumer electronics, appliances and components (semiconductor, LCD/OLED panels). It has two broad divisions: 1) device solutions composed of the semiconductor and display businesses; and 2) digital media & communication, comprising IT & mobile communication and consumer electronics. It ranks first globally in revenue in memory semis (c. 45% market share), LCD/OLED panels and TVs; second in mobile phones (in revenues) and tablets. It was founded in 1969 and was listed in 1975.

Valuation Method and Risk Statement

Roughly 1/3 of Samsung's operating profit comes from mobile phones directly (and more indirectly for components) where we see revenue growth for the industry decelerating as the smartphone market starts to mature. The industry is characterized by product cycles, intense competition and requires significant scale and ongoing expenses for marketing/promotional activities. Some of its divisions (Memory and Display Panels) operate in industries which are cyclical and characterized by fluctuations in supply, demand and capital spending. Both industries have commodity-like features – although it is to be noted that the DRAM industry is now operating with significantly fewer players than before. Whilst overall cyclical risks have decreased longer term for DRAM (our "Goldilocks scenario"), cyclical corrections will likely occur. Consumer exposure overall at Samsung is universally high across products, although well balanced in terms of geographies. Strength in the Korean Won vs. major currencies can penalize earnings. Being a large component of the KOSPI, Samsung faces country risks as well indirectly. Corporate governance risks re the Samsung group center around some degree of opacity in decision-making, and limited consideration for shareholder returns (this may change). On the flipside, Samsung Electronics is the "crown jewel" of the group and its interests tend to supersede those of other Samsung companies. We value Samsung Electronics ordinary shares using a target NTM P/BV multiple based on long-term average ROE and cost of equity. Our GDR price target comes from using a conversion ratio of 25 from Samsung ordinary shares (005930.KS) and the latest FX.

Various theoretical explanations of the risks associated with these instruments have been published. Supporting documentation for any claims, comparisons, recommendations, statistics or other technical data will be supplied upon request. Past performance is not necessarily indicative of future results. Because of the importance of tax considerations to many options transactions, the investor considering options should consult with his/her tax advisor as to how taxes affect the outcome of contemplated options transactions.

Mortgage and asset-backed securities may involve a high degree of risk and may be highly volatile in response to fluctuations in interest rates or other market conditions. Foreign currency rates of exchange may adversely affect the value, price or income of any security or related instrument referred to in the document. For financial instruments admitted to trading on a non-EU regulated market: UBS may act as a market maker save that where this activity is carried out in the US in accordance with the definition given to it by the relevant laws and regulations, such activity will be specifically disclosed in this document. Options and futures are not suitable for all investors, and trading in these instruments is considered risky and may be appropriate only for sophisticated investors. Prior to buying or selling an option, and for the complete risks relating to options, you must receive a copy of "Characteristics and Risks of Standardized Options". Investing in structured investments involves significant risks. For a detailed discussion of the risks involved in investing in any particular structured investment, you must read the relevant offering materials for that investment. Structured investments are unsecured obligations of a particular issuer with returns linked to the performance of an underlying asset. Depending on the terms of the investment, investors could lose all or a substantial portion of their investment based on the performance of the underlying asset. Investors could also lose their entire investment if the issuer becomes insolvent. UBS does not guarantee in any way the obligations or the financial condition of any issuer or the accuracy of any financial information provided by any issuer. Structured investments are not traditional investments and investing in a structured investment is not equivalent to investing directly in the underlying asset. Structured investments may have limited or no liquidity, and investors should be prepared to hold their investment to maturity. The return of structured investments may be limited by a maximum gain, participation rate or other feature. Structured investments may include call features and, if a structured investment is called early, investors would not earn any further return and may not be able to reinvest in similar investments with similar terms. Structured investments include costs and fees which are generally embedded in the price of the investment. The tax treatment of a structured investment may be complex and may differ from a direct investment in the underlying asset. UBS and its employees do not provide tax advice. Investors should consult their own tax advisor about their own tax situation before investing in any securities.

Important Information About Sustainable Investing Strategies: Sustainable investing strategies aim to consider and incorporate environmental, social and governance (ESG) factors into investment process and portfolio construction. Strategies across geographies approach ESG analysis and incorporate the findings in a variety of ways. Incorporating ESG factors or sustainable investing considerations may inhibit the portfolio manager's ability to participate in certain investment opportunities that otherwise would be consistent with its investment objective and other principal investment strategies. The returns on a portfolio incorporating ESG factors or sustainable investing considerations may be lower or higher than portfolios where ESG factors, exclusions, or other sustainability issues are not considered by the portfolio manager, and the investment opportunities available to such portfolios may differ.
