Sustained E-fabric tightness and AI fabric upside; maintain Buy

Raise our 2026-28E earnings by 22-107% and our price target to Rmb58

We raise our 2026/2027/2028 net profit estimates by 22%/84%/107% to Rmb8.5bn/Rmb15.4bn/Rmb20.0bn and our 12-month price target from Rmb43.00 to Rmb58.00, while maintaining our Buy rating. Our revisions are driven by electronic-fabric price increases running well ahead of our expectations since our May update and incrementally positive messages from the post-results meeting regarding supply discipline, capacity bottlenecks and AI-fabric progress. Potential catalysts include: 1) further order intake from AI-fabric, including low-CTE, low-DK and Q-glass products; 2) further acceleration of E-glass price hikes; and 3) continued price increases from CCL and PCB producers.

Post-results takeaways reinforce a sustained E-glass cycle

We expect tight supply to keep E-fabric ASPs elevated through 2028. We now forecast the tax-inclusive 7628 price to reach around Rmb15 per metre by end-2026 and raise our 2026/2027/2028 blended ASP estimates (ex-tax) by 18%/91%/91% to Rmb8.0/Rmb13.5/Rmb14.2 per metre, driving our earnings forecasts to 10-36% above Wind consensus. Management's post-results comments reinforced our view that supply growth will likely remain constrained by bottlenecks across equipment, commissioning, yields and customer qualification, while low inventories throughout the supply chain are likely to continue to support pricing.

AI fabrics: Qualification progress provides additional upside potential

Management highlighted progress in AI fabrics, with first-generation low-Dk, low-CTE and Q-glass fabrics now available in small batches and second-generation low-Dk samples expected shortly. Order-backed monthly capacity is around 0.15-0.30m metres per product, with qualification ongoing at leading customers. We include no AI-fabric earnings or value in our base case. Our upside scenario assumes shipments of 20m metres at a blended net profit of Rmb50 per metre, generating Rmb1.0bn of net profit and Rmb40bn of potential valuation upside.

Valuation: Raise price target from Rmb43.00 to Rmb58.00, maintain Buy

We raise our price target to Rmb58.00, based on a 15x 2027E PE (previously 20x), and shift from our previous SOTP approach to a consolidated PE methodology. We lower our valuation multiple to reflect the increasingly cyclical earnings mix and our expectation that earnings will approach a cyclical peak over 2027-28.

UBS-S Research THESIS MAP a guide to our thinking and what's where in this reportPIVOTAL QUESTIONS*Q: Can electronic-fabric pricing sustain its upcycle and drive meaningful earnings upside?

Yes. Supply remains structurally constrained by loom equipment bottlenecks, long equipment lead times, limited availability of qualified domestic alternatives and the conversion of ordinary-fabric capacity to higher-margin thin fabric for AI servers. Against this backdrop, ongoing repricing should support a sharp profit inflection, while Jushi's scale, product mix and exposure to high-end electronic fabrics give it meaningful earnings leverage through the cycle.

Q: Will Jushi maintain stable profitability in its glass fibre business?

Yes. Net capacity additions remain modest, as planned gross additions are partly offset by cold-repair, while elevated platinum prices have raised expansion costs and should help deter marginal new supply. As the domestic market leader with a roughly 30% market share and industry-leading costs, we believe Jushi has a solid profitability base even if roving prices remain below historical averages.

UBS'S VIEW

We raise our 2026/2027/2028 net profit estimates by 22%/84%/107% to Rmb8.5bn/Rmb15.4bn/Rmb20.0bn and our 12-month price target from Rmb43.00 to Rmb58.00, while maintaining our Buy rating. Our revisions are driven by electronic-fabric price increases running well ahead of our expectations since our May update and incrementally positive messages from the post-results meeting regarding supply discipline, capacity bottlenecks and AI-fabric progress.

EVIDENCE

1) 7628 E-glass prices have reached Rmb10.20/m in August, well above the previous cycle peak of Rmb8.8/m, with upward momentum continuing to strengthen; 2) Toyota's loom delivery times are at 12-18 months; domestic looms cannot meet standard 7628 quality requirements; 3) UBS forecasts a 13%/10%/6% supply deficit for electronic-fabric in 2026/2027/2028; 4) 2026 glass fibre: gross capacity additions of 770kt versus maintenance of 506kt; platinum price inflation is raising new furnace capex, deterring expansion; and 5) roving prices currently stand at Rmb3,800/t, 15% below the long-term average of more than Rmb4,400/t; the base appears well supported, with a potential recovery seemingly not yet priced in.

WHAT'S PRICED IN?

Our 2026-28 earnings estimates are 10-36% above Wind consensus, mainly due to our higher electronic-fabric ASP assumptions. The share is trading at 10x 2027E EPS, below its historical average of 15x. On a P/BV-ROE basis, the stock is trading at 3.4x 2027E P/BV for a 35% ROE, versus historical averages of 2.3x and 15%, respectively.

We believe the key market concern is whether electronic-fabric prices can remain elevated beyond 2027, and consequently whether 2027E EPS should be valued as peak-cycle earnings. We think that a lower multiple is warranted as earnings approach a cyclical high, but believe the current valuation already appears to discount a meaningful earnings normalisation after 2027.

Our price target of Rmb58.00 is based on 15x 2027E PE. We value China Jushi's E-glass business at Rmb180bn and Glass fibre business Rmb54bn

Our upside case assumes higher conventional E-glass and glass fibre ASPs. Additionally, successful qualification and volume ramp-up could generate Rmb40bn in additional valuation upside

Our 2026-28 earnings estimates are 10-36% above Wind consensus, mainly due to our higher electronic-fabric ASP assumptions. The share is trading at 10x 2027E EPS, below its historical average of 15x. We believe the key market concern is whether electronic-fabric prices can remain elevated beyond 2027, and consequently whether 2027 EPS should be valued as peak-cycle earnings. We agree that a lower multiple is warranted as earnings approach a cyclical high, but believe the current valuation already appears to discount a meaningful earnings normalisation after 2027.

In our view, the capacity additions from 2028 may not translate one-for-one into effective supply. Jushi's Tongxiang project is expected by management to ramp gradually through 2029-30 and largely convert externally sold electronic yarn into internally produced fabric, potentially limiting the net addition to industry supply. Meanwhile, new capacity is increasingly allocated to thin, ultrathin and AI-related fabrics, which have materially lower output per loom. Effective supply growth also remains constrained by electronic-yarn furnaces, imported looms, pre- and post-treatment equipment, commissioning, product yield and customer qualification. Management has also reiterated its intention to expand rationally and preserve industry profitability. We therefore view 2027E as a high earnings base, but not necessarily a one-year earnings peak followed by a sharp reversal.

Our Rmb58.00 price target is based on a 15x 2027E PE, already below the multiple implied by our previous SOTP valuation (where we applied a 25x PE multiple for E-glass and 15x for Glass Fibre) to reflect the higher cyclical earnings base. Meanwhile, our 2027-28 forecasts include no earnings contribution from AI-related fabrics, leaving qualification and volume progress as potential upside.

Peer valuations range from 15x to 49x 2027E PE, reflecting material differences in their business mix and earnings-cycle positions. Companies at the upper end seem to either command a speciality-material growth premium or are valued on earnings recovering from a depressed base, while conventional and diversified glass-fibre producers trade at 15-21x. China Jushi trades below the range, at 10x 2027E PE, reflecting market concerns that electronic-fabric earnings are approaching a cyclical peak. We view our 15x PE valuation multiple as reasonable within the range of the more relevant peers.

Company Description

Formerly known as China Fiberglass, the company changed its name to China Jushi in 2015. With its headquarters in Zhejiang, the company is mainly engaged in the research and development, production and sales of fibreglass and related products. Its products are used in construction, infrastructure, transport, wind-power generation, electronics, and aerospace among others.

Valuation Method and Risk Statement

We use a PE methodology to value Jushi.

Downside risks include: 1) faster-than-expected normalisation in E-glass ASPs, driven by weaker demand, the unwinding of customer double-ordering or faster capacity additions from 2028E; 2) slower qualification or order conversion from AI-related fabrics; and 3) volatility in raw material costs.

Investing in structured investments involves significant risks. For a detailed discussion of the risks involved in investing in any particular structured investment, you must read the relevant offering materials for that investment. Structured investments are unsecured obligations of a particular issuer with returns linked to the performance of an underlying asset. Depending on the terms of the investment, investors could lose all or a substantial portion of their investment based on the performance of the underlying asset. Investors could also lose their entire investment if the issuer becomes insolvent. UBS does not guarantee in any way the obligations or the financial condition of any issuer or the accuracy of any financial information provided by any issuer. Structured investments are not traditional investments and investing in a structured investment is not equivalent to investing directly in the underlying asset. Structured investments may have limited or no liquidity, and investors should be prepared to hold their investment to maturity. The return of structured investments may be limited by a maximum gain, participation rate or other feature. Structured investments may include call features and, if a structured investment is called early, investors would not earn any further return and may not be able to reinvest in similar investments with similar terms. Structured investments include costs and fees which are generally embedded in the price of the investment. The tax treatment of a structured investment may be complex and may differ from a direct investment in the underlying asset. UBS and its employees do not provide tax advice. Investors should consult their own tax advisor about their own tax situation before investing in any securities.

Important Information About Sustainable Investing Strategies: Sustainable investing strategies aim to consider and incorporate environmental, social and governance (ESG) factors into investment process and portfolio construction. Strategies across geographies approach ESG analysis and incorporate the findings in a variety of ways. Incorporating ESG factors or sustainable investing considerations may inhibit the portfolio manager's ability to participate in certain investment opportunities that otherwise would be consistent with its investment objective and other principal investment strategies. The returns on a portfolio incorporating ESG factors or sustainable investing considerations may be lower or higher than portfolios where ESG factors, exclusions, or other sustainability issues are not considered by the portfolio manager, and the investment opportunities available to such portfolios may differ.

Within the past 12 months UBS Switzerland AG, its affiliates or subsidiaries may have received or provided investment services and activities or ancillary services as per MiFID II which may have given rise to a payment or promise of a payment in relation to these services from or to this company.
