Analyst Day Preview: Focus on Potential AI Levers, Margin Upside

CITI'S TAKE

Ahead of Workday Rising (10/12-15) and Analyst Day (10/13), we expect WDAY to reiterate initial FY28 view of 11% sub rev growth and >2pts of OM expansion. We suspect any potential MT framework will be unlikely to embed significant accel beyond FY28 (already below the low-end 12% sub growth of the prior framework) until there are stronger signs of the Flex credit consumption model and organic AI revenue driving material growth. More likely, we expect a more detailed view of AI ARR ($600M as of F2Q), including disaggregating sources of growth (e.g. organic vs. inorganic), along with potentially a stronger tone on margin following the latest RIF (2.5% of empl). Without a stronger view into a multi-year re-accel or incremental AI drivers, we do not see a reiterated NT outlook as sufficient to meaningfully change the thesis. Reiterate Neutral.

Key Debates — We believe the core debate is whether the 11% sub rev growth (2H implied and initial FY28 outlook) represents a conservative trough, a steady baseline, or yet another stepping-stone for deceleration. Our base case view is steady low DD topline growth beyond FY28 (we est. 11.5% FY29 sub rev growth), with incremental AI monetization helping limit deceleration in the core business but unlikely to drive significant headline topline re-accel. The adoption levels of organically developed AI products, along with clarity on the WDAY approach to MCP/headless architectures will be a strategic point of focus including potential partnerships with the frontier labs, while the tactical view likely orients toward UMSA/Flex credit roll outs and the potential value capture.

Margin Implications of Latest RIF — WDAY's 2.5% RIF announced last week (~500 empl), focused in product & tech and expected to be complete by F1Q28, could support confidence in the >2pts margin expansion outlook. Yet, we view the move as more a re-allocation of resources rather than significant net cost-out as hiring in strategic areas continues.

What We are Looking For — 1) Updates on the initial FY28 outlook, 2) potential updated medium-term outlook, possibly in the 11-12% sub growth range, 3) clarity on drivers of AI monetization, 4) UMSA and Flex Credit roll-out progress, 5) orientation toward 1st party agents vs. MCP/headless incl expanded partnerships, 6) confidence in margin expansion and SBC management.

WDAY Rising & ADay Preview

Key Debates

Forward growth outlook: trough, stabilization, or re-acceleration – We believe the central debate heading into Analyst Day is whether the initial FY28 subscription revenue growth outlook of 11% represents a conservative trough, a durable low-double-digit baseline, or another waypoint in a longer deceleration. The 2H FY27 guide already implies growth near this level, and the prior medium-term framework called for at least 12%, making the FY28 starting point an important reset. Our base case is that growth stabilizes around the low-double digit range rather than quickly reaccelerating. Workday still benefits from a large installed base, international expansion, Financials penetration and cross-sell, but these drivers are being offset by weaker hiring activity, longer transformation cycles and a more mature enterprise HCM market.

AI as a growth driver – Management has framed AI as a large emerging business, with roughly $600 million of AI ARR as of F2Q27. The key question is how much of this represents truly incremental monetization versus AI functionality embedded in existing products, acquired revenue, or packaging changes. We would look for a cleaner bridge between customer adoption, contracted value, consumption and recognized subscription revenue. Evidence that customers are expanding budgets for new AI use cases, rather than simply reallocating spend within the Workday estate, would be the clearest positive signal. In our view, AI is more likely to support retention and cross-sell primarily as an offset to core deceleration in the near term rather than drive a sharp re-acceleration in consolidated growth with WDAY likely needing to figure out its headless strategy to increase its perception in the market (similar to CRM).

Composition of AI: Organic vs. Inorganic – We expect investors will be focused on the composition of AI ARR in addition to the size and growth. Workday has expanded its AI portfolio both organically and through acquisitions, including Sana, and the strategic rationale is credible: a modern conversational experience can improve discovery, workflow completion and engagement across HR, finance and IT. Still, higher-quality growth would come from broad adoption of organically built agents and platform capabilities across the existing customer base including incremental ways to drive agentic consumption within the Workday platform. We expect questions on attach rates, paid production deployments, average deal size, overlap between acquired and native products, and the pace at which acquired offerings are being integrated into the core platform.

First-party agents versus a headless ecosystem – A significant strategic debate is whether Workday will control the end-user experience through first-party agents or increasingly expose its data, permissions and workflows to third-party copilots and MCP-based interfaces. We expect management to emphasize both Sana and Workday agents as the preferred experience, while opening APIs, orchestration and governance to third parties. In our view, an overly closed positioning could limit distribution and ultimately lower customer value, while an overly headless model could pressure Workday's ability to capture value at the application layer.

Potential Updates to Financial Targets

FY28 framework likely reiterated, MT framework may skew toward margin – We expect Workday to reiterate its initial FY28 outlook for approximately 11% sub revenue growth and >2pts of non-GAAP operating margin expansion. Reaffirmation would help confidence in near-term estimates, but is unlikely to change the broader investment debate in our view, although we could see useful color on the assumptions supporting the target to assess conservatism, including customer and seat growth expectations, sales productivity, AI contribution and the cadence of Flex Credit consumption.

Management may provide a refreshed medium-term framework based on prior AD updates. We believe it is unlikely WDAY underwrites a significant growth acceleration before seeing more concrete evidence of AI consumption. A plausible range in our view would anchor sub revenue growth around 11%-12%, versus the prior framework of 13%-14% at the midpoint and 12% low-end growth target, with upside dependent on Financials, international, platform and AI execution. We see more room for confidence on profitability, supported by the recent 2.5% RIF even under the assumption of significant re-investment. We also expect Workday will continue to signal focus on lowering SBC levels.

Upside & downside scenarios – A positively received framework in our view would outline a clear path to material re-acceleration supported by strong evidence of AI adoption and line-of-sight to consumption revenue. We suspect this is less likely given how early Flex credits remain in the adoption cycle and the pace of maturation of enterprise agentic adoption more broadly. An unfavorable outcome would be further cut to the MT outlook below the 11% FY28 target, with the indication of further decel possible taken as evidence of weaker confidence in AI monetization and/or continued slowing in the core HCM/Fins market.

Potential Product Updates

Sana becomes the unified user experience – We expect Sana to be positioned as the conversational entry point across Workday, helping users find information, receive recommendations and complete tasks without navigating traditional application menus. The strategic opportunity is broader than a new interface: Sana could unify experiences across HR, finance and IT while increasing engagement with Workday data and workflows. The key proof points will be integration depth, permission-aware execution, deployment timelines and whether Sana is included, bundled or monetized separately through Flex Credits.

Agents move from assistance to workflow execution – Product demonstrations are likely to emphasize agents that complete increasingly complex, multi-step work rather than simply summarize information or draft content. Relevant examples could include recruiting, payroll, financial close, expense, procurement and IT service workflows. Investors should distinguish between demonstrations and production readiness. We would look for named customers, general-availability dates, auditability, human approval controls and measurable productivity outcomes. Broad production use with repeat consumption would carry more weight than a long catalog of narrowly deployed agents.

The platform continues to open – We expect Workday to highlight Data Cloud, Extend Pro and partner tooling as the foundation for a broader ecosystem. Data Cloud can make HR and finance context available across the enterprise, while Extend Pro gives customers and partners a way to build applications and agents that inherit Workday security and business-process controls. This positioning could expand Workday beyond packaged applications, but success will depend on developer adoption, and the economics shared with partners. Clarity on how Workday participates when third-party agents initiate transactions would be particularly useful.

Pricing and Packaging – Flex Credits are the key monetization mechanism, shifting eligible AI and platform capabilities toward a usage-based model. Customers purchase credits in bulk, consume them in production and can reallocate usage across eligible agents and services. The model lowers procurement friction and gives Workday a mechanism to monetize incremental value, but it also introduces greater variability than traditional per-employee subscriptions. We expect management to discuss the pace of customer migration, initial credit allocations, renewal and top-up behavior, and how unused credits are treated. In our view, evidence of customers progressing from complimentary credits to paid commitments and subsequent top-ups would be more meaningful than headline Flex Credit adoption alone.

Valuation View

WDAY trades at 25x CY27 (FY28) EV/FCF ex SBC vs. CRM at 18x. In our view, the current valuation leaves room for a modestly positive reaction to greater confidence in FY28 margin expansion, but a more durable rerating likely requires evidence that 11% represents a growth trough and that AI monetization can support subsequent re-acceleration. Conversely, further growth deceleration, opaque AI monetization metrics or weaker confidence in Workday's strategic positioning would pressure the multiple. With limited visibility into a multi-year re-acceleration, we maintain our Neutral rating.

Workday Inc

Company description

Workday is a leader in enterprise HCM software and has expanded to address broader ERP use cases like core Financials, Planning, and Expense Mgmt. Workday has been a pioneer of SaaS, founded in 2005 from leadership from PeopleSoft following Oracle's acquisition of the HCM leader. Workday's solutions address a broad range of use cases across the HCM and Office of the CFO stack ranging from core HR management, payroll, recruiting, employee experience, and other HR solutions to core Financials, planning, procurement and expense.

Investment strategy

We rate WDAY Neutral. We see a continued slowdown in core HR in the enterprise following elevated investments the past couple of years for core Great Resignation themes as companies reprioritize investments as the macro becomes more challenged. While recent results appeared relatively strong, we view the risk-reward as relatively balanced given WDAY's growth profile.

Valuation

Our $201 TP for WDAY is based on a regression analysis that includes a 70/30 mix of growth vs. FCF margin. Our regression analysis, based on our projections of 10% revenue growth in FY28 and 32% FCF margin, suggests an 6.0x EV/revenue multiple, which we discount by 25% given risks of macro slowdown, deals taking longer to close, and potential deals becoming more competitive as the low-hanging fruit in the market is largely gone. Ultimately, we use a ~4.5x FY28 EV/revenue multiple (~14x FY28 EV/FCF) to derive our $201 TP.

Risks

Risks that could prevent WDAY from reaching our TP or estimates include: macro challenges potentially leading to a budget away from Workday's core HR; a slowdown in core transformation projects following a pull forward in digital transformation initiatives over the past couple of years; a slowdown in HR module adoption as Great Resignation challenges begin to subside as a tight labor market loosens; deal opportunities increasingly becoming bundled with WDAY losing opportunities to more established ERP providers with a broader and more robust portfolio, particularly in financials; payroll challenges lead WDAY to provide footholds of opportunity to other HCM providers that then lead to WDAY being displaced; and WDAY must invest further in its platform and go-to-market, which limits ability to reach MT margin targets.

Risks to the upside: improving Financials performance helps Workday better compete with incumbent ERP providers in bundled opportunities; market for HR software proves more resilient; and strong performance drives better-than-expected margin.

Salesforce Inc

(CRM.N; US$229.79; 2; 05 Oct 26; 16:00)

Valuation

We derive our one-year CRM target price of $263 based on a 12x forward EV/FY28 FCFF multiple after applying a 32% discount driven by increased competition and AI disruption risk. The multiple implied by our valuation regression framework is applied to FY28E FCFF to arrive at future EV of ~$239B. We calculate future equity value per share using our future estimated cash, debt and share count assumptions, and discount to one year from today using ~13% cost of equity.

Risks

Key risks to our investment thesis and target price include the inability of Salesforce to deliver on top-line growth due to personnel changes tied to recent management departures and restructuring actions, new business such as Agentforce + Data Cloud + Life Sciences Cloud that might not materialize into sizeable businesses, increased M&A with recently acquired INFA could dilute margins and elevate execution risk. Upside risks to our target include faster-than-anticipated pace of margin expansion, faster production-level Agentforce adoption than expected and revenue synergies from recent acquisitions that are greater than our expectations.

SAP SE

(SAPG.DE; €185.04; 1; 05 Oct 26; 17:30)

Valuation

We value SAP using DCF. Our target price of EUR 215 incorporates CY25-30E organic revenue CAGR of ~10-11% and reported operating margin stabilising at ~31-32% long-term. Our WACC assumption of 8.9% is based on a risk-free rate of 4.1% and equity risk premium of 3.3%. We use a terminal growth rate of 3%.

Risks

We highlight the following risks to our investment thesis and target price on SAP:

- Macroeconomic: Impact of increasing geopolitical and macro risks on demand for SAP's solutions
- Product: mainly in terms of integration, pivot towards the cloud and Business AI use cases
- Execution: towards medium-term objectives, and innovation
- Competition: across traditional ERP, cloud-centric line of business (LOB)

offerings, and AI-native competitors

- FX: Most relevant exposure is EUR vs. USD

Positive or adverse developments in these risk factors could cause the share price to remain above or fall below our target price.

ServiceNow, Inc.

(NOW.N; US$136.08; 1; 05 Oct 26; 16:00)

Valuation

We calculate our target price of $154 by giving EV/Revenue implied enterprise value 1/3 weight and EV/FCFF implied enterprise value 2/3 weight. Our multiples are based on a regression-implied model. For the EV/Revenue portion, we apply a ~6.7x multiple on our FY28 revenue estimate of ~$23B. For the EV/FCFF portion, we multiply a ~27x multiple by our forecasted FY28 FCFF of $8.1B. We include a -5% valuation discount given the increasingly inorganic revenue contributions and some deal delays. This results in a blended EV of $200B and future equity value of $216B, which is discounted to arrive at a 12-month forward price target of $154. The implied discounted sales multiple of this framework is ~7.2x FY27 estimated sales.

Risks

We see several risks to our recommendation and target price, including execution risks in several areas such as AI risk, lower sales productivity, macro risk, industry vertical risk, and competitive risk. If the impact on the company from any of these factors proves to be greater than we anticipate, the stock will likely have difficulty achieving our financial and price targets. Conversely, if any of these factors proves to have less of an effect than we anticipate, the stock could outperform our target.

Analysts' compensation is determined by Citi Research management and Citigroup's senior management and is based upon activities and services intended to benefit the investor clients of Citigroup Global Markets Inc. and its affiliates (the "Firm"). Compensation is not linked to specific transactions or recommendations. Like all Firm employees, analysts receive compensation that is impacted by overall Firm profitability which includes investment banking, sales and trading, and principal trading revenues. One factor in equity research analyst compensation is arranging corporate access events between institutional clients and the management teams of covered companies. Typically, company management is more likely to participate when the analyst has a positive view of the company.

For financial instruments recommended in the Product in which the Firm is not a market maker, the Firm is a liquidity provider in such financial instruments (and any underlying instruments) and may act as principal in connection with transactions in such instruments. The Firm is a regular issuer of traded financial instruments linked to securities that may have been recommended in the Product. The Firm regularly trades in the securities of the issuer(s) discussed in the Product. The Firm may engage in securities transactions in a manner inconsistent with the Product and, with respect to securities covered by the Product, will buy or sell from customers on a principal basis.

Unless stated otherwise neither the Research Analyst nor any member of their team has viewed the material operations of the Companies for which an investment view has been provided within the past 12 months.

Guide to Citi Research Fundamental Research Investment Ratings:

Citi Research stock recommendations include an investment rating and an optional risk rating to highlight high risk stocks.

Risk rating takes into account both price volatility and fundamental criteria. Stocks will either have no risk rating or a High risk rating assigned.

Investment Ratings: Citi Research investment ratings are Buy, Neutral and Sell. Our ratings are a function of analyst expectations of expected total return ("ETR") and risk. ETR is the sum of the forecast price appreciation (or depreciation) plus the dividend yield for a stock within the next 12 months. The target price is based on a 12 month time horizon. The Investment rating definitions are: Buy (1) ETR of 15% or more or 25% or more for High risk stocks; and Sell (3) for negative ETR. Any covered stock not assigned a Buy or a Sell is a Neutral (2). For stocks rated Neutral (2), if an analyst believes that there are insufficient valuation drivers and/or investment catalysts to derive a positive or negative investment view, they may elect with the approval of Citi Research management not to assign a target price and, thus, not derive an ETR. Citi Research may suspend its rating and target price and assign "Rating Suspended" status for regulatory and/or internal policy reasons. Citi Research may also suspend its rating and target price and assign "Under Review" status for other exceptional circumstances (e.g. lack of information critical to the analyst's thesis, trading suspension) affecting the company and/or trading in the company's securities. In both such situations, the rating and target price will show as "—" and "—" respectively in the rating history price chart. Prior to 11 April 2022 Citi Research assigned "Under Review" status to both situations and prior to 11 Nov 2020 only in exceptional circumstances. As soon as practically possible, the analyst will publish a note re-establishing a rating and investment thesis. Investment ratings are determined by the ranges described above at the time of initiation of coverage, a change in investment and/or risk rating, or a change in target price (subject to limited management discretion). At times, the expected total returns may fall outside of these ranges because of market price movements and/or other short-term volatility or trading patterns. Such interim deviations will be permitted but will become subject to review by Research Management. Your decision to buy or sell a security should be based upon your personal investment objectives and should be made only after evaluating the stock's expected performance and risk.

Catalyst Watch/Short Term Views ("STV") Ratings Disclosure:

Catalyst Watch and STV Upside/Downside calls: Citi Research may also include a Catalyst Watch or STV Upside or Downside call to indicate the analyst expects the share price to rise (fall) in absolute terms over a specified period of 30 or 90 days in reaction to one or more specific near-term catalysts or events impacting the company or the market. A Catalyst Watch will be published when Analyst confidence is high that an impact to share price will occur; it will be a STV when confidence level is moderate. A Catalyst Watch or STV Upside/Downside call will automatically expire at the end of the specified 30/90 day period. The Catalyst Watch will also be automatically removed if share price performance (calculated at market close) exceeds 15% against the direction of the call (unless over-ridden by the analyst). The analyst may also remove a Catalyst Watch or STV call prior to the end of the specified period in a published research note. A Catalyst Watch/STV Upside or Downside call may be different from and does not affect a stock's fundamental equity rating, which reflects a longer-term total absolute return expectation. For purposes of FINRA ratings-distribution-disclosure rules, a Catalyst Watch/STV Upside call corresponds to a buy recommendation and a Catalyst Watch/STV Downside call corresponds to a sell recommendation. Any stock not assigned to a Catalyst Watch Upside, Catalyst Watch Downside, STV Upside, or STV Downside call is considered Catalyst Watch/STV No View. For purposes of FINRA ratings distribution-disclosure rules, we correspond Catalyst Watch/STV No View to Hold in our ratings distribution table for our Catalyst Watch/STV Upside/Downside rating system. However, we reiterate that we do not consider No View to be a recommendation. For all Catalyst Watch/STV Upside/Downside calls, risk exists that the catalyst(s) and associated share-price movement will not materialize as expected.

Investing in non-U.S. securities, including ADRs, may entail certain risks. The securities of non-U.S. issuers may not be registered with, nor be subject to the reporting requirements of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission. There may be limited information available on foreign securities. Foreign companies are generally not subject to uniform audit and reporting standards, practices and requirements comparable to those in the U.S. Securities of some foreign companies may be less liquid and their prices more volatile than securities of comparable U.S. companies. In addition, exchange rate movements may have an adverse effect on the value of an investment in a foreign stock and its corresponding dividend payment for U.S. investors. Net dividends to ADR investors are estimated, using withholding tax rates conventions, deemed accurate, but investors are urged to consult their tax advisor for exact dividend computations.
