ASIA-PACIFIC WEEKLY KICKSTART

MXAPJ fell 4% as semis positioning unwinds drove record outflows from Korea (-16%) and Taiwan (-5%); Indonesia slid 13% on Friday after MSCI proposed an EM-to-Standalone reclassification

MXAPJ fell 4.9%, with India, Philippines and Australia (each +2%) outperforming Korea (-16%), Indonesia (-14%) and Taiwan (-5%). Software & Services, Banks and Transportation led, while Tech Hardware & Semis, Capital Goods and Materials lagged. On flows, EM Asia ex-China recorded a historic weekly outflow of US$28bn, including a record US$19bn from Taiwan, amid concerns over semiconductor margins and the cost of capital, driving positioning unwinds. Korea also saw US$8.3bn of foreign selling. MSCI proposed reclassifying Indonesia directly from Emerging Market to Standalone status, with a decision expected by June 2027, sending most constituents to their 15% downside limit on Friday. On macro, US September core CPI topped expectations on firmer housing and consumer-discretionary readings, while core PPI also came in above expectations, with slightly firmer PCE-relevant components. In China, September trade growth beat consensus, lifting the trade surplus to a record high. PPI surprised to the upside on higher energy input costs, CPI was in line, and credit data beat expectations on stronger government bond issuance. In India, CPI rose to a 23-month high, while the trade deficit widened on increased oil-import volumes. Key upcoming events are summarized within.

Charts of the Week

Rising Rates & October Tech Risk-Off: Sticky inflation and higher energy prices pushed yields higher, triggering an October sell-off in MXAPJ led by Korea, Taiwan and Tech

Significant Foreign Selling: Record foreign outflows from Taiwan and heavy Korea selling this week point to a sharp positioning unwind, with Korea semiconductor foreign ownership falling to historically depressed levels.

Leveraged ETFs: Korea leveraged ETF AUM has fallen sharply to US$15.5bn from a US$53bn peak in June, while Taiwan remains relatively stable at ~US$12bn; recent buy-the-dip inflows point to renewed tactical retail risk appetite in both markets.

Mutual Fund Positioning: September positioning shifted toward India and away from Taiwan/China, with Hard Tech and China Banks remaining notable underweights.

CY3Q26 Reporting Season: Regional earnings season ramps up from mid-October to late-November, with CY3Q26 results likely to refocus attention on the earnings outlook. MXAPJ 2027E earnings have been revised up 1.7% since September, led by Taiwan, Australia and Korea.
