Robust June sales delivers strong Q226 beats across the tech sectors

We summarize June monthly sales across 171 Taiwan tech firms and 55 companies against UBS/Street expectations. Sales for June within UBS coverage was up 9% MoM above +2% MoM seasonal. Supply bottlenecks and component shortages remain the concern versus demand driving further price hikes in 1H while demand remains strong in the server chain heading into results season. Hardware sales grew +9% MoM/+55% YoY, outpacing semiconductor sales at +7% MoM/+54% YoY, while Q226 sales for our Taiwan tech was up +16% QoQ vs. +10% QoQ consensus. Among our coverage, 34 beat consensus, 12 were in-line, and 9 fell short, with most of the broader technology sectors performing above expectations and reaching 105%/106% of UBSe/Street.

Hardware: Servers ramping further in 2H while consumer tech stays impacted

The UBS Taiwan hardware coverage saw June +9% MoM/+55% YoY to NT$2,320bn, surpassing Q226 estimates at 107% UBSe/Street. GPU/ASIC/general servers drove beats across ODMs/brands Quanta, Wistron, Inventec, Accton and Gigabyte. During the quarter, we raised NVIDIA racks to 72.5k/90k for 2026-2027E and also see strength in H2 ASIC rack ramps, with Wiwynn starting Trainium 3 shipments on schedule in late June and ODMs noting strong Graviton/Axion CPU ramps. We still did see constraints impacting some deliveries, with Delta only in-line with lowered +15% QoQ expectations vs. original ~20%. NB shipments in Q2 tracked better than our flat expectations growing +4%QoQ/-8% YoY, rebounding in June after a sub-seasonal May. Despite strength, ODMs still see high component cost impacting demand and a weak H226. We trim full year 2026 total ODM shipments from -9% YoY to -10% YoY, closer to our global PC model forecasts of -11% YoY. While Apple has held up YTD, sell-through did slow from +9.5% in April to 8% in May and build plans are flattish for H226.

Semiconductors: June/Q2 ahead across sectors with equipment the largest beat

The UBS Taiwan semis coverage saw June sales up +7.3% MoM, +54% YoY to NT $705bn, 100%/102% of Q2 UBSe/street estimates for +13%/11% QoQ growth. Foundry sales were up +6% MoM and +72% YoY, in-line/ahead at 100%/101% of Q2 UBSe/street. UMC and PSMC led the strength at 103%/104% of consensus, with Nanya Tech at 103% keeping up an impressive 620% YoY in June as memory inflation continues. Back-end sales were up +3% MoM and up +32% YoY in June, largely in-line with UBS estimates and slightly ahead of consensus to track a 10% QoQ growth. Equipment was once again the outperformer with Chroma and Hon Precision 108%/114% of consensus, while fabless tracked ahead at 103% of consensus with the standout Faraday, Silergy, GUC, Mediatek and Andes while Alchip was light as it transitions from legacy projects into Trainium 3 which still started its ramp-up in June.

Outlook: Hyperscalers capex likely to see continued upside

Supply chain strength bodes well for upcoming hyperscaler outlooks, evidenced by memory price upgrades (link), stronger CoWoS builds (link), and the Q2 ODM hardware upside. Upcoming hyperscaler results should sustain strong spending to add capacity for rising agentic workloads, continued model improvements and hosting open source models which still requires compute capacity, implying upside to UBSe for capex +81%/+21% YoY in 2026/27. For stocks, we prefer semis and components with tight supply, spec upgrades and rising pricing/margins, supporting foundry (TSMC), back-end (ASE, KYEC, Chroma, Hon Precision) and fabless/design service (Mediatek, Alchip, GUC). Within hardware our picks are Wiwynn, Quanta, Hon Hai, Wistron, Delta, and Unimicron while we stay cautious on branded PCs, low AI exposure ODMs and panels.

Taiwan Tech June sales: Server strength drives upside again in Q2

In this report, we provide an overview of June monthly sales across 171 Taiwan tech firms and 55 companies under our coverage, comparing performance against both our and market expectations. Sales for June within UBS coverage was up 9% MoM, beating the 5Y seasonal trend of +2% MoM. The AI supply chain remains robust with demand as strong as ever, while supply bottlenecks and component shortages remain the main subject of market concern driving pull-ins and price hikes in 1H. Uncertainty lingers with the Middle East conflict still unresolved as escalation of US-Iran missile exchanges threatens the short-lived truce. Hardware sales grew +9% MoM/+55% YoY, slightly outperforming semiconductor sales which increased by +7% MoM/+54% YoY, both supporting the +9% MoM/+55% YoY and +16% QoQ strength in Q2 for our Taiwan coverage, while Q226 sales for overall Taiwan tech was up +18% QoQ. Among our coverage, 34 beat consensus, 12 were in-line, and 9 fell short, with most of the broader technology sectors under our coverage performing above expectations, concluding the quarter with an upside of 105%/106% UBSe/Street.

Overall Taiwan tech sales in June increased by +59% YoY, another acceleration from +42% YoY in May, sustaining the strong growth trajectory in H1 which saw a +37% YoY for Q1 sales. June sales surpassed expectations across most sectors, with the majority delivering above seasonality MoM growth to deliver sequential improvements in Q226. IC design contributed to a modest outperformance in semiconductors, while increased demand for general servers and strong AI server ramps continues to boost hardware.

Stock performance in 2026 has been exceptionally strong, outperforming traditional sectors with the TAIEX +44% YTD and the SOX +78% YTD, albeit with more volatility following the strong run as stock performance and sales momentum is now rivalling the 2000 tech cycle peaks. We still see trends supportive given shortages of compute and component supply and aggressive intentions by AI natives and hyperscalers to bring on capacity for strong inference demand and continue model scaling to stay on the frontier.

Taiwan tech exports remain robust at +52% YoY

Taiwan's overall tech exports slightly declined -4% MoM in June but still a strong +52% YoY, roughly in-line with the +59% YoY growth in Taiwan tech sales. DRAM strength continued in June at +150% YoY, marking its 8th consecutive month with >1x YoY though dropping -23% MoM from May's historical peak of NT$4.1bn. Strong tech export performance was also reflected in the solid +78% YoY ADP ex laptop (automated data processing) growth, supported by server orders for compute boards and ongoing rack ramps, while IC exports were slightly down -5% MoM from May's record high to NT $24.1bn. Laptop shipments rebounded +32% MoM/+22% YoY to make Q2 back-end loaded after Apr/Jun weakness from 1Q pull-ins ahead of component cost hikes; smartphone exports saw a slowdown of -31% MoM but still +78% YoY as the strong flagship cycle fades into a product transition period.

Within the data, Taiwan's automatic data processing (ADP) export orders excluding laptops came in at +78% YoY in June to US$25.2bn vs. +99% YoY in May with a small -4% MoM decline. For NVIDIA's F2Q27 ending July, UBS maintains forecasts of data center revenue to grow 13% QoQ/107% YoY. While ADP exports had previously decoupled from NVIDIA's results earlier in 2025 due to rack shipment delays, it is somewhat predictive of NVIDIA's revenue and we see our estimates in-line with June ADP trends, which could imply sustained strength through H226 with strong GB300 ramps between the platform transition from Blackwell to Rubin.

UBS Hardware coverage June/Q226 sales a strong beat

The UBS Taiwan hardware coverage saw June rebounding from a flattish May with sales +9% MoM/+55% YoY to NT$2,342bn, beating Q226 estimates at 107% UBSe/Street. Servers were strong across GPU racks, AI ASICs and general servers driving the strongest beats across ODMs/brands Quanta, Wistron, Inventec, Accton and Gigabyte. We raised forecasts for NVIDIA racks to 72.5k/90k for 2026-2027E during Q226 and also note strength in H2 ASIC rack ramps. Wiwynn started shipments in June into Trainium 3 and now set to continue through 2027, while Wistron is engaging with customers regarding Q4 orders with potentially meaningful revenue contribution.

Q2 NB shipments tracked better than our expectations with +4%QoQ/-8% YoY to 30.35mn units, rebounding with above seasonal MoM strength after a sub-seasonal May, though we expect the pull-in momentum to come to an end in H1 with widespread conservativeness on H2 demand. We hence trim full year 2026 total ODM shipments down slightly to -10% YoY, closer to our global PC model forecasts of -11% YoY. Smartphones had stayed bifurcated between iPhone benefiting from higher-end models vs. Android, but we view the strong flagship cycle fading ahead of 2H new product releases as iPhone units YTD YoY slowed from +9.5% in April to 8% in May.

The UBS Taiwan hardware coverage saw June sales growing +9% MoM/+55% YoY to NT$2,342bn, which tracked 107% of expectations. ODMs remains the key driver at 106%/108% of Q2 UBS/Street estimates, with Hon Hai, Quanta, Wistron, Inventec, and Accton leading the growth driven by the acceleration of server shipments. Brands were also ahead with Gigabyte tracking 115% of Q2 consensus supported by increasing AI server contributions. Very strong Apr/May sales still supported Largan and Genius outperforming at 103%/105% of consensus respectively in Q2, though June saw signs of flagship smartphone lens momentum cooling down, though business is expected to remain intact with Largan shipping variable aperture in H2 and Genius gaining share in periscope lens. Substrates and automation all tracked ahead expectations, and within components, King Slide stood out at a massive144% beat of Q2 consensus on strong rail kit demand.

Only a few suppliers were softer, including Wiwynn though mainly due to a change in accounting method starting April negotiating consignment of memory for the majority of its general server projects; June sales saw a rebound from Apr/May as Trainium 3 ramps kicked start, with VR200 racks starting small shipments in Q426 and AMD Helios racks (Wiwynn the dominant supplier) as upcoming tailwinds through 2027. Delta ended Q2 in-line with latest expectations for low-mid teens QoQ growth, though slightly below initial high-teens to low-20% QoQ growth expectations due to delays in data center projects and production issues pulling in long lead time components. A bright spot was liquid cooling deliveries which rebounded from Q126.

ODM NB units track better: Q226 +4% QoQ vs. prior +1% QoQ from stronger pull-ins; lowering 2026 full year to -10% YoY

Q2 shipments were up +4%QoQ/-8% YoY to 30.35mn units, ahead of UBS prior forecast for (+1% QoQ, -11% YoY), as H126 saw stronger than expected pull-ins ahead of component price hike concerns. Continued conservative guidance of ODMs on H2 end market demand support our expectations of full year units to be front-end loaded vs. seasonal. We maintain our view on memory along with CPU/passive components shortage pushing OEMs to reallocate resources from lower-mainstream products to mid-high end consumer, gaming and commercial channels; surging oil prices amidst the ongoing Iran conflict could also dampen purchases in consumer electronics. We hence lower our Q326E shipment units from 29.5mn (-3% QoQ, -13% YoY) to 28.5mn (-6% QoQ, -16% YoY) and trim full year to -10% YoY, closer to our global PC model forecasts of -11% YoY.

We highlight the following notebook ODM Q226 shipment trends:

- Quanta NB units ahead in Q2. June shipments were 4.5mn units (+ 29% MoM/-10% YoY), above our prior estimates of 3.9mn, which implies Q2 shipments of 11.5mn (+15% QoQ/-5% QoQ), above our 10.9mn (+9% QoQ/-10% YoY) forecast, reflecting pull-ins across the board ahead of component hikes. Management maintains view that H2 is more conservative. We revise up its Q326E NB shipments from 10.4mn (-10% QoQ/-18% YoY) to 10.5mn (-9% QoQ, -17% YoY) and full year shipments from 41.4mn (-11% YoY) to 42mn (-10% YoY), factoring in Quanta's better performance in H126 and in-line with industry trends and management guidance of high-single-digit to double-digit decline.

- Wistron June NB units below. June NB shipments totalled 5.5mn units (+18% MoM/-17% YoY), below our prior estimates of 5.7mn units (+29% MoM/-8% YoY) with its share dropping below 20%. While management cited less impact on component shortage due to a higher mix of commercial NBs, Q326 NB guidance is at a 15-20% decline. With that, we revise down Q326E units to 4.65mn (-15% QoQ/-27% YoY) from 5.8mn (+2% QoQ/-9% YoY).
- Compal tracked in-line in June. June shipments reached 2.4mn (+20% MoM/-4% YoY), relatively in-line with UBS estimates, bringing Q2 shipments to 6.2mn units (+20% QoQ, -4% YoY). We revise Q326E NB shipments from 6.5mn (+5% MoM/-8% YoY) to 6.35mn (+2% MoM/-11% YoY) in-line with guidance of flat to slight growth QoQ and 2026 full year units at 24.65mn (-12% YoY), factoring in Compal's high mix of consumer/low-end PCs. We still model growth into H226 as it rebounds from share losses in 2025 taking out costs to compete against China assemblers.
- Inventec gaining share in June. June NB shipments were 2.4mn units (+60% MoM/+14% YoY), above estimates of +33% MoM/-5% YoY and reaching 20% share. Implied Q2 shipments totalled 5.4mn (flat QoQ, -4% YoY), +8% above our prior forecast of 5.0mn units (-7% QoQ, -11% YoY). We revise its Q326E NB units from 4.8mn (-11% QoQ, -11% YoY) to 5.0mn (-7% QoQ, -7% YoY) and our full year from 19.8mn to 20.2mn, and from -7% YoY to -5% YoY, in-line with management guidance of flat to down single digits decline and expectations to outperform the industry supported by its 60-70% mix of commercial models.
- Pegatron June NB units tracking relatively behind. Pegatron shipments reached 650k units (-3% MoM/ -26% YoY) at midpoint, slightly behind our estimates of 700k and dropping to 5% of share. Q2 shipments were 1.75mn (-3% QoQ, -26% YoY), below our prior forecast of 1.8mn units. We keep Q326E NB shipments at 2.0mn (+14% QoQ/-17% YoY) and cut full year shipments by 50k to 7.6mn (-16% YoY).

Back-end sales were up +3% MoM and up +32% YoY in June, largely in-line with UBS estimates and slightly ahead of consensus to track a 10% QoQ growth. Equipment was once again the outperformer with Chroma and Hon Precision 108%/114% of consensus on the back of strong back-end sales growth and capex spending. The back-end companies ex-TSMC are tracking to +22% YoY sales growth to US$32.4bn while capex is tracking up +87% YoY to US$12bn (Figure 37). Fabless also tracked ahead at 103% of consensus with the standout Faraday, Silergy, GUC, Mediatek and Andes.

Downstream hardware outgrowing semis

We track the relative 3-month moving average (3MMA) YoY momentum for Taiwan upstream vs. downstream tech and find a 0.5 correlation with semiconductor YoY momentum. In June, downstream grew +50% 3MMA YoY, outpacing upstream at +41% 3MMA YoY for the eighth consecutive month. Overall, hardware and semiconductor growth have been broadly aligned this year.

Q226 Sales: Beats/Misses vs consensus

Top beats in the coverage were hardware companies including King Slide (continued strength in cooling/AI servers related slide rail shipments), Inventec (robust enterprise demand and ASIC server boards), Faraday (design wins entering mass production), Accton (faster Trainium 3 ramp and stronger 800G switch sales), and Gigabyte (strong AI server growth). Those tracking behind include Alchip, GPTC, Asmedia, MSI, and Lotes.

Outlook: Hyperscalers capex likely to see continued upside

The market has been monitoring growing corporate AI budgets (link) and rising use of open source models (link) for signs of any hyperscaler capex/demand slowdown. We still see strength in supply chain builds evidenced by continued memory price upgrades (link), stronger CoWoS builds (link), and ODM hardware upsides as seen in strong June sales. Based on inputs, hyperscaler results should sustain strong spending trends and while likely acknowledging corporate efforts to manage spending growth, should still position very strong growth from rising use case/agent workloads, continued model improvements and even an option to host open source models which still requires compute capacity. We should still see upside to UBS estimates for capex up 81%/21% YoY in 2026-27 factoring the aggressive supply chain builds and component price inflation. Key risk amid the strong spending is increasingly from supply related factors including component bottlenecks and construction/permitting delays at the data center site.

Next catalysts include upcoming results season with TSMC next on Thurs 7/16 and hyperscalers from end July followed by Semicon Taiwan and UBS Taiwan Summit both in September. For stocks, we prefer semis and components with tight supply, spec upgrades and rising pricing/margins, supporting foundry (TSMC), back-end (ASE, KYEC, Chroma, Hon Precision) and fabless/design service (Mediatek, Alchip and GUC). Within hardware our picks remain Wiwynn, Quanta, Hon Hai, Wistron, Delta, and Unimicron having upside - while we stay cautious on branded PCs, low AI exposure ODMs and panels.

Valuation Method and Risk Statement

Investing in the technology sector involves a high degree of risk. Rapid technological changes, increasing competition and exposure to macroeconomic cycles are among the many risks faced by investors in technology stocks. Moreover, it is extremely difficult to project the financial results of tech companies since their operating models are highly volatile and unpredictable. Finally, valuing technology stocks can prove challenging, as neither traditional nor non-traditional valuation measures have provided much insight into how these stocks trade. Valuation methodologies in the sector include target price-book-multiples based on the long term average ROE and the cost of equity.

Investing in structured investments involves significant risks. For a detailed discussion of the risks involved in investing in any particular structured investment, you must read the relevant offering materials for that investment. Structured investments are unsecured obligations of a particular issuer with returns linked to the performance of an underlying asset. Depending on the terms of the investment, investors could lose all or a substantial portion of their investment based on the performance of the underlying asset. Investors could also lose their entire investment if the issuer becomes insolvent. UBS does not guarantee in any way the obligations or the financial condition of any issuer or the accuracy of any financial information provided by any issuer. Structured investments are not traditional investments and investing in a structured investment is not equivalent to investing directly in the underlying asset. Structured investments may have limited or no liquidity, and investors should be prepared to hold their investment to maturity. The return of structured investments may be limited by a maximum gain, participation rate or other feature. Structured investments may include call features and, if a structured investment is called early, investors would not earn any further return and may not be able to reinvest in similar investments with similar terms. Structured investments include costs and fees which are generally embedded in the price of the investment. The tax treatment of a structured investment may be complex and may differ from a direct investment in the underlying asset. UBS and its employees do not provide tax advice. Investors should consult their own tax advisor about their own tax situation before investing in any securities.

Important Information About Sustainable Investing Strategies: Sustainable investing strategies aim to consider and incorporate environmental, social and governance (ESG) factors into investment process and portfolio construction. Strategies across geographies approach ESG analysis and incorporate the findings in a variety of ways. Incorporating ESG factors or sustainable investing considerations may inhibit the portfolio manager's ability to participate in certain investment opportunities that otherwise would be consistent with its investment objective and other principal investment strategies. The returns on a portfolio incorporating ESG factors or sustainable investing considerations may be lower or higher than portfolios where ESG factors, exclusions, or other sustainability issues are not considered by the portfolio manager, and the investment opportunities available to such portfolios may differ.

Within the past 12 months UBS Switzerland AG, its affiliates or subsidiaries may have received or provided investment services and activities or ancillary services as per MiFID II which may have given rise to a payment or promise of a payment in relation to these services from or to this company.
