Dell At Its Best: Surging Demand Coupled with Strong Execution Drives Raised Outlook; Maintain Buy

CITI'S TAKE

Surging demand across key end-markets combined with strong execution drove a clear beat relative to heightened expectations. ISG/CSG outperformed while EPS materially outpaced on stronger margins from scale, pricing discipline, mix and opex efficiencies. Guidance increased meaningfully with FY27E revenues/EPS growth of ~70%/150% versus 47%/74% previously. Guidance embeds supply constraints leaving potential for upside. Momentum should sustain ahead, driven by infrastructure modernization and expanding enterprise AI adoption. Dell's broad portfolio, engineering, deployment expertise, financing availability and supply-chain scale are driving share gains. AI orders reached $60.9B, with $16.4B of revenue, $95B backlog, and pipeline multiples of backlog across 6,500+ customers. We raise our estimates and shift target price to $600 ($515 prior), based on 18x (20x prior) N24M P/E, reflecting lower market multiples. Maintain Buy.

Results F2Q27 (Jul) – Revenues of $47.0B (+58% y/y) compared with prior guidance of $44–45B and Street (FactSet) expectations of $44.93B. Gross margin came in at 21.1% versus Citi at 17.5%, operating margin of 12.6%, and EPS of $7.04 compared with prior guidance of $4.70–$4.90 and Street at $4.91.

ISG Revenues of $31.78B (+89% y/y) versus Street at $29.61B, with ISG operating margins of 15.0%. Traditional Server & Networking revenues grew 122% y/y to $10.53B. AI server revenues were $16.40B (+100% y/y) versus prior guidance of approximately $15.5B. Storage revenues of $4.85B increased 26% y/y.

CSG Revenues of $15.03B (+20% y/y) versus Street at $15.08B, with CSG operating margins of 7.6%. Commercial Client Revenue of $13.2 billion, up 22% year over year, and Consumer revenue of $1.8 billion, up 7% year over year.

Earnings Recap –

AI momentum accelerated meaningfully, with a record $60.9B of AI server orders, $16.4B of revenue, and a $95B ending backlog. Dell's five-quarter pipeline grew sequentially and remains multiple times backlog despite the company converting $131.7B of orders over the past year. Demand continues to broaden across neocloud, sovereign, and enterprise customers, with the AI customer base surpassing 6,500, including 3,300 additions over the past three quarters. Enterprise customer count, repeat purchases, revenue, and pipeline all increased both sequentially and y/y, supporting the durability of demand. Dell raised its FY27 AI server revenue outlook to $74B, approximately 3x y/y. Longer term, management expects AI to represent 75% of data-center demand by 2030, with roughly half of the opportunity aligned with Dell's core customer base and an addressable opportunity exceeding $1T. Dell's engineering capabilities, global deployment scale, financing arm, and ability to support customers from initial design through first token remain key competitive differentiators.

Traditional server and networking revenue increased 122% y/y to $10.5B, with demand exceeding available supply and growth primarily driven by Dell's historical enterprise customer base. Demand reflects data-center modernization, higher core counts and memory content, infrastructure consolidation, and heightened security and resiliency requirements, with agentic AI workloads providing an incremental demand vector. Dell has gained more than 10 points of traditional server share over the past two quarters and expects further share gains in the current quarter. The refresh opportunity remains substantial, with approximately 1.2M installed assets on 14G or older platforms. Management highlighted consolidation ratios of 6–8:1 for 17G servers and 12–14:1 for the upcoming 18G platform, while post-quantum cryptography and increased resiliency requirements should provide additional forcing functions for upgrades. Dell now expects traditional server revenue to grow just over 100% in FY27, with similar growth continuing through 2H.

Storage revenue increased 26% y/y to $4.9B, supported by broad-based strength across Dell IP products and a higher mix of internally developed storage solutions. Dell IP demand has grown ahead of the market for six consecutive quarters, with strength across their various offerings. Unstructured storage remained one of the fastest-growing areas of the portfolio as AI workloads create additional requirements to prepare, store, protect, and move increasingly large volumes of data. Storage revenue grew 17% during 1H, and Dell expects mid-teens growth in 2H and FY27. A rising Dell IP mix, improved solution-level margins, and incremental AI-related storage demand are supporting stronger storage profitability and contributing to ISG margin expansion. Management also sees a longer-term opportunity around data management and semantic-layer capabilities as agentic and physical AI generate increasing volumes of structured and unstructured data.

CSG revenue grew 20% y/y to $15.0B, with Commercial up 22% to $13.2B and Consumer up 7% to $1.8B. Commercial revenue increased for the eighth consecutive quarter, supported by large-enterprise refresh activity and growth across regions and verticals. Management sees continued runway from an aging installed base, as more cost-sensitive customers extend replacement cycles and expand the pool of older devices requiring future upgrades. CSG operating margin reached 7.6%, supported by pricing discipline, favorable mix, and greater scale across the P&L. Dell expects CSG revenue to grow in the mid-teens in FY27, although Q3 operating margin is expected to moderate to approximately 6% as the company balances demand, supply availability, profitable share gains, and pricing.

On profitability, operating margin increased 620 bps y/y to 15%, driven primarily by scale, with additional benefits from stronger storage profitability, favorable mix, pricing discipline, and operational rigor. Management cautioned that every Q2 benefit may not persist at the same level but emphasized that the results also reflect structural improvements from Dell's multi-year modernization program. Full-year operating expenses are now expected to represent approximately 8% of revenue, the lowest level in Dell's 42-year history, while operating income is expected to grow approximately 120% with more than 200 bps of margin expansion. Demand continues to exceed supply across AI and traditional infrastructure, with constraints spanning DRAM, NAND, CPUs, disk drives, optical components, substrates, and power-related components. Dell's supply-chain scale and ability to optimize available components across configurations remain important competitive advantages and supported the $25B increase in FY27 revenue guidance to $192B.

Post earnings takeaways

- Management emphasized demand durability, with the five-quarter pipeline continuing to grow despite $132B of orders over the past year and remaining multiples of the ~$95B AI backlog. Dell expects roughly 200GW of incremental data-center power capacity through 2030, with approximately half within its addressable neocloud, sovereign, and enterprise markets, implying a $1T+ AI infrastructure opportunity before storage, traditional infrastructure, and CSG.
- Dell expects continued share gains across AI, traditional servers, and storage. In AI, engineering expertise, deployment capabilities, services, and faster time to first token are helping Dell win complex engagements and command premium pricing. Dell gained more than 10 points of traditional server share over the past two quarters and expects further gains, supported by competitive products, better performance and power efficiency, and superior supply availability.
- Supply remains the primary constraint, with DRAM, CPUs, and the broader AI supply chain remaining tight. Management noted traditional server demand would have grown at a triple-digit rate over the past two quarters with better availability, while 2H growth would also have been higher with additional supply. Customers are increasingly sharing longer-term requirements to secure continuity of supply.
- ISG margin upside was driven by scale, improving Dell IP storage mix, pricing discipline, and favorable product and geographic mix. While 2Q's 15% operating margin was exceptional, management expects approximately 13.5% in 3Q and modest sequential improvement in 4Q despite AI server revenue growing more than 3x y/y, reflecting structural benefits from scale and storage mix.

- Storage is benefiting from a mix shift toward Dell IP as customers move away from partner-IP hyperconverged infrastructure and increasingly purchase disaggregated storage based on their specific capacity requirements. Unstructured storage remains particularly strong, with PowerScale and ObjectScale benefiting from growing AI-related data requirements, including agentic workloads and KV cache. Lightning remains an emerging opportunity that can capitalize on AI related storage needs.
- AI server operating margins are expected to remain in the mid-single-digit range through upcoming platform transitions, including the shift from GPU trays toward fuller rack-scale solutions. Storage, networking, services, and financing attach provide additional opportunities beyond the core AI server margin.
- Operational discipline extends beyond opex and includes pricing, supply-chain execution, portfolio mix, and broader operating efficiencies. Dell continues to reinvest in AI capabilities and sales capacity, while the FY27 opex rate is expected to be approximately 8% of revenue, the lowest level in company history.
- CSG margins held up better than expected but are expected to normalize to approximately 6% in 3Q and 5.5% in 4Q as competition increases and Dell balances pricing, demand, share gains, and profitability.
- Capital returns accelerated by approximately $2.3B q/q, helping Dell move back toward its target of returning 80% of adjusted free cash flow. Approximately $1B or slightly less of annual repurchases is needed to offset dilution, with incremental buybacks remaining an important EPS lever.

Duration:	Within 90 Days (expires 22 Oct 2026)
Date Added:	24 Jul 2026
Catalyst:	Earnings

We are opening an upside Catalyst Watch on DELL ahead of its July-Q earnings report. Our conviction has increased that enterprise IT infrastructure spending continues to strengthen, supported by ongoing AI-related investments, server refresh cycles, and broader demand for data center capacity. We see upside driven by a larger CPU total addressable market (TAM), robust server demand, and continued strength in AI infrastructure deployments, which support stronger growth.

Dell Technologies

Company description

Dell is a leading provider of technology hardware (PCs, monitors, servers, storage, networking including services and third-party software). It operates through the following segments: Infrastructure Solutions Group (ISG), Client Solutions Group (CSG), and Others. The ISG segment includes servers, networking, and storage, as well as services and third-party software and peripherals that are closely tied to the sale of ISG hardware. The CSG segment consists of sales to commercial and consumer customers of desktops, thin client products, and notebooks. The Other segment provides compute, cloud management, networking and security, storage and availability, and other end-user computing offerings. The company was founded by Michael Saul Dell in 1984 and is headquartered in Round Rock, TX.

Investment strategy

We rate Dell shares Buy. Within the overall enterprise hardware space, we believe Dell's broad exposure, size, and scale should enable it to outperform broader IT spending trends. We believe Dell's leading share in commercial PCs as well as across several of its product categories (servers, storage infrastructure) should drive top-line growth at least in line with the core markets it participates in, with AI and AI PC offerings further strengthening Dell's moat in these core markets. Additionally, we expect FCF margins to remain at normalized levels at 100% FCF/NI conversions, which should aid in increasing its level of shareholder returns.

Valuation

Our $600 rounded target price is based on a 18x P/E multiple applied to our N24M EPS estimate. Dell's peer group comprises large enterprise hardware companies and trades within a range of 9x to 32x, with a median PE of 17x. We believe a premium to the peer group is warranted given better-than-expected earnings growth and momentum in its AI portfolio.

Risks

Risks to achieving our target price include the following:

Competitive Intensity: Competition from hyperscalers and cloud computing options is impacting demand for traditional enterprise server and storage hardware products. Hyperscalers tend to rely on lower-margin compute and storage products from ODMs, while enterprises are using cloud-enabled infrastructure (private and hybrid) to drive efficiencies in data center infrastructure. This has resulted in aggressive pricing environment, market share losses in its storage business, and margin erosion.

PC & Data Center Demand Downticks: Hardware demand could recover slower than expected, and any delays to the PC refresh cycle could have negative implications for the business.

Dell's AI backlog may not materialize in revenues in CY2026 and could be pushed out further.

Complicated Ownership Structure: Dell has a fairly complicated ownership and governance structure.

Analysts' compensation is determined by Citi Research management and Citigroup's senior management and is based upon activities and services intended to benefit the investor clients of Citigroup Global Markets Inc. and its affiliates (the "Firm"). Compensation is not linked to specific transactions or recommendations. Like all Firm employees, analysts receive compensation that is impacted by overall Firm profitability which includes investment banking, sales and trading, and principal trading revenues. One factor in equity research analyst compensation is arranging corporate access events between institutional clients and the management teams of covered companies. Typically, company management is more likely to participate when the analyst has a positive view of the company.

For financial instruments recommended in the Product in which the Firm is not a market maker, the Firm is a liquidity provider in such financial instruments (and any underlying instruments) and may act as principal in connection with transactions in such instruments. The Firm is a regular issuer of traded financial instruments linked to securities that may have been recommended in the Product. The Firm regularly trades in the securities of the issuer(s) discussed in the Product. The Firm may engage in securities transactions in a manner inconsistent with the Product and, with respect to securities covered by the Product, will buy or sell from customers on a principal basis.

Unless stated otherwise neither the Research Analyst nor any member of their team has viewed the material operations of the Companies for which an investment view has been provided within the past 12 months.

Guide to Citi Research Fundamental Research Investment Ratings:

Citi Research stock recommendations include an investment rating and an optional risk rating to highlight high risk stocks.

Risk rating takes into account both price volatility and fundamental criteria. Stocks will either have no risk rating or a High risk rating assigned.

Investment Ratings: Citi Research investment ratings are Buy, Neutral and Sell. Our ratings are a function of analyst expectations of expected total return ("ETR") and risk. ETR is the sum of the forecast price appreciation (or depreciation) plus the dividend yield for a stock within the next 12 months. The target price is based on a 12 month time horizon. The Investment rating definitions are: Buy (1) ETR of 15% or more or 25% or more for High risk stocks; and Sell (3) for negative ETR. Any covered stock not assigned a Buy or a Sell is a Neutral (2). For stocks rated Neutral (2), if an analyst believes that there are insufficient valuation drivers and/or investment catalysts to derive a positive or negative investment view, they may elect with the approval of Citi Research management not to assign a target price and, thus, not derive an ETR. Citi Research may suspend its rating and target price and assign "Rating Suspended" status for regulatory and/or internal policy reasons. Citi Research may also suspend its rating and target price and assign "Under Review" status for other exceptional circumstances (e.g. lack of information critical to the analyst's thesis, trading suspension) affecting the company and/or trading in the company's securities. In both such situations, the rating and target price will show as "—" and "—" respectively in the rating history price chart. Prior to 11 April 2022 Citi Research assigned "Under Review" status to both situations and prior to 11 Nov 2020 only in exceptional circumstances. As soon as practically possible, the analyst will publish a note re-establishing a rating and investment thesis. Investment ratings are determined by the ranges described above at the time of initiation of coverage, a change in investment and/or risk rating, or a change in target price (subject to limited management discretion). At times, the expected total returns may fall outside of these ranges because of market price movements and/or other short-term volatility or trading patterns. Such interim deviations will be permitted but will become subject to review by Research Management. Your decision to buy or sell a security should be based upon your personal investment objectives and should be made only after evaluating the stock's expected performance and risk.

Catalyst Watch/Short Term Views ("STV") Ratings Disclosure:

Catalyst Watch and STV Upside/Downside calls: Citi Research may also include a Catalyst Watch or STV Upside or Downside call to indicate the analyst expects the share price to rise (fall) in absolute terms over a specified period of 30 or 90 days in reaction to one or more specific near-term catalysts or events impacting the company or the market. A Catalyst Watch will be published when Analyst confidence is high that an impact to share price will occur; it will be a STV when confidence level is moderate. A Catalyst Watch or STV Upside/Downside call will automatically expire at the end of the specified 30/90 day period. The Catalyst Watch will also be automatically removed if share price performance (calculated at market close) exceeds 15% against the direction of the call (unless over-ridden by the analyst). The analyst may also remove a Catalyst Watch or STV call prior to the end of the specified period in a published research note. A Catalyst Watch/STV Upside or Downside call may be different from and does not affect a stock's fundamental equity rating, which reflects a longer-term total absolute return expectation. For purposes of FINRA ratings-distribution-disclosure rules, a Catalyst Watch/STV Upside call corresponds to a buy recommendation and a Catalyst Watch/STV Downside call corresponds to a sell recommendation. Any stock not assigned to a Catalyst Watch Upside, Catalyst Watch Downside, STV Upside, or STV Downside call is considered Catalyst Watch/STV No View. For purposes of FINRA ratings distribution-disclosure rules, we correspond Catalyst Watch/STV No View to Hold in our ratings distribution table for our Catalyst Watch/STV Upside/Downside rating system. However, we reiterate that we do not consider No View to be a recommendation. For all Catalyst Watch/STV Upside/Downside calls, risk exists that the catalyst(s) and associated share-price movement will not materialize as expected.

Any decision to purchase securities mentioned in the Product must take into account existing public information on such security or any registered prospectus. Although information has been obtained from and is based upon sources that the Firm believes to be reliable, we do not guarantee its accuracy and it may be incomplete and condensed. Note, however, that the Firm has taken all reasonable steps to determine the accuracy and completeness of the disclosures made in the Important Disclosures section of the Product. The Firm's research department has received assistance from the subject company(ies) referred to in this Product including, but not limited to, discussions with management of the subject company(ies). For non-fundamental research reports, Citi Research may not provide regular updates to the views, recommendations and facts included in the reports. Notwithstanding that Citi Research maintains coverage on, makes recommendations concerning or discusses issuers, Citi Research may be periodically restricted from referencing certain issuers due to legal or policy reasons. Investing in non-U.S. securities, including ADRs, may entail certain risks. The securities of non-U.S. issuers may not be registered with, nor be subject to the reporting requirements of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission. There may be limited information available on foreign securities. Foreign companies are generally not subject to uniform audit and reporting standards, practices and requirements comparable to those in the U.S. Securities of some foreign companies may be less liquid and their prices more volatile than securities of comparable U.S. companies. In addition, exchange rate movements may have an adverse effect on the value of an investment in a foreign stock and its corresponding dividend payment for U.S. investors. Net dividends to ADR investors are estimated, using withholding tax rates conventions, deemed accurate, but investors are urged to consult their tax advisor for exact dividend computations.
