

HOLT Global Overview:

Strong corporate resilience, but rising market risks

Despite a highly uncertain geopolitical and inflationary backdrop, the economic cycle and corporate economic returns have remained strong, underpinned in part by the significant stimulus from AI capex spend. Consensus forecasts point to CFROI improvement across all regions and sectors, taking valuations back down towards the low end of their five-year range.

A higher-rate environment increasingly calls for greater stock selectivity. With real bond yields back around pre-Global Financial Crisis levels, elevated equity valuations and businesses dependent on external financing potentially facing greater scrutiny.

Without the tailwinds of loose monetary conditions, Tech stocks and the growth-heavy US market are particularly exposed, compounded by rising question marks over the long-term profitability potential of AI-exposed stocks. Concerns over the long-term profitability of AI-exposed companies add to the risk: technology-sector volatility reached dotcom-era levels over the summer and remains unusually high.

Alternative opportunities come with their own caveats. During past periods of Tech sector volatility, HOLT Value styles typically performed well, with today's resilient economic cycle providing an additional tailwind. HOLT Restructuring stocks—lower-quality, inexpensive companies with strong momentum—have performed particularly well over the past 12 months. However, Value, especially in the US and Japan, is no longer cheap relative to history, and forecast CFROIs are often already at cyclical peaks.

Value opportunities in Europe and the UK appear relatively more attractive. High CFROI Defensive sectors—particularly Staples and Health Care—also look inexpensive compared to their history, although it remains critical to avoid companies in the space with structural pressure on their CFROI outlook.

Low-volatility stocks may also appeal in a more uncertain environment, though the segment historically has outperformed predominantly during market drawdowns: favour low vol opportunities with otherwise strong fundamentals.

Against this backdrop, we identify 10 topical global screens: 1) Stocks with strong CFROI tailwinds and attractive valuations, 2) Stocks with CFROI headwinds and demanding valuations, 3) Stocks with a high valuation sensitivity to rising rates and weaker balance-sheets, 4) HOLT Best-in-Class ideas with strong balance-sheets, 5) Quality Growth at a Reasonable Price in the Tech sector, 6) HOLT Restructuring ideas, 7) European Value stocks with CFROI improvements, 8) Quality Staples and Health Care stocks at a reasonable price and momentum, 9) Low Vol Opportunities, and 10) Economic Moats at a reasonable price.

Valuation Method and Risk Statement

The HOLT methodology does not assign ratings or a target price to a security. It is an analytical tool that involves use of a set of proprietary quantitative algorithms and warranted value calculations, collectively called the HOLT valuation model, that are consistently applied to all the companies included in its database. The HOLT valuation model is a discounted cash flow model. Third-party data (including consensus earnings estimates) are systematically translated into a number of default variables and incorporated into the algorithms available in the HOLT valuation model. The source financial statement, pricing, and earnings data provided by outside data vendors are subject to quality control and may also be adjusted to more closely measure the underlying economics of firm performance. These adjustments provide consistency when analyzing a single company across time, or analyzing multiple companies across industries or national borders.

The default scenario that is produced by the HOLT valuation model establishes a warranted price that represents the expected mean value for a security based upon empirically derived fade algorithms that forecast a firm's future return on capital and growth rates over an extended period of time. As the third-party data are updated, the warranted price updates automatically. A company's future achieved return on capital or growth rate may differ from HOLT default forecast. Additional information about the HOLT methodology is available upon request.

HOLT Business Resilience Dashboard (HBRD) Disclaimer

The HOLT Business Resilience Dashboard (HBRD) is constructed by applying systematic processes on publicly available records and third-party data to generate quantitative measures. The HBRD consistently assigns scores using a transparent combination of metrics and weights across financial, environmental and governance inputs. Individual companies can be scored on a global-size and/or region-size relative basis. The HBRD is also translated into five textual assessments (e.g. "Highest" or "Lowest") based on their quintile percentile rank. For further details on the HBRD methodology HOLT Business Resilience Primer please contact UBS Securities LLC, 11 Madison Avenue, New York, NY 10010, USA, Attention: Investment Research. The HBRD does not constitute or imply any endorsement or recommendation of any individual company. UBS has not sought to independently verify information obtained from public and third-party sources and makes no representations or warranties as to accuracy, completeness or reliability of such information due to inconsistent reporting of data by companies. Additionally, as global laws, guidelines and regulations in relation to the tracking and provision of such data are evolving, all such disclosures are made on a non-reliance basis and are subject to change. Any figures, values or other data published in this report are neither designed nor administered in line with the standards of the IOSCO Principles for Financial Benchmarks or the EU Benchmarks Regulation (EU) 2016/1011 or any other benchmark related regulatory guidelines and as such you are prohibited from using those figures, values or data in a way which would amount to use of a financial benchmark under those regimes (or any equivalent rules or regulations in any global jurisdiction).

HOLT transferred to UBS on October 1, 2024 – renamed as UBS HOLT. The UBS HOLT Lens website and materials will be transitioning to UBS branding over time, with expected full redesign to UBS in time.

Investing in structured investments involves significant risks. For a detailed discussion of the risks involved in investing in any particular structured investment, you must read the relevant offering materials for that investment. Structured investments are unsecured obligations of a particular issuer with returns linked to the performance of an underlying asset. Depending on the terms of the investment, investors could lose all or a substantial portion of their investment based on the performance of the underlying asset. Investors could also lose their entire investment if the issuer becomes insolvent. UBS does not guarantee in any way the obligations or the financial condition of any issuer or the accuracy of any financial information provided by any issuer. Structured investments are not traditional investments and investing in a structured investment is not equivalent to investing directly in the underlying asset. Structured investments may have limited or no liquidity, and investors should be prepared to hold their investment to maturity. The return of structured investments may be limited by a maximum gain, participation rate or other feature. Structured investments may include call features and, if a structured investment is called early, investors would not earn any further return and may not be able to reinvest in similar investments with similar terms. Structured investments include costs and fees which are generally embedded in the price of the investment. The tax treatment of a structured investment may be complex and may differ from a direct investment in the underlying asset. UBS and its employees do not provide tax advice. Investors should consult their own tax advisor about their own tax situation before investing in any securities.

Important Information About Sustainable Investing Strategies: Sustainable investing strategies aim to consider and incorporate environmental, social and governance (ESG) factors into investment process and portfolio construction. Strategies across geographies approach ESG analysis and incorporate the findings in a variety of ways. Incorporating ESG factors or sustainable investing considerations may inhibit the portfolio manager's ability to participate in certain investment opportunities that otherwise would be consistent with its investment objective and other principal investment strategies. The returns on a portfolio incorporating ESG factors or sustainable investing considerations may be lower or higher than portfolios where ESG factors, exclusions, or other sustainability issues are not considered by the portfolio manager, and the investment opportunities available to such portfolios may differ.
