Qingdao TGOOD Electric

1H26 NDR Takeaways: Data center order wins and ~30% grid order growth were the bright spots

Management's comments on TGOOD's data center order wins and strong domestic positioning in prefabricated substations increased our confidence in our OW rating: (1) Data center order growth accelerated, reaching RMB 1bn in 8M26 vs. RMB 500mn in 1H. Management expects Southeast Asia wins in 2H and is in active discussions with U.S. CSPs to supply 110kV prefabricated substations for data centers, where demand is strong; (2) Overseas, the company expects to secure >RMB 2bn of orders from Saudi Arabia (doubling YoY) and sees potential for further breakthroughs in Europe and Australia; (3) Domestic orders rose <10% YoY despite a ~60% drop in 1H renewable installations, as share gains limited the decline in renewable orders to ~20%, while grid and industrial/data center orders were robust (~30% growth each), underscoring solid execution. At <20x 1-year forward P/E and 23% earnings CAGR over 26-28E, the valuation looks attractive.

- Data center orders reached RMB1bn in 8M26, climbing from RMB 500mn in FY25 and 1H26. While most orders are domestic, the company is prioritizing two overseas markets: the Middle East and Southeast Asia. In Southeast Asia, many data centers are being built by Chinese enterprises expanding abroad; the company plans to follow and support domestic clients as they bid for and deliver power-supply solution packages. Management expects several high-value projects to move into implementation this year, creating revenue opportunities. North America remains in a preparation/observation phase, with no material progress yet.
- Opportunities abound for North American data center orders for high-voltage prefabricated substations (110kV+), TGOOD sees a favorable setup. U.S. data centers often connect at 35kV, not due to reluctance to use 110kV+, but because substation capacity—especially prefabricated units—is tight. The company is targeting data center operators and EPCs and has made early progress. It can integrate already certified transformer and switchgear brands (vs. Chinese brands). Its key edge is an integrated, end-to-end offering in prefabricated modular (skid) form, with core components self-branded or third-party based on customer preference. Management says global majors are yet to deliver a complete package given the execution complexity (segmentation, layout, cabling, interconnections).
- Grid orders up 30% yoy. Total orders are up ~5–10%, yoy weighed down mainly by the renewables segment: Industry installations fell ~60% in 1H, while the company's renewables orders declined only ~20%, implying share gains. Grid-side orders rose >30% on market share gains from the Southern Grid, more favorable tender policies and wider adoption of pre-fabricated solutions by the grids. Orders from non-grid customers (industrial/data centers) also climbed by 30% yoy in 1H, driven by data centers and other sectors like oil, coal and chemicals, as prefabricated solutions replace traditional civil-construction substations, including among SOEs. Excluding Saudi, management expects overseas orders to roughly double with improvements in Europe and Australia.

Summary Investment Thesis and Valuation

Investment Thesis

TGOOD is a leading global manufacturer of prefabricated substations and operator of China's largest EV charging network (~20%+ market share). We have an OW rating on the name as we see multiple under-appreciated growth drivers: (1) expanding overseas exposure and domestic tailwinds from grid investment for electrical equipment; (2) the EV charging business has pivoted to an asset-light model with sustained attributable profit growth; and (3) data center contracts and the development of HVPAC/SST technology offer growth optionality yet to be priced in.

Valuation

Our Jun-27 PT of Rmb 42/sh is based on a sum-of-the-parts methodology. We apply a ~20x FY27-28E P/E to the electrical equipment segment by referencing TGOOD's peers and a ~20x P/E to the EV charging segment given an improving earnings outlook.

Other key takeaways from the 1H26 NDR call

- Competitive landscape for pre-fabricated substations: The high-voltage prefabricated substation market is largely led by Chinese manufacturers, with roughly five major suppliers, most of them China-based. In Saudi projects, multiple Chinese players are participating, with the company capturing about half of the related work. Overseas, Hitachi can supply high-voltage prefabricated substations, but long lead times and higher costs make it difficult to compete with Chinese vendors. Global OEMs such as Siemens are more likely to focus on individual products (e.g., switchgear, GIS). If global OEMs seek to enter the >100kV prefabricated segment, lengthy know-how ramp-up timelines could mean the market is already occupied by Chinese suppliers by the time their solutions are launched.
- Updates on the Saudi Arabia project: All pre-tender preparations have been completed (such as factory audits/inspections, shortlist process, etc.). In June, the company was successfully shortlisted for Saudi projects below 380kV—reported as the first such entrant both in China and globally. The team is now waiting for Saudi Energy to open bidding, with timing driven by the counterparty, but management views order visibility as largely secured. Saudi's five-year plan calls for 126 standardized prefabricated substations, with the first batch of ~20 expected to be tendered this year; assuming a ~50% win rate similar to last year, the company targets ~10 sets, implying ~RMB 2–3bn value (Expected gross margin is ~35–40%). If Saudi tenders the sizable prefabricated-substation package by year-end, overseas orders could exceed ~RMB 3.0bn this year (vs. ~RMB 1.2bn last year), though related revenue is expected to be recognized mainly next year, keeping this year's overseas revenue flat to slightly down.

Earnings and PT changes

- We raise our 2026–28E earnings forecasts by 1–5% to reflect order momentum in the Electrical Equipment segment and continued tailwinds from the data center business. Accordingly, we lift our PT to Rmb42/sh from Rmb40 and maintain our OW rating.

Risks to Rating and Price Target

Downside risks include lower-than-expected utilization of EV charging piles and demand for electrical equipment, slower-than-expected overseas expansion, and slower-than-expected growth in data center-related business.

Explanation of Equity Research Ratings, Designations and Analyst(s) Coverage Universe:

J.P. Morgan uses the following rating system: Overweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will outperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst’s, or the Research Analyst’s team’s, coverage universe); Neutral (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will perform in line with the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst’s, or the Research Analyst’s team’s, coverage universe); and Underweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst’s, or the Research Analyst’s team’s, coverage universe). NR is Not Rated. In this case, J.P. Morgan has removed the rating and, if applicable, the price target, for this stock because of either a lack of a sufficient fundamental basis or for legal, regulatory or policy reasons. The previous rating and, if applicable, the price target, no longer should be relied upon. An NR designation is not a recommendation or a rating. Some stocks under coverage have a rating but no price target; in these cases, we expect the stock will outperform/perform in line/underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst’s, or the Research Analyst’s team’s, coverage universe of the relevant duration of the region. In our Asia (ex-Australia and ex-India) and U.K. small- and mid-cap Equity Research, each stock’s expected total return is compared to the expected total return of a benchmark country market index, not to those Research Analysts' coverage universe. If it does not appear in the Important Disclosures section of this report, the certifying Research Analyst's coverage universe can be found on J.P. Morgan's Research website, <https://www.jpmorganmarkets.com>.
