MARA Q2: Waiting for the first AI rerating catalyst

MARA Holdings (MARA) released Q2 2026 results. MARA continues to make progress on its AI pivot - expanding its portfolio of powered infrastructure and building strategic execution partnerships. The management remains confident in signing at least two AI deals by year-end, reiterating continued commercial momentum across multiple sites. We believe a commercial AI contract could be a re-rating catalyst for MARA.

Recent transactions can expand MARA's planned power portfolio to 4.2 GW:

- Matagorda County (2 GW, Texas): The Matagorda site represents 2 GW of potential power capacity in Texas. The $600Mn purchase price is linked to development milestones including Batch Zero approval. MARA expects the site to scale up to initial 1 GW by Q3'27e and full 2 GW by 2028e.
- Long Ridge acquisition (1 GW, Ohio): MARA is advancing on Long Ridge acquisition, waiting for FERC approval. Long Ridge has ~1 GW potential capacity, including 505 MW power generation and 200 MW at the existing Hannibal site.
- 1.2 GW of owned power assets: MARA currently owns 1.2 GW of power assets across key markets like Texas and Ohio, including ~0.7 GW operating sites. Beyond this, MARA has ~0.6 GW of hosted capacity.

Starwood partnership gives MARA the ability to deliver AI capacity in a capital efficient model. MARA brings operating and planned power assets, while Starwood (not covered) adds engineering, procurement, construction, and development capabilities backed by more than 7 GW of delivered infrastructure for many of the world's leading hyperscalers and frontier AI companies. Under the partnership, MARA is progressing lease discussions across multiple sites. The management remains confident to sign at least two leases before year-end.

MARA continues to build for a flexible business model: MARA continues to progress on new AI compatible site acquisition, lease discussion in partnership with Starwood and leverage the Exaion platform to offer sovereign grade AI and HPC deployments in Europe (and now advancing opportunities outside Europe).

VALUATION METHODOLOGYMARA Holdings Inc.

We value MARA using a SOTP approach - 1. EV of Bitcoin mining business, at ~8x EV/27E' Adjusted EBITDA; 2. Value of Bitcoin holdings at current BTC prices, and (iii) $3Mn/MW value for incremental power available for AI deployments. We rate MARA Market-Perform (PT$17).

RISKSMARA Holdings Inc.

Downside risks

Marathon's mining operations could face challenges from environmental groups on energy consumption and usage of thermal power, and its impact on environment.

Marathon relies on external partners for power and that could further impact production, if the partners divert capacity to other ventures. Marathon could get diluted in their share of network, if the hashpower wars continue, and Marathon is unable to add capacity

Upside risks

Marathon being the largest miner could continue to add capacity globally, in partnership with other players and governments

Commercial validation of MARA's AI pivot can lead potential upside re-rating
