Margin fears overdone; 2027 re-acceleration on liquid-cooled T3 and 1.6T

Price Target (Jun-27):NT$3,700.00

We recently met with Accton's management, and the overall message was constructive on medium- to long-term demand trends. Near term, we trim our 2026 EPS estimate by 5% to reflect the AWS T3 transition in 4Q26 and margin headwinds from rising memory costs. Looking ahead, we raise our 2027/2028 EPS forecasts by 1%/3% to reflect the dual upside drivers from liquid-cooled AWS T3 modules and 1.6T switches. Accton stock has underperformed the TWSE by ~22% over the past three months on margin dilution concerns and AWS supply-chain noise. We believe these fears are overdone and expect market sentiment to turn more constructive as consignment adoption becomes better understood. With a 54% EPS CAGR over 2026–28E, we recommend investors accumulate on the recent weakness. Stay OW with a Jun-27 PT of NT$3,700, based on 25x 12M fwd EPS.

- Better GM and reduced cash flow pressure from consignment. Accton has made solid progress in customer negotiations to adopt consignment since August, primarily for memory (now >20% of BoM cost). While consignment created a 5–10% headwind to September revenue, it helped September GM to rebound to near 2Q26 levels. We expect the impact to become more meaningful from late 4Q26/1Q27, supporting a firmer margin trajectory. We believe broader consignment adoption bodes well for valuations, given lower working capital pressure and improved margin visibility.
- AWS liquid cooling: near-term friction, 1H27 inflection intact. Management flagged strong AI card growth in 3Q26, but a slower-than-expected liquid cooling ramp. This aligns with our research (link) suggesting AWS is hitting execution friction in the air-to-liquid transition for T3 servers. Consequently, we expect a more muted 4Q26 for AI cards despite solid underlying demand. Looking further out, management reiterated customers remain aggressive on liquid cooling adoption and expects penetration to reach ~50% by end-2Q27. Management also indicated liquid-cooled modules carry higher ASPs and better margins given higher manufacturing complexity, contrary to our prior assumption of dollar-content erosion.
- Continued 800G share gains; 1.6T ramps in 2H27. Management highlighted ongoing share gains at its second CSP customer on the new 800G programs. We expect this customer to contribute ~20–25% of total revenue in 3Q26, with a healthy margin profile. The company expects 1.6T programs to begin contributing from 3Q27 and sees 1.6T as a major growth driver in 2H27. 1.6T ASP per port can reach up to ~4x versus 800G when optical and liquid-cooled solutions are adopted, which is supportive of higher content per system and potentially better margins for Accton. Overall, we forecast 128%/89% YoY growth in Accton's data center switch revenue in 2026/2027.
- Aggressive capacity build signals sustained growth into 2027. Accton is expanding across five manufacturing sites. Management expects total capacity to be up ~50% versus 2025 levels by year-end, followed by another ~30% increase in 2027, an encouraging signal of demand visibility into next year. Broader adoption of consignment should also ease part of the cash-flow burden tied to this capacity build.

Investment Thesis, Valuation and Risks

Accton (Overweight; Price Target: NT$3,700.00)

Investment Thesis
Accton stock has underperformed the TWSE by ~22% over the past three months on margin dilution concerns and AWS supply-chain noise. We believe these fears are overdone and expect market sentiment to turn more constructive as consignment adoption becomes better understood. With a 54% EPS CAGR over 2026–28E, we recommend investors accumulate on the recent weakness.

Valuation
Our Jun-27 PT of NT$3,700 is based on 25x 12M fwd EPS, at the higher end of historical up-cycle valuations, given the accelerating datacenter whitebox switch upgrade cycle, secular AI demand, and potential re-rating opportunity from the optical biz.

Risks to Rating and Price Target
Key downside risks include supply constraints, slower-than-expected 800G/1.6T adoption, and intensifying competition from Nvidia and OEMs in Ethernet switches.

J.P. Morgan ratings or designations: OW = Overweight, N= Neutral, UW = Underweight, NR = Not Rated

Explanation of Equity Research Ratings, Designations and Analyst(s) Coverage Universe:
J.P. Morgan uses the following rating system: Overweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will outperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); Neutral (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will perform in line with the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); and Underweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe. NR is Not Rated. In this case, J.P. Morgan has removed the rating and, if applicable, the price target, for this stock because of either a lack of a sufficient fundamental basis or for legal, regulatory or policy reasons. The previous rating and, if applicable, the price target, no longer should be relied upon. An NR designation is not a recommendation or a rating. Some stocks under coverage have a rating but no price target; in these cases, we expect the stock will outperform/perform in line/underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe of the relevant duration of the region. In our Asia (ex-Australia and ex-India) and U.K. small- and mid-cap Equity Research, each stock's expected total return is compared to the expected total return of a benchmark country market index, not to those Research Analysts' coverage universe. If it does not appear in the Important Disclosures section of this report, the certifying Research Analyst's coverage universe can be found on J.P. Morgan's Research website, https://www.jpmorganmarkets.com.
