SNOW and MDB will be reporting their 2Q27 earnings next week. As we head into earnings, we think both SNOW and MDB are well positioned to deliver healthy beats and raise their full year FY27 guidance. However, the valuation multiple for both stocks have fully recovered from the low-point reached in Apr-26 and now sit at the high end of their two-year range. We think SNOW and MDB can hold the current valuation given the growth acceleration and potential for a beat-and-raise. However, to drive meaningful upside, MDB and SNOW would need to deliver more than a regular beat-and-raise.

MDB had provided a conservative initial guidance for FY27, and then raised it last quarter. As a result, the stock price (+30%) and valuation (+30%) have recovered steadily over the past three months (MongoDB 1Q27: Strong quarter, Mutced reaction). We think MDB can hold the current valuation, as the current FY27 guidance is based on conservative assumptions, providing ample room for progression. We estimate MDB can deliver revenue growth of 23%+ vs. current guidance and consensus of ~20%. Atlas revenue growth of >29% could drive meaningful upside for the stock.

SNOW delivered strong results last quarter, meaningfully raised FY27 revenue growth guidance, and provided encouraging commentary on AI product traction. As a result, the stock price (+90%) and valuation (+76%) have recovered steadily over the past three months (Snowflake 1Q27: A strong start to FY27). In the near-term, expectations for revenue/growth can help sustain the current elevated valuation multiple, BUT momentum on AI product traction will be critical to drive meaningful upside.

Consumption demand has helped both SNOW and MDB post strong results over the past five qtrs. We believe IaaS/PaaS consumption momentum remains strong, driven by the need for data estate preparation for AI adoption.

Beyond revenue growth, there remains a significant gap in GAAP Operating margin with SNOW at -20% vs. MDB at ~0% (FY27E), which makes us a bit cautious on SNOW's valuation. However, we acknowledge that SNOW delivered strong GaaP profitability improvement (+9pp) in FY26, and we expect a similar improvement in FY27.

Valuation multiples (EV/NTM Sales) for both SNOW and MDB are at the high-end of their two-year range. Still, we think SNOW and MDB can hold their current valuations given the growth acceleration and potential for a beat-and-raise. However, to drive meaningful upside, we think MDB will need a positive surprise on Atlas growth (29%+) and SNOW would need strong momentum on AI product traction combined with continued core growth.

Over the longer term, we continue to favor MongoDB due to its exposure to a large and fast-growing market and its potential to benefit from AI adoption. For SNOW, we are encouraged by the innovation and execution focus under the new CEO. However, we remain concerned that competition is increasing in its core market and that SNOW's newer initiatives are still in the early stages. Therefore, we choose to remain on the sidelines.

INVESTMENT IMPLICATIONS

Heading into the 2Q27 earnings, SNOW and MDB have fully recovered from the low-point reached in April-26. Both are trading at the high end of their valuation ranges over the past two years. On a growth-adjusted basis, both are trading at parity. We think SNOW and MDB can hold their current valuations, as we see meaningful runway for FY27 guidance progression. However, to drive meaningful upside, we think MDB will need a positive surprise on Atlas growth (29%+) and SNOW would need strong momentum on AI product traction combined with continued core growth.

Snowflake (PT $250, Market-Perform): Snowflake has delivered solid results over the past few quarters, helped by stabilization in key business metrics, strong consumption demand and more recently, incremental traction with AI products. Given our growth expectations, we continue to like the near-term setup for SNOW, despite its full valuation.

Over the longer term, we are encouraged by the innovation and execution focus under the new CEO. However, we remain concerned that competition is increasing in its core market. Snowflake's newer initiatives are still in the early stages, and we need to see sustained proof points before assuming continued future growth contributions. Therefore, we choose to remain on the sidelines and maintain our Market-Perform rating. We maintain our price target for SNOW at $250, based on a target P/S multiple of 11x.

MongoDB (PT $449, Outperform): MongoDB has delivered steady results over the past five quarters, helped by consumption demand and solid execution from management. After a solid beat-and-raise last quarter, the valuation multiple is now fully recovered. We think the stock can hold its current valuation as there is meaningful room for FY27 guidance progression. However, to drive meaningful upside, MDB will need to deliver a positive surprise on Atlas growth (29%+). We maintain our Outperform rating and price target of $449, based on a target P/S multiple of 9.5x.

DETAILS

MDB and SNOW will report their 2Q27 earnings on Sep-1st and Sep-2nd, respectively. As we head into earnings, we like the near-term setup for both SNOW and MDB. We think both MDB and SNOW have meaningful runway to raise their full-year guidance. We believe that a beat-and-raise should be sufficient to hold the current valuation level.

To drive significant upside, we think:

- MDB would need to deliver Atlas revenue growth of 29%+, which we think is feasible, but is currently not in our model.
- For SNOW, commentary and preferably data, on continued AI traction will be important along with a healthy beat-and-raise showing the core business is growing and benefiting from an AI attach.

SETUP FOR UPCOMING 2Q27 RESULTS

MDB: We expect MDB to continue to deliver healthy beat-and-raise in 2Q27 results

- We think MDB can deliver ~27% revenue growth for 2Q27 vs. guidance of 24% and consensus of 25%. (Exhibit 2)
- We expect Atlas cloud growth of ~28% in 2Q27 vs. 29% last qtrs, as YoY comps gets tougher. Still, the broad consumption demand environment remains strong. Atlas growth of 29%+ could be a big positive for the stock.

SNOW: We expect SNOW to deliver strong results

- We expect SNOW to deliver ~33% product revenue growth vs. guidance of 30% and consensus of 31%.
 - Our expectation for SNOW is based on 1) the improving trends in key business metrics, 2) strong consumption demand momentum across IaaS/PaaS, and 3) incremental success with its AI product portfolio over the past few quarters, as discussed above.

EXPECTATION FOR FY27

MDB: We continue to see meaningful upside to FY27 (Jan end) guidance

- MDB had provided a conservative initial guidance for FY27, and then raised it last qtr. We think that FY27 guidance is still conservative (Exhibit 5).
- Total revenue growth: For FY27, we think MDB can deliver 23%+ revenue growth vs. current guidance and consensus of ~20%. We think MSB's current guidance is based on conservative assumptions for 2H27.
- Atlas revenue growth: Atlas revenue is ~72% of total revenue. Current FY27 guidance call for Atlas revenue growth of 25%. This guidance implies ~23% YoY growth in 2H27, as compared to ~29% growth in past four qtrs and 26% guidance for 2Q27. (Exhibit 5)
- Other Subscription revenue growth: Other Subscription revenue is currently ~28% of total revenue. Current FY27 revenue growth guidance implies 'Other Subscription' business to decline by ~8% in 2H27. We think such a decline in 'Other Subscription' revenue is unlikely.
- Lastly, we do not think MDB fully passed the revenue beat in 1Q27 to FY27 guidance. (Exhibit 3)

SNOW: FY27 (Jan end) guidance can be raised higher

- We think SNOW can achieve product revenue growth of ~34% in FY27 vs. current guidance and consensus of 31%.
- Our expectation is based on 1) strong results for 1Q27 and guidance for 2Q27, 2) Strong demand environment, 2) Traction with AI products and 3) reasonable comps in 2H27.
- Continued momentum on AI product traction is also critical for SNOW.

WILL CONSUMPTION DEMAND MOMENTUM HOLD IN FY27?

Strength in broader IaaS/PaaS consumption demand is now well-known and widely expected. Consumption demand has helped both SNOW and MDB post strong results through FY26 (Jan end). We believe IaaS/PaaS consumption momentum remains strong driven by the need for data estate preparation for AI adoption.

As AI matures and zero-copy technologies and offerings improve in FY28 and beyond we could see organizations shift from duplicating data into SNOW towards leveraging zero copy. We are watching to see if this trend materializes.

VALUATION

Valuation multiples (EV/NTM Sales) for both SNOW and MDB have fully recovered from the low point reached in Apr-26. Current valuations are at the high-end of their two-year range. Valuation multiples has climbed back ~85% for MDB and 150% for SNOW. Compared to their respective revenue growth profile, SNOW and MDB are trading at parity (Exhibit 4)

PROFITABILITY PROFILE

Beyond revenue growth, there remains a significant gap in the profitability profile, with SNOW at -20% GAAP Operating margin vs. MDB at ~0% (FY27E), which makes us a bit cautious on SNOW's valuation. However, we acknowledge that SNOW delivered strong GAAP profitability improvement (+9pp) in FY26, and we expect a similar improvement in the current FY27.

WHAT TO DO WITH THE STOCKS?

Current valuation are at the high-end of their two-year range. Still, we think MDB and SNOW can hold their current valuations given the growth acceleration and potential for a beat-and-raise

However, to drive meaningful upside, we believe MDB and SNOW would need to deliver more than a regular beat-and-raise.

- For MDB, we think Atlas growth of 29%+ could meaningfully raise FY27 expectations and drive significant upside for the stock.
- For SNOW, a beat-and-raise, coupled with continued momentum on AI product traction will be critical to drive meaningful upside.

MONGODB

For MongoDB, we think delivering stable revenue growth is key. Heading into 2Q27, we think MongoDB is well positioned to deliver a healthy beat and raise. We think current FY27 guidance is based on conservative assumptions, providing ample room for progression. Our expectation is based on Atlas cloud growth of ~28%, given tougher comps. If MDB can deliver Atlas revenue growth of 29%+, it could drive significant upside for the stock.

To provide some context:

- At the end of 4Q26 (Jan-26), MDB provided conservative guidance for FY27. As a result, the stock sold off ~25%.
 - Initial FY27 guidance was ~17% year-over-year revenue growth versus 23% in FY26.
 - At the time, we had estimated that MDB could potentially deliver 21% revenue growth in FY27. (MongoDB 4Q26: It's starting to feel like a Q4 ritual).

- Last quarter (1Q27), MongoDB delivered healthy results and raised FY27 revenue growth guidance to 19.3%. As a result, the stock price (+30%) and valuation have recovered steadily over the past three months. (MongoDB 1Q27: Strong quarter, Muted reaction)

We expect MDB to continue to deliver healthy beat-and-raise in 2Q27 results

- Even after a solid beat-and-raise in 1Q27, we think MongoDB can continue to deliver a healthy beat-and-raise in 2Q27.
- For 2Q27, MDB has guided to ~24% revenue growth — based on ~26% growth in Atlas Cloud (72% of revenue) and ~20% growth in 'Other Subscription' revenue (approximately 28% of revenue). (Exhibit 5)
 - We think that MDB can deliver ~27% revenue growth for 2Q27, based on our expectation of 28% growth in Atlas Cloud and 22% growth in 'Other Subscription' revenue.
- We expect Atlas cloud growth of ~28% in 2Q27 vs. 29% last qtrs, as YoY comps gets tougher. Still, the broad consumption demand environment remains strong. Atlas growth of 29%+ could be a significant positive for the stock.

We continue to see meaningful upside to FY27 (Jan end) guidance

- MDB had provided a conservative initial guidance for FY27, and then raised it last qtr. We think that FY27 guidance is still conservative (Exhibit 5).
 - Total revenue growth: Last qtr, MDB raised FY27 total revenue growth guidance to ~20%. We estimate that MDB can deliver 23% YoY growth if not better.
 - Atlas revenue growth: Atlas revenue is ~72% of total revenue. Current FY27 guidance calls for Atlas revenue growth of 25%. This guidance implies ~23% YoY growth in 2H27, as compared to ~29% growth in past four qtrs and 26% guidance for 2Q27. (Exhibit 5)
 - Other Subscription revenue growth: Other Subscription revenue is currently ~28% of total revenue. Current FY27 revenue growth guidance implies 'Other Subscription' business to decline by ~8% in 2H27. We think such a decline in 'Other Subscription' revenue is unlikely. This revenue line has grown at ~7% for last 8 qtrs. And even though this revenue is from term licenses, ~75% of contract value is recognized as recurring maintenance. So, we think, such large decline in growth is difficult.
- Lastly, we do not think MDB fully passed the revenue beat in 1Q27 to FY27 guidance. (Exhibit 3)

AI INITIATIVES

MongoDB acknowledges that their database is used for back-end operations, which while important and having long term AI value, is not the main focus for AI investment today. In addition, the company is focused on making their database the best it can be rather than trying to compete against the large AI platform vendors from the hyperscalers and now the AI Labs. This focus means that they will not participate as much in the AI revenue lift near-term but over time as their data is used more and more by AI the usage of their database will increase driving revenue growth.

While focusing on the core database and not all the AI platform capabilities that SNOW, the hyperscalers, the AI Labs, and numerous enterprise app vendors are focusing on, limits some upside, it also removes the potential partner conflicts, substantial investment requirements and strong possibility that those AI platform capabilities will be captured by the hyperscalers, AI Labs and some apps vendors.

BOTTOM LINE

Overall, we see two likely outcomes for 2Q27 results:

1. Atlas revenue grows at 27-28%, as tougher comps check the YoY growth : MBD can deliver healthy beat and raise for FY27, as the current guidance is built on conservative assumptions.

2. Atlas maintain 29%+ growth cadence: This could meaningfully raise full year expectation and could drive significant upside for the stock.

Longer term, we continue to like MongoDB due to its exposure to a large and fast-growing market and its potential to benefit from AI adoption.

SNOWFLAKE

Our expectations for Snowflake's near-term setup are based on 1) the stabilization/improvement of key business metrics, 2) strong consumption demand momentum across IaaS/PaaS, and 3) incremental success with its AI product portfolio over the past few quarters.

- Net Revenue Retention (NRR) rate, As we highlight in Exhibit 6, subscription revenue growth for Snowflake is highly correlated with its NRR. After declining for multiple years, NRR began to stabilize in 2Q25, and has been improving over the last four qtrs. As expected, this stabilization is reflected in revenue growth as well.
- CRPO growth is another predictive metric for near-term revenue growth, and it has been strong for the past five quarters (Exhibit 7)
- New customers/workload addition: Over the past few quarters, management has highlighted momentum in new workload adoption. We see this momentum reflected in key metrics as CRPO growth is ahead of subscription revenue growth, which is ahead of NRR.

From a near-term growth expectations perspective, we are optimistic for SNOW, given this combination of the healthy business metrics (NRR and CRPO), momentum in new workload adoption and strong overall IaaS/PaaS demand environment.

From a business perspective, we see the stabilization over the past few quarters are a result of multiple factors:

1. Normalization of Y/Y consumption demand and flush-out of difficult compares from post pandemic demand surge.
2. Increased focus on product innovation and sales execution.
3. Success with newer AI initiatives and less than expected negative impact from some headwinds (Iceberg).
4. Some stabilization of competitive pressure.
5. Overall macro benefit as projected that were delayed in CY24, restarted in CY25, and Cloud migrations has increased as IT moves data / workloads to the Cloud to meet future AI needs.

To provide some context:

- At the end of 4Q26 (Jan-26), SNOW provided, what we thought was, a very healthy guidance for FY27. Yet the stock was roughly flat over the next three months. Snowflake 4Q26: Solid quarter and solid guide
- Initial FY27 guidance was ~27% year-over-year subscription revenue growth versus 29% in FY26.
- At the time, we had estimated that SNOW could potentially deliver 29% revenue growth in FY27
- Last quarter (1Q27), SNOW delivered strong results and raised FY27 revenue growth guidance to ~31%. As a result, the stock price (+90%) and valuation have recovered steadily over the past three months
- SNOW also provided strong commentary on AI product traction, which along with the beat-and-raise, helped re-rate the stock.
- SNOW's valuation multiple (EV/Sales) has also climbed up by 75%, from 9.4x (pre-1Q27 results) to ~16.5x currently.

For 2Q27, we expect SNOW to deliver strong results

- We expect SNOW to deliver ~33% product revenue growth vs. guidance of 30% and consensus of 31%.
 - Our expectations for SNOW is based on 1) the improving trends in key business metrics, 2) strong consumption demand momentum across IaaS/PaaS, and 3) incremental success with its AI product portfolio over the past few quarters, as discussed above.

FY27 (Jan end) guidance can be raised higher

- Given the strong results for 1Q27 and guidance for 2Q27, along with 1) Strong demand environment, 2) Traction with AI products and 3) reasonable comps — we think FY27 guidance has room for progression.
- We think SNOW can achieve product revenue growth of ~34% in FY27 vs. current guidance and consensus of 31%.
- Continued momentum on AI product traction is also critical for SNOW.

Overall, in the near-term, expectations for revenue/growth can help sustain the current elevated valuation multiple, BUT momentum on AI product traction will be critical to drive meaningful upside.

Snowflake has launched multiple new product initiatives to expand beyond the data warehousing market and increase its TAM. We continue to think that these newer initiatives are still in the early stages and face numerous competitors, including the largest cloud vendors. We need to see sustained proof points before assuming meaningful growth contributions over longer-term.

We note that focusing on AI has the potential to deliver meaningful upside for SNOW and management commentary would point to that possibility but it also places SNOW in competition with their hyperscaler partners and the AI Labs. While we believe SNOW can capture some upside we believe that long term most of the AI will occur where the system of record data resides which is at the enterprise app vendors and the hyperscalers.

VALUATION METHODOLOGYMongoDB Inc

We apply an EV/Sales multiple of 9.5x to our forward sales/share estimate 12 months out ($42.7) per share and add cash of $43.6 per share, arriving at price target of $449.

Snowflake Inc

We apply an EV/Sales multiple of 11x to our forward sales estimate 12 months out ($22.5) per share and add cash of $2.9 per share, arriving at price target of $250.

RISKSMongoDB Inc

Downside risks to our target price:

Growth slowdown, we think, is the biggest concern to our thesis. Slowdown in cloud business, similar to what we have seen with hyper-scalers (AWS and Azure) could significantly hurt MongoDB's revenue growth. Increase in competitive pressure from existing competitors and new entrants could hurt growth/profitability/valuation.

Margin deterioration – due to significant increase in cloud infrastructure cost or opex spending could hurt profitability and valuation.

Snowflake Inc

Beyond the macroeconomic risks already mentioned, the Risk to our forecasts for SNOW include:

Upside risks: 1) SNOW could successfully expand into adjacent market and meaning outperform our expectation; 2) Successful M&A driven expansion; 3) Competitive pressure may not prove to be as intense as we expect.

Downside risks: 1) Increased competition from leading IaaS/PaaS vendors; 2) Change in customer's priority; 3) Data management and analytics could shift to the SaaS vendors, eating into SNOW's market opportunity
