Teradyne's 3Q26 revenue and earnings exceeded JPMe and consensus, driven by strength in AI-led Semiconductor Test and Product Test by a lesser extent. Semiconductor Test revenue grew +77% y/y, versus +71% y/y for JPMe , while Product Test grew +57% y/y, versus +30% y/y for JPMe. Teradyne highlighted broad-based AI-driven demand, but called out Memory and HDD Test, as well as high-speed interconnect test, in particular. The EPS beat (+15% and +9% vs. JPMe and consensus) was outsized relative to the revenue beat (+3% vs. both JPMe and consensus) as gross margin tracked ~50 bps higher versus both JPMe and consensus, combined with lower-than-guided opex intensity (27% of sales vs. 29-30% guided).

Looking forward, the 4Q26 guide calls for revenue growth of +20% y/y at midpoint and implies +64% y/y for 2026. While this was ahead of both JPMe and consensus, the result may have fallen short of elevated investor expectations with the ultimate share price reaction likely hinging on 2027 commentary on tomorrow's earning call, specifically related to any incremental details around the timing and magnitude of 1H27 VIP ASIC and Merchant GPU ramps, along with the durability of the momentum in Memory Test.

Teradyne is hosting an earnings call tomorrow, October 28, at 8:30 AM ET, which can be accessed via webcast.

Investment Thesis, Valuation and Risks

Teradyne (Overweight; Price Target: $465.00)

Investment Thesis

We are Overweight on Teradyne given the secular catalysts that are fundamentally repositioning the company from a cyclical ATE supplier towards a structurally advantaged platform at the center of AI infrastructure test. Our thesis revolves 1) merchant GPU dual-sourcing representing a generational share-gain opportunity, 2) custom/VIP ASIC proliferation driven by hyperscaler and Neocloud aspirations to develop proprietary silicon, 3) memory test inflecting on rising HBM complexity and fab buildouts, and 4) potential upside from a vertically integrated SiPh/CPO offering as optical interconnect test demand scales. Net-net, we see a structurally improving growth and margin profile that is increasingly less tethered to traditional ATE cycles and more reflective of durable, AI-driven demand vectors, supporting a premium valuation multiple.

Valuation

We are increasing our December 2027 price target $465 from $450, based on valuing our 2028E EPS estimate at a ~30x P/E multiple. We believe the target multiple is justified, as it is largely in-line with the average trading multiple at which the shares have trended in recent years, accounting for the improved revenue and earnings trajectory driven by increasing leverage to AI tailwinds.

Risks to Rating and Price Target

Industry Downside Risks

Slower transition to 3 nm technology. If the transition to 3 nm technology progresses more slowly than anticipated, it could delay the expected increase in demand for testing equipment, impacting revenue growth for companies like Teradyne.

Slower than expected growth of key markets. The company's growth projections are heavily reliant on the expansion of specific markets like Mobility and VIP ASIC. If these markets do not grow as expected, or if Teradyne fails to maintain or increase its market share in these segments, it could negatively impact the company's financial performance.

Company-Specific Downside Risks

Reduced testing intensity by major customers. If Apple reduces testing intensity and this trend is replicated by other customers, it could lead to a decrease in the TAM associated with the Mobility market, driving downside to Teradyne's estimates.

Limited ability to capture additional market share. If Teradyne is unable to capture more market share from competitors, such as being unable to continue to displace Advantest in the HBM segment, it could limit revenue growth and market expansion opportunities.

The chart(s) show J.P. Morgan's continuing coverage of the stocks; the current analysts may or may not have covered it over the entire period. J.P. Morgan ratings or designations: OW = Overweight, N= Neutral, UW = Underweight, NR = Not Rated

Explanation of Equity Research Ratings, Designations and Analyst(s) Coverage Universe:
J.P. Morgan uses the following rating system: Overweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will outperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); Neutral (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will perform in line with the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe); and Underweight (over the duration of the price target indicated in this report, we expect this stock will underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe. NR is Not Rated. In this case, J.P. Morgan has removed the rating and, if applicable, the price target, for this stock because of either a lack of a sufficient fundamental basis or for legal, regulatory or policy reasons. The previous rating and, if applicable, the price target, no longer should be relied upon. An NR designation is not a recommendation or a rating. Some stocks under coverage have a rating but no price target; in these cases, we expect the stock will outperform/perform in line/underperform the average total return of the stocks in the Research Analyst's, or the Research Analyst's team's, coverage universe of the relevant duration of the region. In our Asia (ex-Australia and ex-India) and U.K. small- and mid-cap Equity Research, each stock's expected total return is compared to the expected total return of a benchmark country market index, not to those Research Analysts' coverage universe. If it does not appear in the Important Disclosures section of this report, the certifying Research Analyst's coverage universe can be found on J.P. Morgan's Research website, https://www.jpmorganmarkets.com.
