CITI'S TAKE

We attended PackExpo and met with several of our covered companies, including ROK, DOV, CGNX, MMM, and VLTO, and came away constructive on the continued adoption of automation across packaging/printing markets. Based on our conversations with industry participants, we think the most consistent theme is the growing importance of differentiation through software, data, integrated solutions, new product development, and AI integration, which should enable multis to outgrow the underlying demand environment. The increasing emphasis on building partner ecosystems and offering integrated, solutions-based products (rather than standalone equipment) also continues to gain traction among customers/operators as these solutions can improve productivity, increase uptime, enhance labor efficiency, and lower operational cost, positioning the companies in our coverage to maintain/gain share over time. Cost inflation remains a watch-item, but companies appeared confident in their ability to pass pricing through to their customers.

Additional Thoughts — Growing emphasis on and investment in digitization, data management, and AI adoption among customers are supporting the demand outlook for our companies in the packaging/automation/printing markets beyond underlying market growth. For instance, the use of software/AI is enabling companies to optimize their workflows (e.g. predictive management, batch and packaging optimization). Similarly, the use of machine vision is helping with quality control/defect detection (e.g. a solution combining marking and coding by DOV/Markem-Imaje and inspection by CGNX). These use cases highlight the value proposition around connected hardware, software, controls, vision, and analytics into integrated workflows, leading to improved productivity and reduced cost of operations. New product introductions also remain a key lever for driving penetration and share gains in our view, particularly as customers seek upgrades that improve automation, reduce labor intensity, and simplify operations, and given our companies continue to prioritize internal investment in NPI, we see enhanced competitive differentiation supporting growth potential. End-market commentary was mostly constructive across food & beverage, pharma, logistics, and e-commerce-related applications, where automation, regulatory requirements, throughput needs, and changing consumer preferences continue to support investment activity. At the same time, we get the sense that spending remains disciplined and ROI-driven, with customers prioritizing projects that deliver measurable operational benefits, especially given a dynamic macro backdrop (higher interest rates and geopolitical and tariff uncertainty).

ROK — Speaking with ROK, we continue to see growing emphasis on software-defined automation, AI, and a solutions-based approach (e.g., integrating controls, MES, AMRs, vision, and business systems), which we think should position the company for solid long-term growth. ROK's customers remain focused on cost-out, modernization, and more autonomous operations to improve throughput, reduce labor requirements, and enable predictive optimization/maintenance, which we think is supporting underlying demand. ROK's integrated offerings, domain expertise, and strong installed base should support increased penetration and recurring software revenue. We continue to see long-term growth opportunities for ROK from greater automation adoption, increasingly autonomous operations, warehouse modernization, and future greenfield investments.

DOV (Markem-Imaje) — DOV appears broadly constructive on resilient demand across its key end markets (pharma, food & beverage, and consumer applications), with automation and regulatory requirements supporting continued investment. DOV highlighted that new product activity, data management offering, pricing, and share gain potential should position Markem-Imaje to outgrow the broader market, with other incremental opportunities (such as the transition to 2D codes) further supporting growth potential over time. We think MI's growing data-management capabilities could become a more meaningful growth driver as customers seek to aggregate production data, manage assets, improve uptime, and strengthen product traceability. DOV along with its partnering ecosystem (demo highlighted CGNX cameras with DOV's printer) is also offering solutions to further drive customer value/engagement.

CGNX — CGNX is leveraging AI-enabled machine vision and software innovations to expand adoption across a wider range of inspection and automation applications, which we think is supporting market penetration/drive growth. The company's focus appears to be on broadening the company's market and customer coverage under CEO Matt Moschner, while driving operational improvement, which we think should support enhanced/resilient profitability over time. While still early in adoption, we think One Vision is enabling CGNX's customers to train/scale solutions faster, with CGNX's established capabilities and customer relationships supporting differentiation as AI adoption broadens.

MMM — Speaking with MMM, we continue to see a strong emphasis on new product introduction as well as a solutions-based approach (e.g. broader packaging solutions provider rather than selling just tapes), which we think should position the company for above-market outgrowth. The ultimate goal remains optimized workflow and improved uptime (reduce jamming/downtime) for its customers and MMM's industry relationships and innovation-led products, should support increased penetration. A shift toward excellence led culture (focused on improving operational, sales, and product execution) under CEO Bill Brown, we think should support growth/profitability for MMM over time.

VLTO (Videojet and Esko) — VLTO highlighted that its marking and coding business continues to benefit from long-term resilient demand across food & beverage, consumer goods, and pharma markets (similar to DOV's MI), where reliability, uptime, and service remain critical, supporting VLTO's growth potential, in our view. We get the sense that NPIs are focused on making equipment faster, easier to operate, and more connected, which should drive replacement demand and share gains for VLTO as customers seek greater throughput with fewer experienced plant workers. VLTO's direct sales model and customer relationships further support its growth potential. Esko provides an additional growth opportunity through artwork management, helping customers accelerate packaging changes, shorten go-to-market processes, and manage regulatory updates.

3M Company

Company description

3M Co. is a diversified industrial and technology company with a broad portfolio of products serving general industrial, automotive, consumer goods, electronics, personal safety, security, construction, traffic safety, and energy markets. The company has core technology platforms shared across its three business groups: Safety and Industrial, Transportation and Electronics, and Consumer. Brands include Filtrete, Thinsulate, Scotch, Command and more. The company is headquartered in St. Paul, MN.

Investment strategy

We rate MMM a Neutral. Despite a solid portfolio of innovative products/offerings (difficult model for competitors to replicate) and the company's ability to leverage technology/data and data analytics to support margins, we think the current ongoing uncertainty relative to MMM's ultimate level of PFAS-related liabilities could weigh on valuation. However, we note that the potential benefit of management's increased focus on productivity – initiatives focused on supply chain optimization and manufacturing consolidation – coupled with MMM's ability to price could drive margins higher and help improve valuation over time.

Valuation

Our $183 target price is based on 19x our 2027 EPS estimate of $9.65. Our multiple balances improving operating execution by the company offset by mixed end market trends and litigation related uncertainty. Our TP is benchmarked against market multiples.

Risks

To the downside, MMM generates more than ~30% of sales from developing markets. MMM's Electronics business in particular accounts for a bulk of MMM's Asian exposure, is tied to more volatile trends in semiconductors, TVs, and overall Asian economic growth, and, given the possible continuation of macro uncertainty, could be poised for more moderate growth in the near-term. We also have to keep an eye on MMM's Industrial business that could weaken beyond expectations if macro uncertainty lingers. Finally, a challenge for MMM from a valuation perspective is the overhang of potential PFAS related liability and its magnitude, particularly if found liable for personal injury. These factors could prevent MMM from reaching our target price.

To the upside, MMM could surpass our target price if MMM's end markets recover faster than our expectation and macro uncertainty ebbs. Additionally, if potential PFAS-related liability were to be mitigated/removed by regulatory action (eg, EPA), then the company could materially outperform our target price.

Cognex Corp

Company description

CGNX is a leading global provider of machine vision products and solutions that address manufacturing and distribution challenges, with the company's products being used to automate manufacturing/distribution by tracking and inspecting discrete items, such as mobile phones, electric vehicle batteries, and e-commerce packages, by locating, identifying, inspecting, and measuring products. Its products include vision sensors, vision systems, 3D vision systems, barcode readers, barcode verifiers, vision software, and vision tools. Its solutions include alignment, dimensioning, item detection, edge intelligence, logistics barcode reading systems and tunnels, water identification, and tire inspection. CGNX customers operate in end markets, including automotive, logistics, and consumer electronics, and the company operates in the following geographical segments: United States, Europe, Greater China, and Other. The company was founded in 1981 and is headquartered in Natick, MA.

Investment strategy

We rate CGNX shares as Neutral. We think favorable long-term demand trends across CGNX's key end markets (supported by improving automation adoption), a solid portfolio of product/service offerings, and relatively good operational execution could support long-term earnings growth for the company. However, softer/weaker near-term end market outlook, a "show-me" element to the company's Emerging Customer initiative, as well as current valuation levels keep us on the sideline for now.

Valuation

Our $74 target price reflects a 35x target P/E multiple on our 2027 EPS estimate. The premium multiple (vs. S&P as well as close peers) reflects CGNX's strong positioning in the machine vision end market (which in the longer term remains an attractive end market, in our view) and the company's potential for strong topline/earnings growth (as a beneficiary of improving automation adoption trends). Over time, we think CGNX could deliver on its long-term targets of strong sales growth and meaningful operating margin expansion but in the near-term we remain cautious given CGNX's exposure to some cyclical/softer end markets and limited visibility (given shorter cycle business).

Risks

Softness in demand trends across CGNX's end markets could linger as macro uncertainty and tariff-induced economic slowdown could lead to CGNX's customers/potential customers delaying machine vision/automation adoption plans. Budget constraints and complicated technology remain key barriers to automation adoption and that companies (more smaller-and-medium sized) could "stay the course". CGNX's revenue is exposed to few large customers, which we think creates some choppiness for CGNX's top line as a material change in capex/opex plans by those large customers could pressure revenue/earnings (as we are currently seeing). International manufacturing footprint could lead to margin pressure if tariffs stay intact.

If the impact on the company from any of these factors proves to be more negative than we anticipate, the stock will likely have difficulty achieving our financial and price targets. Likewise, if any of these factors proves to have less of an effect than we anticipate, the stock could materially outperform our target. For instance, a relatively faster turnaround in CGNX's end markets could lead to a relatively faster ramp-up in the company's sales/EPS growth vs. our expectation.

Dover Corporation

Company description

Dover Corp. is a diversified manufacturer and provider of innovative equipment and components, specialty systems, and support services through its three operating segments: Engineered Systems, Fluids, and Refrigeration & Food Equipment. End markets include pumps and valves, retail fueling, printing and identification, and retail refrigeration. Top brands include Markem-Imaje, OPW, Anthony, Cook Compression and MS Printing Solutions. The company is headquartered in Downers Grove, IL.

Investment strategy

We rate DOV shares a Buy. We believe that DOV is poised for improving growth and profitability supported by improving tailwinds across its portfolio (e.g., refrigeration door case business and some stabilization to DOV's vehicle lift business).
Additionally, we believe that CEO Rich Tobin is likely to focus on operation improvements and drive margin expansion over the next 1-2 years. DOV's potential for margin expansion and disciplined capital allocation, in our view, is by the Street and could combine to drive solid EPS growth and margin expansion.

Valuation

Our $266 price target is based on 22.5x our 2027 EPS estimate of $11.80. With an increased focus on driving better operational efficiency under CEO Rich Tobin, we see DOV as deserving of a P/E multiple generally in-line with multi-industry peers.

Risks

Longer-than-expected destocking period and inconsistent or slower-than-expected progress on cost savings and operational excellence programs under CEO Rich Tobin could result in more moderate EPS growth vs our expectations. Also, even with improving execution, slower demand growth and/or an increase in inflationary pressures could hinder margin expansion. If the impact from the above risks turns out to be greater than we expect, the shares could fail to achieve our target price.

Rockwell Automation

Company description

Rockwell Automation, Inc. provides industrial automation power, control, and information solutions to help manufacturing customers achieve competitive advantages for their businesses by reducing total cost of ownership, maximizing asset utilization, improving time to market and reducing enterprise business risk. The company operates its business through the following segments: Architecture and Software, and Control Products and Solutions. Brands include Allen-Bradley, Rockwell Automation, and Rockwell Software. The company is headquartered in Milwaukee, WI.

Investment strategy

We rate ROK shares as Buy. We view automation as one of the critical tools by which companies across a broad range of manufacturing activities can drive productivity improvements and enable remote operations, especially in a post COVID-19 world. We think the pandemic has accelerated automation demand and we view automation adoption as a fundamentally attractive end market with secular growth tailwinds. ROK, being one of the leaders in the global automation industry, should be one of the main beneficiaries of this trend and could be one of the most visible growth stories amongst our Multis coverage.

Valuation

Our $536 target price reflects a ~32x PE multiple on FY28E EPS estimate. Our target multiple represents a significant premium relative to the S&P500. While toward the high end of ROK's historical range, we view good demand visibility across most of ROK's end markets, increasing adoption of automation, potential for reshoring, and a shift toward more recurring/software based revenues as well as improving execution as drivers for the company's multi-year EPS growth.

Risks

If industrial demand is weaker than expected, ROK's earnings could see significant headwinds given its exposure to automation spend. Additionally, as an automation pure play, ROK's lack of diversification vs. the conglomerate models of some Multi-Industry peers could be a competitive disadvantage if automation spending fails to accelerate as we anticipate.

If the impact on the company from any of these factors proves to be greater than we anticipate, the stock will likely have difficulty achieving our target price.

Veralto Corp

Company description

VLTO is a global industrial company focused on water quality and product identification solutions, consisting of two segments: 1) Water Quality, offering analytical instrumentation, treatment equipment, chemicals, and software for municipal, commercial, and industrial water testing and treatment; and 2) Product Quality & Innovation, providing technologies for product coding, packaging, traceability, and color quality assurance for consumer goods and industrial manufacturers.

Investment strategy

We rate VLTO's shares Neutral. We remain constructive on the LT outlook for water and product end-markets, which should provide VLTO resilient MSD organic growth over time, though we view VLTO's current valuation as largely reflecting the longer-term optimism on the company's ability to capture/deliver growth inline with its LT targets – MSD organic growth, augmented with M&A, and ~30-35%+ adj operating incremental margins.

Valuation

Our $107 target price is based on a blended SOTP multiple of 17x EV/EBITDA on our 2027 adj. EBITDA estimate of ~$1.6bn. We believe our premium multiple (vs other Industrial companies in our space) is justified due to what we view as a high-quality management team running a portfolio with leading positions in attractive niche markets levered to attractive secular growth trends in regulation, sustainability and supply chain digitization.

Risks

Key downside risks that could cause VLTO shares to trade below our target price include macro uncertainty lasting longer than expected and continuing to impact demand domestically and abroad, which would in turn hold down VLTO's earnings. Additionally, inconsistent or slower-than-expected progress on adj operating margin expansion could result in more moderate EPS growth vs our expectations. Lastly, while M&A is an important aspect of VLTO's strategy, we also consider an acquisition-driven growth strategy as representing a higher level of risk vs. a more organically driven growth model given risks such as the potential for execution/integration mis-steps, or the potential to overpay for targets (amongst others). While we think a LT track record of M&A-oriented growth is encouraging, we do think VLTO's ability to extend its M&A playbook as a standalone company remains to be seen.

Key upside risks to our TP include: strong organic growth led by better-than-expected macro conditions helping organic growth exceed our MSD LT expectations; VES initiatives taking hold faster than expected and growing incremental margins in excess of 30-35% we are currently modelling; and accretive M&A could be an earnings tailwind as we currently do not forecast inorganic growth.

Analysts' compensation is determined by Citi Research management and Citigroup's senior management and is based upon activities and services intended to benefit the investor clients of Citigroup Global Markets Inc. and its affiliates (the "Firm"). Compensation is not linked to specific transactions or recommendations. Like all Firm employees, analysts receive compensation that is impacted by overall Firm profitability which includes investment banking, sales and trading, and principal trading revenues. One factor in equity research analyst compensation is arranging corporate access events between institutional clients and the management teams of covered companies. Typically, company management is more likely to participate when the analyst has a positive view of the company.

For financial instruments recommended in the Product in which the Firm is not a market maker, the Firm is a liquidity provider in such financial instruments (and any underlying instruments) and may act as principal in connection with transactions in such instruments. The Firm is a regular issuer of traded financial instruments linked to securities that may have been recommended in the Product. The Firm regularly trades in the securities of the issuer(s) discussed in the Product. The Firm may engage in securities transactions in a manner inconsistent with the Product and, with respect to securities covered by the Product, will buy or sell from customers on a principal basis.

Unless stated otherwise neither the Research Analyst nor any member of their team has viewed the material operations of the Companies for which an investment view has been provided within the past 12 months.

Guide to Citi Research Fundamental Research Investment Ratings:
Citi Research stock recommendations include an investment rating and an optional risk rating to highlight high risk stocks. Risk rating takes into account both price volatility and fundamental criteria. Stocks will either have no risk rating or a High risk rating assigned.
Investment Ratings: Citi Research investment ratings are Buy, Neutral and Sell. Our ratings are a function of analyst expectations of expected total return ("ETR") and risk. ETR is the sum of the forecast price appreciation (or depreciation) plus the dividend yield for a stock within the next 12 months. The target price is based on a 12 month time horizon. The Investment rating definitions are: Buy (1) ETR of 15% or more or 25% or more for High risk stocks; and Sell (3) for negative ETR. Any covered stock not assigned a Buy or a Sell is a Neutral (2). For stocks rated Neutral (2), if an analyst believes that there are insufficient valuation drivers and/or investment catalysts to derive a positive or negative investment view, they may elect with the approval of Citi Research management not to assign a target price and, thus, not derive an ETR. Citi Research may suspend its rating and target price and assign "Rating Suspended" status for regulatory and/or internal policy reasons. Citi Research may also suspend its rating and target price and assign "Under Review" status for other exceptional circumstances (e.g. lack of information critical to the analyst's thesis, trading suspension) affecting the company and/or trading in the company's securities. In both such situations, the rating and target price will show as "—" and "-" respectively in the rating history price chart. Prior to 11 April 2022 Citi Research assigned "Under Review" status to both situations and prior to 11 Nov 2020 only in exceptional circumstances. As soon as practically possible, the analyst will publish a note re-establishing a rating and investment thesis. Investment ratings are determined by the ranges described above at the time of initiation of coverage, a change in investment and/or risk rating, or a change in target price (subject to limited management discretion). At times, the expected total returns may fall outside of these ranges because of market price movements and/or other short-term volatility or trading patterns. Such interim deviations will be permitted but will become subject to review by Research Management. Your decision to buy or sell a security should be based upon your personal investment objectives and should be made only after evaluating the stock's expected performance and risk.

Catalyst Watch/Short Term Views ("STV") Ratings Disclosure:
Catalyst Watch and STV Upside/Downside calls: Citi Research may also include a Catalyst Watch or STV Upside or Downside call to indicate the analyst expects the share price to rise (fall) in absolute terms over a specified period of 30 or 90 days in reaction to one or more specific near-term catalysts or events impacting the company or the market. A Catalyst Watch will be published when Analyst confidence is high that an impact to share price will occur; it will be a STV when confidence level is moderate. A Catalyst Watch or STV Upside/Downside call will automatically expire at the end of the specified 30/90 day period. The Catalyst Watch will also be automatically removed if share price performance (calculated at market close) exceeds 15% against the direction of the call (unless over-ridden by the analyst). The analyst may also remove a Catalyst Watch or STV call prior to the end of the specified period in a published research note. A Catalyst Watch/STV Upside or Downside call may be different from and does not affect a stock's fundamental equity rating, which reflects a longer-term total absolute return expectation. For purposes of FINRA ratings-distribution-disclosure rules, a Catalyst Watch/STV Upside call corresponds to a buy recommendation and a Catalyst Watch/STV Downside call corresponds to a sell recommendation. Any stock not assigned to a Catalyst Watch Upside, Catalyst Watch Downside, STV Upside, or STV Downside call is considered Catalyst Watch/STV No View. For purposes of FINRA ratings distribution-disclosure rules, we correspond Catalyst Watch/STV No View to Hold in our ratings distribution table for our Catalyst Watch/STV Upside/Downside rating system. However, we reiterate that we do not consider No View to be a recommendation. For all Catalyst Watch/STV Upside/Downside calls, risk exists that the catalyst(s) and associated share-price movement will not materialize as expected.
