What happened?

On Oct 16 2026, the Ministry of Commerce (MoC) and the Ministry of Science and Technology (MoST) jointly proposed to revise the list of prohibited/restricted export technology to include 12 solar technologies (including source code, base algorithm model, technical drawings, and core equipment) spanning from upstream Rod Poly, Granular Poly, Ingot pulling, and Wafer cutting to downstream Cell production across various routines (including Topcon, HJT, BC, and Perovskite). Specifically, large-scale Poly production, large-sized thin wafer production and Perovskite cell production tech are prohibited for export, and solar value chain final products are not included in the proposed control list.

Policy background and implementation

The MoC cited three primary drivers for adding solar tech controls: i) greater oversight needed for national security: to address growing risk as solar tech has been increasingly used in aerospace, defense, unmanned systems, and critical infrastructure; ii) supportive for green tech sharing, as the control scope is only targeted within high-specification tech/equipment, with general green tech exports to remain open; and iii) regulatory alignment: to standardize licensing requirements for "turn-key" production line exports, including installation, commissioning, and upgrades.

According to the proposal, this is a routine administrative update not targeting any specific entity or region, and is open for public comments from Oct 16 to Nov 15, 2026. Before the export-control catalogue is formally updated, companies should register any solar tech exports that are on the restricted list. The announcement also included other products (e.g. AI/Biomedicine) and did not focus purely on solar.

Potential implications:

1. Overall the proposed solar tech export control framework may be seen by the market as more positive than its expectation of a potential export ban. Our coverage equipment players saw an average share price decline of c.20% in Apr following reports that the government had held initial discussions regarding tighter solar equipment export to US. This weakness deepened by another c. 40% in July as news emerged that China government was monitoring solar tech exports to India and curbing equipment sales, which further escalated investor concerns over a potential solar equipment export ban. Consequently, the 12m fwd EV/EBITDA for our covered equipment names compressed from 39x in March to 12x currently, close to the historical trough level seen in 2024-1H25 despite a significantly stronger order outlook (+13% CAGR in 2025-27E vs. -43% CAGR in 2023-25).

Given the MoC indicated in the proposal that general solar tech export channels will stay open under 'green tech sharing' guidelines and given China's dominant solar tech leadership (manufacturing costs 30%-200% lower than global value chain peers), we see limited impact to our coverage equipment players' overseas businesses (accounts for avg. 25% of newly signed orders in 2027E-2030E by GSe). Furthermore, for the few equipment players that have been holding overseas shipments since 2Q26, we believe this proposal should provide the clarity they need to start shipping again.

2. Bear-case scenario seems to be already priced in. While we await the final policy outcome, we lay out two possible bear case scenarios to assess the potential impact on earnings and valuation. If strict overseas new order/shipment restrictions begin in 2027E, our analysis suggests avg c. 20%/30% EBITDA downside for our coverage vs. GSe over 2027E-30E and avg. 23%/34% valuation downside. Moreover, we find that companies that have greater overseas order backlogs (e.g. Maxwell) would be more resilient if only new overseas orders are restricted, but could see more earnings downside if all overseas shipments (i.e. revenue booking) are restricted.

- Scenario 1 - new order restriction from 2027E: In a scenario where overseas new orders are restricted starting from 2027E but existing orders are still allowed, we estimate the average impact to Maxwell/SZSC in 2027E-2030E (vs. current GSe) would be: i) 17%/25% downside to new order value, ii) 10%/9% downside to revenues, and iii) 15%/26% downside to EBITDA.
- Scenario 2 - shipment restriction from 2027E (the most severe case): In a scenario where all overseas shipments are restricted starting from 2027E, we estimate the average impact to Maxwell/SZSC in 2027E-2030E (vs. current GSe) would be: i) 18%/12% downside to revenues and ii) 31%/32% downside to EBITDA.
- In terms of valuation, our analysis suggests potential valuation downside vs. GSe of 28%/50% for Maxwell in Scenarios 1/2 and 17%/17% for SZSC in Scenario 1/2. Specifically, Maxwell's valuation is more impacted due to its greater exposure to overseas orders for new applications vs. the more domestically focused SZSC (our EV/EBITDA based SOTP valuation is based on our current assumptions for core business/new application development. See our note for details).

With Maxwell and SZSC's latest closing prices trading at 2%-3% below their implied equity value in scenario 2, we think a bear-case scenario seems already priced in. Given this margin of safety and strengthening orders in the semi segment (doubling order value in 2027E by GSe), we reiterate our Buy rating on Maxwell. We remain Neutral on SZSC given more the distant adoption timeline for its Perovskite technology for new application (beyond 2028E).

Exhibit 1: Our analysis indicates valuation downside of 28%/50% for Maxwell in Scenarios 1/2 (vs. GSe) and 17%/17% for SZSC

Price as of Oct 16 2026. The implied EV/EBITDA based SOTP valuation multiple is based on our current assumptions for core business/new application development. For Maxwell, i) In GSe, our current target multiple of 29X is derived from 86%/14% EBITDA mix of 20X/85X EV/EBITDA for core business/new application; ii) In Scenario 1, the implied multiple of 22X is derived from 92%/8% EBITDA mix of 17X/85X EV/EBITDA for core business/new application. The lower multiple for core business results from weaker EBITDA CAGR (10% in 27E-30E vs. 15% in GSe); iii) In Scenario 2, the implied multiple of 33X is derived from 94%/6% EBITDA mix of 30X/85X EV/EBITDA for core business/new application. The higher multiple for core business results from better EBITDA CAGR (43% in 27E-30E vs. 15% in GSe). For SZSC, i) In GSe, our current target multiple of 9X is derived from 94%/6% EBITDA mix of 7X/45X EV/EBITDA for core business/new application; ii) In Scenario 1, the implied multiple of 6X is derived from 93%/7% EBITDA mix of 4X/45X EV/EBITDA for core business/new application. The lower multiple for core business results from weaker EBITDA CAGR (-20% in 27E-30E vs. -11% in GSe); iii) In Scenario 2, the implied multiple of 8X is derived from 92%/8% EBITDA mix of 5X/45X EV/EBITDA for core business/new application. The lower multiple for core business results from weaker EBITDA CAGR (-15% in 27E-30E vs. -11% in GSe).

Investment thesis, TP methodology and risks

Maxwell (300751.SZ)

Investment thesis: Suzhou Maxwell is the largest screen printing equipment maker globally, with over 80% market share since 2018, and a leader in HJT solar cell technology, with over 70% market share. We are Buy rated on Maxwell as we see favorable risk reward in the new application context, given its dominant leadership in HJT technology. While our concerns around a prolonged China solar capex downturn amid anti-involution remain intact, we believe the announced trial HJT orders in 2026E-2027E will help to meaningfully improve Maxwell's order and profitability outlook.

TP methodology: Our 12m TP of Rmb270 is based on 29X 2027E EV/EBITDA (86%/14% EBITDA mix of 20X/85X EV/EBITDA for core business/new application orders), discounted back to 2026E at an 8.3% CoE.

Key risks:

1) Slower-than-expected new application demand could cool down the trial capex investment sentiment, and therefore lead to potential order cancellation risk to Maxwell.

2) Tighter export control over solar equipment could meaningfully weaken Maxwell's earnings outlook. We expect solar equipment needs amid manufacturing onshoring in overseas markets to drive most of Maxwell's solar order value and margin expansion.

3) Slower-than-expected development in semi industry: We may see potential downside risks to our estimates if Maxwell were unable to continue to win orders or pauses emerging business development.

Shenzhen SC (300724.SZ)

Investment thesis: SZSC is the largest Topcon equipment manufacturer globally, with over 50% global market share, and a leader in perovskite solar cell technology, with a 40% market share. We are Neutral rated on SZSC as we see more balanced risk reward for SZSC in the new application context. While our concerns around a prolonged China solar capex downturn amid anti-involution measures remain intact, we believe the trial PSC orders for new applications will help to improve SZSC's order and profitability outlook. We highlight the relatively higher uncertainty of SZSC's new application order visibility given more intensified competition in PSC technology, which the company has been focused on, and the more distant adoption timeline for PSC (beyond 2028E), which leads us to rate the stock at Neutral.

TP methodology: Our 12m TP of Rmb60 is based on 9X 2027E EV/EBITDA (87%/13% EBITDA mix of 7X/45X EV/EBITDA for core business/new application orders) discounted back to 2026E at a 10.6% CoE.

Key risks:

1) Slower/faster than expected new application demand could cool down/increase trial capex investment sentiment, and therefore lead to a worse/better order outlook for SZSC.

2) Faster than expected new solar technology migration to PSC routines if a major breakthrough is achieved by key players. In this case, we would expect higher solar cell capex in the next 12 months and better-than-expected orders for Shenzhen SC.

3) If the company cannot win orders as the market expects due to more intensified competition or slower than expected adoption of PSC in new application, we believe valuation would revert to close to its core business.

GS Factor Profile

The Goldman Sachs Factor Profile provides investment context for a stock by comparing key attributes to the market (i.e. our universe of rated stocks) and its sector peers. The four key attributes depicted are: Growth, Financial Returns, Multiple (e.g. valuation) and Integrated (a composite of Growth, Financial Returns and Multiple). Growth, Financial Returns and Multiple are calculated by using normalized ranks for specific metrics for each stock. The normalized ranks for the metrics are then averaged and converted into percentiles for the relevant attribute. The precise calculation of each metric may vary depending on the fiscal year, industry and region, but the standard approach is as follows:

Growth is based on a stock's forward-looking sales growth, EBITDA growth and EPS growth (for financial stocks, only EPS and sales growth), with a higher percentile indicating a higher growth company. Financial Returns is based on a stock's forward-looking ROE, ROCE and CROCI (for financial stocks, only ROE), with a higher percentile indicating a company with higher financial returns. Multiple is based on a stock's forward-looking P/E, P/B, price/dividend (P/D), EV/EBITDA, EV/FCF and EV/Debt Adjusted Cash Flow (DACF) (for financial stocks, only P/E, P/B and P/D), with a higher percentile indicating a stock trading at a higher multiple. The Integrated percentile is calculated as the average of the Growth percentile, Financial Returns percentile and (100% - Multiple percentile).

Financial Returns and Multiple use the Goldman Sachs analyst forecasts at the fiscal year-end at least three quarters in the future. Growth uses inputs for the fiscal year at least seven quarters in the future compared with the year at least three quarters in the future (on a per-share basis for all metrics).

M&A Rank

Across our global coverage, we examine stocks using an M&A framework, considering both qualitative factors and quantitative factors (which may vary across sectors and regions) to incorporate the potential that certain companies could be acquired. We then assign a M&A rank as a means of scoring companies under our rated coverage from 1 to 3, with 1 representing high (30%-50%) probability of the company becoming an acquisition target, 2 representing medium (15%-30%) probability and 3 representing low (0%-15%) probability. For companies ranked 1 or 2, in line with our standard departmental guidelines we incorporate an M&A component into our target price. M&A rank of 3 is considered immaterial and therefore does not factor into our price target, and may or may not be discussed in research.

Ratings, coverage universe and related definitions

Buy (B), Neutral (N), Sell (S) Analysts recommend stocks as Buys or Sells for inclusion on various regional Investment Lists. Being assigned a Buy or Sell on an Investment List is determined by a stock's total return potential relative to its coverage universe. Any stock not assigned as a Buy or a Sell on an Investment List with an active rating (i.e., a stock that is not Rating Suspended, Not Rated, Early-Stage Biotech, Coverage Suspended or Not Covered), is deemed Neutral. Each region manages Regional Conviction Lists, which are selected from Buy rated stocks on the respective region's Investment Lists and represent investment recommendations focused on the size of the total return potential and/or the likelihood of the realization of the return across their respective areas of coverage. The addition or removal of stocks from such Conviction Lists are managed by the Investment Review Committee or other designated committee in each respective region and do not represent a change in the analysts' investment rating for such stocks.

Total return potential represents the upside or downside differential between the current share price and the price target, including all paid or anticipated dividends, expected during the time horizon associated with the price target. Price targets are required for all covered stocks. The total return potential, price target and associated time horizon are stated in each report adding or reiterating an Investment List membership.

Coverage Universe: A list of all stocks in each coverage universe is available by primary analyst, stock and coverage universe at https://www.gs.com/research/hedge.html.

Not Rated (NR). The investment rating, target price and earnings estimates (where relevant) are removed pursuant to Goldman Sachs policy when Goldman Sachs is acting in an advisory capacity in a merger or in a strategic transaction involving this company, when there are legal, regulatory or policy constraints due to Goldman Sachs' involvement in a transaction, and in certain other circumstances. Early-Stage Biotech (ES). An investment rating and a target price are not assigned pursuant to Goldman Sachs policy when this company has neither a drug, treatment or medical device that has passed a Phase II clinical trial nor a license to distribute a post-Phase II drug, treatment or medical device. Rating Suspended (RS). Goldman Sachs Research has suspended the investment rating and price target for this stock, because there is not a sufficient fundamental basis for determining an investment rating or target price. The previous investment rating and target price, if any, are no longer in effect for this stock and should not be relied upon. Coverage Suspended (CS). Goldman Sachs has suspended coverage of this company. Not Covered (NC). Goldman Sachs does not cover this company.
