Expectations miss, set up by the size and scale of the Google partnership being already mostly contemplated in the FY28 guidance - but longer term trends do support the enthusiasm we expect from the investor day.

Key Takeaways

- Good quarter and outlook but largely in line with prior mgmt expectations
- CY27 data center growth goes from 50 to 60%, driving about 10% EPS upside
- While we wish that positive long term commentary left more room for short term beats and raises, we generally agree with the long term optimism
- We like the pivot away from large monolithic ASIC opportunities to a more diversified set of growth drivers
- Stay EW - with AI strong across the board it's a target rich environment - but would be tactically long for the investor day if the stock sells off

Solid quarter, but no near term surprises, as the quarter and outlook were in line with prior commentary, and increasing CY27 data center growth from 50% to 60% is a solid proof point. Expectations were higher, mostly because of the Google (covered by Brian Nowak) relationship announced a few days ago, but that customer was fully contemplated in prior guidance.

We are generally quite positive on the shift in messaging from MRVL, and the long term growth opportunity. 18 months ago it felt that the growth dynamic was significantly tied to big monolithic custom ASIC opportunities; while we like the optionality of that market, competing directly with NVIDIA is hard, and doesn't always pan out. We still think there are some headwinds from the Trainium relationship in these numbers. But the focus on a broad range of "XPU attach" businesses as well as optical connectivity, and more recently scale up which is a totally greenfield opportunity, brings much higher visibility.

That said, MRVL trades differently from other AI names. They tend to give very bullish long term forecasts than execute to those forecasts, vs other companies that tend to trade more on beats and raises. That puts significant focus on the analyst day, Mechanically, guidance moved higher but was broadly consistent with the trajectory management had laid out ahead of the print. FY27 revenue is now expected to be roughly $12bn, or +45% y/y, versus $11.5bn previously, driven by data center growth increasing to ~60% from ~50%. Q3 revenue is guided to $3.15bn, +15% q/q, with data center up >20% q/q and ~75% y/y, followed by further sequential acceleration in Q4. For FY28, revenue moves to ~$18bn from $16.5bn, implying ~50% growth, with data center expected to grow >60% and custom more than doubling. Importantly, revenue associated with the recently expanded Google relationship through FY28 is already embedded in that custom outlook.

The growth mix also continues to broaden. Near term strength is being led by optical DSPs, scale out switching and the second half ramp in custom, while 1.6T optical ramps should accelerate further in FY28. Longer term, management is increasingly framing the opportunity around a broader set of XPU attach products, including NICs, storage controllers, memory interface controllers and near memory compute, alongside scale up connectivity. Scale up optics expectations for FY28 moved meaningfully higher on NPO and CPO activity, while MRVL is also engaged across UALink, ESUN and NVLink Fusion switching. That combination makes the growth story less dependent on any single large custom ASIC win and gives us more confidence in the durability of the data center growth outlook into FY29 and beyond.

Details on the quarter: Marvell reported fiscal 2Q27 revenue of $2.74bn (up 13% q/q and 37% y/y), above the midpoint of guidance and modestly ahead of both MSe and Street expectations. Data Center revenue was $2.17bn (up 18% q/q and 46% y/y), representing ~79% of total revenue, while Communications & Other revenue was $568mn (down 3% q/q and up 10% y/y). Non-GAAP gross margin was 58.9%, modestly ahead of both MSe and Street, while EPS of $0.94 came in slightly above both MSe and consensus. For fiscal 3Q27, the company guided revenue to $3.15bn at the midpoint (up 15% q/q and 52% y/y), gross margin to 58.0% at the midpoint, and EPS to $1.10 at the midpoint - ahead of Street on revenue and EPS, with gross margin modestly below.

Guidance and changes to estimates: October quarter revenue was guided to $3.15bn at the midpoint (up ~15% q/q and ~52% y/y), above the Street at $3.020bn and Morgan Stanley at $3.009bn. Gross margin was guided to 58.0% at the midpoint, below the Street at 58.5% and Morgan Stanley at 58.4%. EPS was guided to $1.10 at the midpoint, above the Street at $1.07 and Morgan Stanley at $1.05. The company again raised its longer-term outlook, lifting revenue expectations for both FY27 and FY28 versus the guidance given last quarter and expecting growth to accelerate through the remainder of fiscal 2027, driven primarily by continued strength in Data Center. We are raising our numbers on the higher outlook. For FY2027 we now model revenue/GM/EPS of $11.979bn / 58.3% / $4.18, versus our prior $11.498bn / 58.5% / $3.98. For FY2028 we now model $18.033bn / 57.9% / $6.68, versus our prior $16.161bn / 57.2% / $5.93.

Thoughts on the stock: We continue to see upside potential from optics, scale up connectivity, and a growing set of XPU attach opportunities as AI systems become increasingly network and memory intensive. We also like the continued evolution of the custom strategy toward a broader set of smaller programs and attach opportunities, which should make the growth profile less all or nothing over time. That said, expectations had moved materially higher following the Google announcement, and management made clear that the FY28 contribution from that relationship was already largely contemplated in prior guidance. These numbers and the longer term commentary were clearly positive, but with valuation still demanding, we likely need to see continued estimate revisions, additional evidence of sustained networking share and content gains, or increasing confidence that custom and XPU attach growth can exceed the current framework to become more constructive from current levels.

In terms of valuation, we are increasing our price target from $224 to $246, maintaining our 45x CY27 MW EPS (~37x non-gaap) multiple on our higher $6.68 non-gaap EPS (MW EPS $5.47). Valuation remains elevated relative to AI peers, and while we continue to see attractive long term growth drivers, we prefer other AI names at current levels and remain EW.

EQUAL-WEIGHT THESIS

■ The company has AI related opportunity, primarily the higher speed elements of the Inphi optical businesses (PAM4 and 400ZR), and longer term cloud custom silicon. We do expect this growth to play out, in particular on the optical side, and we expect MRVL to outgrow data center spending overall. We remain EW given valuation as well as high stock compensation expense that weighs on enthusiasm.

Morgan Stanley uses a relative rating system using terms such as Overweight, Equal-weight, Not-Rated or Underweight (see definitions below). Morgan Stanley does not assign ratings of Buy, Hold or Sell to the stocks we cover. Overweight, Equal-weight, Not-Rated and Underweight are not the equivalent of buy, hold and sell. Investors should carefully read the definitions of all ratings used in Morgan Stanley Research. In addition, since Morgan Stanley Research contains more complete information concerning the analyst's views, investors should carefully read Morgan

Stanley Research, in its entirety, and not infer the contents from the rating alone. In any case, ratings (or research) should not be used or relied upon as investment advice. An investor's decision to buy or sell a stock should depend on individual circumstances (such as the investor's existing holdings) and other considerations.
