Warehouse automation: Healthy demand + stabilising macro / estimates = room to re-rate

Stable forklift demand with healthy warehouse automation growth; better expectations on macro and earnings estimate trajectory (likely sequential forklift margin improvement) to support sentiment; Amazon deal / US policy could favour AUTO's positioning. Favour KGX and upgrade AUTO (both now OW).

The 2Q26 numbers suggested stable forklift demand and still growing warehouse automation industry activities, while the forklift margin weakness was disappointing but the revised guidance helped bring expectations down. We mentioned in our earlier note that the sector valuations have already priced in most of the negatives after the YTD de-rating. Stabilizing concerns over macro (e.g. PMIs in Europe including Germany green-shoots, and hopefully on interest rates) and earnings projections (e.g. forklift margins to sequentially improve since 3Q) should be supportive to valuations, and AUTO's Amazon partnership and policy could shift competitive positioning favourably vs Chinese. We upgrade AUTO to OW on better competitiveness/growth outlook/buybacks, and we also favour KGX given compelling valuations with likely sequential sentiment/margin improvement. JUNG should see a similar setup to KGX in the near term, but the potential target cut on 2030+ targets could be an overhang.

KGX (OW, PT €64)

- We see the current FY26 consensus ITS margin (9.3% vs guidance of 9.6% at midpoint) to be more realistic, and think a sequential improvement (pricing/volume/cost savings) would help stabilize estimates.
- For IAS we do not think AUTO's Amazon partnership will significantly affect KGX's business opportunities in e-commerce, and we still like its positioning as a leading system integrator (relatively immune from Chinese competitions) as well as much easier comps on order intakes in 2H26.
- Stay OW with PT of €64 based on 13x/18x 2027E target EV/adj. EBITA for ITS/IAS respectively, implying 2027E group 2027E EV/adj. EBITA of 14.7x, with some fine-tunes in numbers including FX. Current valuation of 12.5x '27E EV/adj. EBITA or 11x '27E PE appears very attractive if the expectations on macro (esp interest rates/inflation) and earnings projections are stabilized.

JUNG (OW, PT €39)

- We also see the current FY26 group margin guidance (6.6% at midpoint) and consensus estimate (6.6%) to be more realistic, though JUNG will need a bigger sequential uptick in ITS margin in 2H from the 2Q level (c.1.5ppt on reported basis, or by c.1ppt on clean basis) compared with KGX (c.0.8ppt).
- However, we continue to see the likely downward revisions of JUNG's 2030+ targets on revenue/EBIT (despite well anticipated directionally) to be a potential headwind.
- Meanwhile, given JUNG is the cheapest stock among our covered companies in the space at 10.5x '27E EV/adj. EBITA and 8x '27E P/E, we maintain our OW rating with PT of €39 based on 13x 2027E EV/adj. EBITA.

AUTO (OW, PT NOK20.5)

- We upgrade AUTO to Overweight from Equal Weight, as the Amazon partnership (despite no further details to allow quantitative estimates on impact) and potential policy direction in the US could favour AUTO's competitive positioning in the industry against the Chinese players, which has been one of our key concerns on the stock.
- The strong order intake YTD amid still healthy industry dynamics, plus the Amazon partnership, offer better growth outlook on the stock. The recently announced share buyback, despite small in scale, is also supportive on valuation.
- We raise our '27-28E sales/adj. EBIT forecasts by c.2%, and lift our PT from NOK18.2 to NOK20.5 based on 25x '27E EV/adj. EBITA (or c.0.5SD above the historical average, from 22x) given the Amazon partnership and thus improved industry positioning and growth outlook. Stock is up 36% YTD (vs -34%/-25% for KGX/JUNG) but we think the growth potential is not yet fully appreciated. We are c.9%/7% above consensus on orders, and c.5%/4% on revenue, in '27/28E.

Still healthy demand to continue

Given the macro uncertainty YTD, including the Middle East conflicts and interest rate hike concerns, the market has been focused on slowing demand for both forklifts and warehouse automation products. However, the 2Q26 numbers suggested that's not the case. On forklifts, apart from the pre-buy effects due to price increases to result in pull-forward demand in 1Q, KGX's ITS order in units were only down 1% YoY despite mix was affecting the value, and JUNG's ITS order in values were flattish YoY. The stable macro indicators like PMI in Europe YTD suggested demand has stabilized despite yet to be a material recovery, and we also observed some notable pick up in Germany data (PMI, manufacturing business climate index), one of the key regions for KGX/JUNG's forklift business, after years of stagnated performance, despite yet to know the sustainability. Meanwhile, US appeared to show better growth from previous levels due to destocking.

On warehouse automation, growth is even more obvious. Apart from KGX, which had a very tough comp in 2Q, all major peers logged decent YoY order growth in 2Q, with Daifuku (not covered) +46% YoY, JUNG +27% YoY, and AUTO +45% YoY. Kardex and Geek+ also logged +26% and +36% YoY. Customer activities have not been meaningfully affected by macro, or from the interest rate hike expectations, and from KGX's order intakes on business solutions we could also see gradual uptick from non e-commerce customers (despite yet to go back to 2021-22 levels). Going forward, we expect the healthy growth in warehouse automation to remain, with any stabilized interest rate expectations would be helpful to sentiment. Besides, after the very high comp in 2Q25, KGX will also see much easier comps in 3-4Q, that will allow KGX to show better YoY order growth like its peers.

Forklift competition in focus but not over worried given potential changes in dynamics for warehouse automation

The major negative surprise for the sector YTD was the margin impact from competition in the forklift businesses, which weighed on price/mix. With Chinese forklifts a key source of competition for the forklift market, the latest data on EU forklift imports from China (which also likely includes the OEM business where EU players manufacture in China and ship to Europe) showed a c.18% YoY growth YTD (until June). The growth was somewhat explained by the improving demand in the region (trucks orders grew c24% YoY in EMEA in 1Q26, according to WITS), but also reflected the increased efforts for Chinese players on exports (not only forklifts but most industrial products). Still, we think competition has not yet resulted in a severe deterioration in pricing, as suppliers could still show some price hike capabilities ahead of inflation.

FIGURE 12. EU import value of forklifts from China - we don't see a major step up in imports and thus competitions

Source: Eurostat, Barclays Research

FIGURE 13. US import value of forklifts from China fell in 2Q25 amid tariffs but quickly recovered in July

Source: US Census Bureau, Barclays Research

For warehouse automation, we continue to expect competition from emerging players/ solutions, especially from the lower-cost Chinese players who are also more aggressive on expansion, and we continue to see system integrators (who could cooperate with Chinese suppliers) and solution providers (who will face competitions directly). However, we see two factors that can potentially change the dynamics somewhat:

AUTO's formal strategic partnership with Amazon demonstrates the company's proven technology in that it is being recognized by the global leader, which helps AUTO in its defence against competition from emerging solutions; more below.

The US government recently banned the import of advanced robotics amid national security concerns, including AMRs. Although Geekplus (not covered, major Chinese AMR provider) announced its products are FCC certified and not subject to the prohibitions, we think this still creates uncertainty about Chinese warehouse solutions penetrating the US market.

Amazon partnership - good for AUTO's positioning, meanwhile uncertainty on scale/ margin/sales mode

According to AMZ Prep, Amazon has more than 1,300 fulfilment centers, distribution centers, sortation centers and delivery stations worldwide; the former three types would be more likely to be equipped with AutoStore systems. Scales of these facilities would be different, like the larger fulfilment centers could be over c.3m sqft, while some micro-fulfilment centers could be at c50,000 sqft. It is not clear how many projects will be involved in the partnership. If we assume c.30,000sqft (c.3,000sqm) of AutoStore system installed in a center (roughly the size of 5 "standard" AutoStore systems of US$3m each), and if we assume 20 centers to be equipped with AutoStore systems, the revenue opportunity would be at c.US$300m (equivalent to more than 40% of the FY26 revenue guide). We also expect the partnership would span over a few years.

Apart from the scale, we think two possible implications from the partnership include: 1) The partnership would likely span a few years. This could imply less revenue opportunities for system integrators (albeit AUTO business has been a small part of KGX's overall IAS sales). 2) The margins of projects selling to Amazon could be lower than the normal sales for AUTO, as we think Amazon would not likely pay as much to distributors as to AUTO, plus there could also be volume discounts.

What do we expect on numbers?

We expect LSD order growth on truck businesses in the next two quarters for both KGX and JUNG, and margins should see sequential improvement mainly due to price hikes, but also better utilization and cost controls, though our estimates sit below the midpoints of the revised-down margin guidance for both of them. For warehouse automation, we expect DD order growth to go on in 3-4Q. We also expect further sequential margin improvements for KGX/JUNG on higher revenue scales, while AUTO could see some QoQ moderation as guided given continued investments on commercial, product and technology capabilities.

Source: Eurostat, Barclays Research

What about FY27? On trucks, we think the current consensus estimate of MSD growth in order intake for both KGX/JUNG is largely in line with the current macro/demand conditions of bottoming out from low levels, plus the half-year contribution of price hikes. On truck margin, if we assume both KGX/JUNG could meet their FY26 consensus levels, we think the current FY27 margin assumptions are more or less in line with the exit rates from 4Q26, so we are comfortable with the numbers for now. On warehouse automation, we remain relatively more bullish than consensus on order intake, which also gives us more revenue growth/operating leverage particularly for KGX, meanwhile for AUTO we sit below consensus amid management's commentary on the investments in commercial, product and technology capabilities which we assume to continue in FY27.

What is needed for a re-rating?

As we highlighted in our AUTO 2Q review note, strong beat in 2Q26 with FY26 revenue guide also above css, industry momentum remains healthy, long-awaited partnership with Amazon finally confirmed and new SBB program backed by healthy operations are all drivers of a re-rating. Meanwhile, both KGX/JUNG saw c.20%+ EPS downward revisions YTD, explaining c2/3 of JUNG's YTD share price decline and c1/2 of KGX. For the stocks to re-rate, we need to see earnings to stop revising down, and the potential margin improvement since 3Q could be a prove point.

Why OVERWEIGHT?

Smaller project costs, higher ROIs and adaptability to diversified end-markets should help cubic storage win share in the current environment. We view AutoStore's solutions as competitive with proven use cases, particularly with the Amazon partnership, and expect it to continue to outperform the boarder industry growth.

Upside case NOK 25.00

Faster recovery of warehouse automation demand in the market to drive accelerating order growth, with successful geographical expansion, for example, in North America and APAC, to drive profitability.

Downside case NOK 11.00

Slow recovery of the warehouse automation industry with rising competition from other emerging cubic storage solutions players, or other warehouse automation technologies, which, in turn, affects orders as well as pricing.

Price (04-Sep-2026) EUR 26.62
Price Target EUR 39.00

Why OVERWEIGHT?

As the second largest industrial truck player in Europe, its relatively higher revenue contributions by region/end-markets could imply even greater reliance on macro rebound. With a low base currently, it is becoming more aggressive on warehouse automation; any breakthrough could offer potential earnings/valuation upside.

Upside case EUR 58.00

Faster-than-expected recovery in macro economy could trigger strong order intakes as well as reduced lead time for industrial trucks, with volume boost likely to support margins. Successful ramp-up of warehouse automation business may drive profitability.

Downside case EUR 24.00

Extended macro weakness could drag new orders and bring uncertainty to 2026-27 revenues, and reduced demand may add further pressure on pricing/margins. Slow ramp-up of warehouse automation with rising competition could drag orders and pricing.

Price (04-Sep-2026) EUR 45.30
 Price Target EUR 64.00

Why OVERWEIGHT?

We believe KION's ITS is well positioned to enjoy any order rebound from a macro recovery, and it appears to win market share under muted macro. For SCS, long-term growth should be more promising, with a potential order rebound, but we don't rule out rising competition. Its higher-than-peer leverage could weigh on its valuation.

Upside case EUR 86.00

A faster-than-expected macro recovery triggers strong order intake for both ITS and SCS, while reduced lead times result in faster delivery of trucks / projects, with a volume boost supporting margins.

Downside case EUR 42.00

Extended macro weakness drags on new orders and brings uncertainty to 2025-26 revenues, with reduced demand adding further pressure on pricing/margins.

Upside/Downside scenarios

Valuation Methodology and Risks

European Capital Goods

AutoStore (AUTO.NO / AUTO.OL)

Valuation Methodology: We value AutoStore by referencing its historical trading ranges as well as its warehouse automation and industrial software peers. Our price target is based on 25x 2027E EV/adj. EBITA (essentially adj. EBIT per company definition).

Risks which May Impede the Achievement of the Barclays Research Valuation and Price Target: Key downside risks include: 1) Slowing macro and warehouse investments, particularly under tariff uncertainty. 2) Increasing competition from traditional solutions like shuttle, from other emerging cubic storage technologies, or from any new technologies. 3) Invalid/ineffective patents to protect its core technologies. 4) Significant fluctuations in raw material costs. Key upside risks are a faster-than-expected demand recovery and more clarity on tariffs.

KION (KGX.GY / KGX.DE)

Valuation Methodology: Our price target for KION is based on a SOTP model, in which we apply target multiples of 13x / 18x / 13x to 2027E EV/adj. EBITA (or adj. EBIT per company definition) to ITS, SCS and Corporate/Others, respectively. We set these target multiples with reference to historical trading ranges and peer valuations (forklift peers and warehouse automation peers). Our price target equates to a group 2027E EV/adj. EBITA (or adj. EBIT per company definition) of 14.7x, in line with its historical average.

Risks which May Impede the Achievement of the Barclays Research Valuation and Price Target: 1) Slowing macro and warehouse investments affecting demand for industrial trucks and warehouse solutions, and hence pricing/margins. 2) Increasing competition from traditional solutions such as shuttle, from emerging cubic storage technologies, or from any other new technologies. 3) Fluctuations in raw material costs, and supply chain distortion affecting working capital requirements.

Guide to the Barclays Fundamental Equity Research Rating System:

Our coverage analysts use a relative rating system in which they rate stocks as Overweight, Equal Weight or Underweight (see definitions below) relative to other companies covered by the analyst or a team of analysts that are deemed to be in the same industry (the "industry coverage universe").

In addition to the stock rating, we provide industry views which rate the outlook for the industry coverage universe as Positive, Neutral or Negative (see definitions below). A rating system using terms such as buy, hold and sell is not the equivalent of our rating system. Investors should carefully read the entire research report including the definitions of all ratings and not infer its contents from ratings alone.

Stock Rating

Overweight - The stock is expected to outperform the unweighted expected total return of the industry coverage universe over a 12-month investment horizon.

Equal Weight - The stock is expected to perform in line with the unweighted expected total return of the industry coverage universe over a 12-month investment horizon.

Underweight - The stock is expected to underperform the unweighted expected total return of the industry coverage universe over a 12-month investment horizon.

Rating Suspended - The rating and target price have been suspended temporarily due to market events that made coverage impracticable or to comply with applicable regulations and/or firm policies in certain circumstances including where the Investment Bank of Barclays Bank PLC is acting in an advisory capacity in a merger or strategic transaction involving the company.

Industry View

Positive - industry coverage universe fundamentals/valuations are improving.

Neutral - industry coverage universe fundamentals/valuations are steady, neither improving nor deteriorating.

Negative - industry coverage universe fundamentals/valuations are deteriorating.

J: Barclays Bank PLC and/or an affiliate is a liquidity provider and/or trades regularly in the securities by AutoStore and/or in any related derivatives.

K: Barclays Bank PLC and/or an affiliate has received non-investment banking related compensation (including compensation for brokerage services, if applicable) from AutoStore within the past 12 months.

N: AutoStore is, or during the past 12 months has been, a non-investment banking client (non-securities related services) of Barclays Bank PLC and/or an affiliate.

Valuation Methodology: We value AutoStore by referencing its historical trading ranges as well as its warehouse automation and industrial software peers. Our price target is based on 25x 2027E EV/adj. EBITA (essentially adj. EBIT per company definition).

Risks which May Impede the Achievement of the Barclays Research Valuation and Price Target: Key downside risks include: 1) Slowing macro and warehouse investments, particularly under tariff uncertainty. 2) Increasing competition from traditional solutions like shuttle, from other emerging cubic storage technologies, or from any new technologies. 3) Invalid/ineffective patents to protect its core technologies. 4) Significant fluctuations in raw material costs. Key upside risks are a faster-than-expected demand recovery and more clarity on tariffs.

Sustainable Investing Related Research: There is currently no globally accepted framework or definition (legal, regulatory or otherwise) of, nor market consensus as to what constitutes a 'sustainable', 'ESG', 'green', 'climate-friendly' or an equivalent company, investment, strategy or consideration or what precise attributes are required to be eligible to be categorised by such terms. This means there are different ways to evaluate a company or an investment and so different values may be placed on certain sustainability credentials as well as adverse ESG-related impacts of companies and ESG controversies. The evolving nature of sustainable investing considerations, models and methodologies means it can be challenging to definitively and universally classify a company or investment under a sustainable investing label and there may be areas where such companies and investments could improve or where adverse ESG-related impacts or ESG controversies exist. The evolving nature of sustainable finance related regulations and the development of jurisdiction-specific regulatory criteria also means that there is likely to be a degree of divergence as to the interpretation of such terms in the market. We expect industry guidance, market practice, and regulations in this field to continue to evolve.

Any information, data, image, or other content including from a third party source contained, referred to herein or used for whatsoever purpose by Barclays or a third party ("Information"), in relation to any actual or potential 'ESG', 'sustainable' or equivalent objective, issue, factor or consideration is not intended to be relied upon for ESG or sustainability classification, regulatory regime or industry initiative purposes ("ESG Regimes"), unless otherwise stated. Nothing in these materials, including any images included therein, is intended to convey, suggest or indicate that Barclays considers or represents any product, service, person or body mentioned in these materials as meeting or qualifying for any ESG or sustainability classification, label or similar standards that may exist under ESG Regimes. Barclays has not conducted any assessment of compliance with ESG Regimes. Parties are reminded to make their own assessments for these purposes.
