US Industrial Conglomerates

Calls For The Fall – Secular Drivers Intact; Broadening Ongoing

CITI'S TAKE

While we would not be surprised by some continued near-term stock volatility given a combination of factors such as elevated/rising long-term interest rates, questions regarding the pacing of AI spend, especially ahead of US mid-terms, and typical seasonal trading patterns, we do believe AI/data center-related tailwinds will remain resilient, and given solid signs of shorter-cycle momentum continuing to build, we remain constructive in our outlook for Multi-Industrials heading into late '26. Given that backdrop, we view Multis & E&Cs with good visibility to growth supported by data center tailwinds as well positioned (VRT, ETN, TT, NVT; PWR, MTZ) and also see good potential in shorter-cycle exposed Multis with accelerating growth (PH, IEX) as well as “pockets of value” with positive tailwinds and (in our view), limited downside given modest valuation (EMR, CARR, DOV).

Outlook Remains Positive; Watching Key Risk Factors — August PMI at 54.6 (vs. 55.6 in July) remains well into expansionary territory and, following solid 2Q earnings results, we think is reflective of a durable industrial growth cycle underway. With Citi's most recent Global Data Center Industry model reflecting an ongoing positive investment cycle (Multi-Asset: Data Center GAINs \(Gen AI Names\) - Born to Run; Still Early in the Multi-Year AI Investment Cycle), AI/data center related growth should remain a primary theme and we're also encouraged by signs of positive momentum in shorter-cycle industrial demand. That said, we are attuned to N-T risks including elevated long-term interest rates, still “sticky” inflation, potential regulatory hurdles for data center owners/developers given recent questions regarding AI's fast pace of growth, and geo-political frictions and uncertainties.

Top Picks Into The Fall — Pullbacks we think remain buying opportunities for data center exposed companies in our coverage given a still multi-year investment cycle underway; Multis VRT, ETN, TT and NVT as well as E&Cs PWR and MTZ are trading below recent highs and we think have elevated visibility to topline and earnings growth supported by varying degrees of data center or data center-related exposure. Looking beyond the “data center ecosystem”, PH and IEX we think combine shorter-cycle exposure with also positive thematics that could support outperformance. Lastly, EMR, CARR, and DOV we think represent good value in the current environment with EMR poised for accelerating growth with both shorter-cycle and longer-cycle tailwinds; CARR representing compelling risk/reward given bottoming resi demand, significant CHVAC growth opportunities and potentially improving European growth/profitability in '27 and beyond; and DOV representing good risk/reward given steady MSD growth potential, continued margin expansion opportunity and ongoing capital allocation optionality.

Valuation & Crowding — Sector average valuation of 1.14x compares to the 10-year average of 1.08x, reflecting what we think are elevated growth expectations in portions of our coverage universe, albeit with relatively good visibility in our view. Separately, we note that Citi's proprietary quant crowding score reflects PNR, VNT, and EMR as least crowded amongst our Buy-Rated stocks.

Calls For The Fall – Secular Drivers Intact; Broadening Ongoing

While we would not be surprised by some continued near-term stock volatility given a combination of factors such as elevated/rising long-term interest rates, questions regarding the pacing of AI spend, especially ahead of US mid-term elections, and typical seasonal trading patterns, we do believe AI/data center-related tailwinds will remain resilient, and given solid signs of shorter-cycle momentum continuing to build, we remain constructive in our outlook for Multi-Industrials heading into late '26. Given that backdrop, we view Multis & E&Cs with good visibility to growth supported by data center tailwinds as well positioned (VRT, ETN, TT, NVT; PWR, MTZ) and also see good potential in shorter-cycle exposed Multis with accelerating growth (PH, IEX) as well as “pockets of value” with positive tailwinds and (in our view), limited downside given modest valuation (EMR, CARR, DOV).

Outlook Remains Positive; Watching Key Risk Factors — August PMI at 54.6 (vs. 55.6 in July) remains well into expansionary territory and, following solid 2Q earnings results, we think is reflective of a durable industrial growth cycle underway. With Citi's most recent Global Data Center Industry model reflecting an ongoing positive investment cycle (Multi-Asset: Data Center GAINs \(Gen AI Names\) - Born to Run: Still Early in the Multi-Year AI Investment Cycle), AI/data center related growth should remain a primary theme and we're also encouraged by signs of positive momentum in shorter-cycle industrial demand. That said, we are attuned to N-T risks including rising/elevated long-term interest rates, still “sticky” inflation (that could weigh on price vs. cost at times), potential regulatory hurdles for data center owners/developers given recent questions regarding AI's fast pace of growth, and significant geo-political frictions and uncertainties.

Recent in industrial stocks (XLI -7.6% since 8/14/26 vs. SPY -
1.6% over the same time period) we think reflects some concern relative to the durability of recent positive trends and while we view the risks noted above as “watch items”, we view underlying industrial demand trends as, on balance, healthy albeit with a fair amount of variability amongst end markets. A moderate pullback in August PMI to 54.6 we think does merit attention; our outlook for now though remains that expansionary industrial activity remains consistent with our expectation for largely positive growth momentum to continue in 2H26 and into 27.

In addition to some “cycle duration” concerns and macro/policy risks noted above, we do think that seasonality of Multis stock performance is notable as August and September have historically been the weakest months for Multis stock performance. As such, we view recent consolidation in Multis as relatively consistent with historical patterns and potentially a constructive “re-set” that could set the stage for outperformance later in '26 and into '27 if durability of earnings growth comes into focus as we expect.

With respect to data center-related demand specifically, we view recent pressure on data center-levered stocks under our coverage as understandable in light of increasing rhetoric in opposition to unregulated data center proliferation, however we continue to believe that growing demand for compute and seemingly favorable returns on hyperscalers' AI-related investments will result in continued build out of data center capacity. In the near-term, our understanding is that regulatory actions to date such as moratoriums are primarily aimed at new builds (vs. activity already underway), as such and given planning and development lead times, we think most planned '27 data center related activity could be relatively unaffected (with greater certainty on post-'27 data center build out ramifications not likely until post-election). We also recognize the recent "surge" in concern regarding AI "capability" and the potential need for higher guardrails and/or more pacing of AI-related investment. We believe as we've noted before given what we think is still a global "race" for AI "superiority", that we don't see an AI capex pause as likely, but we also acknowledge that there is a higher risk of a more significant slowdown in spend if cumbersome regulations are placed on the industry. Ultimately, we believe spend will continue at a relatively brisk rate and we would use periods of heightened stock volatility to buy our AI capex-focused equipment names. To that end, Citi's most recent forecast for global data center capex reflects an expectation for ~$1.0Trn in global AI capex in '26, increasing to $1.6Trn in '27 and $4.3Trn in '31; with these levels of demand we view a broad-based "hard stop" to data center infrastructure development as unlikely.

Top Picks Into The Fall — Pullbacks we think remain buying opportunities for data center exposed companies in our coverage given a still multi-year investment cycle underway; Multis VRT, ETN, TT and NVT as well as E&Cs PWR and MTZ trade below recent highs and we think have elevated visibility to topline and earnings growth supported by varying degrees of data center or data center-related exposure. Looking beyond the "data center ecosystem", PH and IEX we think combine shorter-cycle exposure with also positive thematics that could support outperformance. Lastly, EMR, CARR, and DOV we think represent good value in the current environment with EMR poised for accelerating growth with both shorter-cycle and longer-cycle tailwinds; CARR representing compelling risk/reward given bottoming resi demand, significant CHVAC growth opportunities and potentially improving European growth/profitability in '27 and beyond; and DOV representing good risk/reward given steady MSD growth potential, continued margin expansion opportunity and ongoing capital allocation optionality.

Amongst Multis, we view VRT as most positively leveraged to data center investment. Given our positive outlook for data center spend, we think VRT's leading position as a data center infrastructure equipment supplier positions the company well for strong multi-year DD topline and earnings growth. 2Q26 execution "hiccup" that resulted in some push out of revenue from the quarter we think is likely correctable over the coming quarters given what we view as a good track record of execution under current management and we think the company's capital allocation including the recently announced acquisition of in Group continues to broaden VRT's capabilities in its core end markets, which could be additive to VRT's growth potential over time. Likewise for ETN, with data center related demand driving orders strength and elevated backlog across the company's Electrical business (both Electrical Americas and Electrical Global), we see elevated visibility to demand; ongoing Aerospace related demand strength also remains a positive. We're also encouraged by seemingly improving execution as pricing and productivity appear poised to support margin expansion over the coming quarters.

TT we view as a best-in-class HVAC operator whose Commercial HVAC business remains bolstered by broad-based tailwinds including outsized data center-related growth especially in North America. Bottoming resi HVAC + seemingly positive inflection underway in more muted end markets such as Europe Commercial HVAC and Americas Transport should, we think, also bolster growth in '27 and beyond. We do acknowledge some pressure on margins vs. expectations recently but we think margin pressure remains more "timing-related" (timing of incremental investment a big factor) that should improve, and with outsized topline growth still supportive of positive revisions to earnings expectations despite more muted margin performance, we think TT remains well positioned to deliver positive EPS surprises over time.

For NVT, we view a recently announced additional liquid cooling capacity addition as indicative of good visibility to ongoing elevated demand for NVT's portfolio of data center infrastructure products and services that should remain supportive of accelerated topline and earnings growth into '27 and beyond. Our sense is that expectations for NVT continue to drift higher over time, but we view outsized data center-related growth, strong power utilities demand and recently accelerated shorter-cycle industrial growth as likely supportive of positive EPS revisions over time; NVT's recently announced but not yet closed acquisition of Maverick Power we think should also be an incremental tailwind to EPS in '27 and beyond.

PWR remains our only stock under coverage on Citi's Focus List and we continue to see the company as well positioned to deliver sustained solid DD EPS growth, supported by strong demand across power generation, T&D, and data center infrastructure markets, along with continued execution and capital deployment flexibility. As we noted above, we believe that the political rhetoric surrounding data center infrastructure build-out is unlikely to curtail investment/build-out, and while some projects could be delayed, we think PWR's positioning as a comprehensive solutions provider, combined with its unique capabilities (skill/scale) and strong customer relationships with well-established customers/developers, should enable PWR to continue growing its backlog. With the stock down from its recent highs (current relative NTM PE of 1.80x is below its April high of ~2.40x), we think healthy project visibility, a sizable backlog, and differentiated end-to-end solutions should support a multiple re-rating and stock appreciation over time.

Similarly for MTZ, we think recent de-rating creates an attractive entry point, as we believe that despite near-term "hiccups" in the communications end market, longer-term fundamentals/demand drivers remain intact (supported by Fiber To

The Home + Fiber To The Data Center + stimulus funding), which should manifest into healthy bookings/revenue growth over time. Additionally, we view MTZ as well positioned to benefit from broadening exposure to data center infrastructure buildout, especially following the company's Superior acquisition. In addition, MTZ's $21.4bn backlog and the company's exposure to durable investment trends across most of its end markets provide elevated visibility into strong multi-year EPS growth, which we think warrants a premium valuation. With MTZ's current relative NTM P/E valuation multiple of 1.08x below its April high of ~2.0x, we view the recent stock pullback as a buying opportunity.

At PH, we view accelerated orders (+12% on a rolling 12-month basis vs. HSD in FY1Q-3Q26) as supportive of continued organic growth acceleration. Combined with PH's Win Strategy framework supporting robust operational execution (highlighted by PH's recently raised adj. segment op margin target of 30% by FY31), we think PH is well positioned to compound earnings. Additionally, we view recent M&A activity as a strategic and value accretive use of capital (recently completed its Filtration Group acquisition and its announced CIRCOR Commercial and Defense Aerospace acquisition remains pending) as we think the company is well positioned to deliver on its stated synergy targets and drive incremental earnings upside over time (we remind investors that our model currently excludes Filtration Group earnings).

Recent order acceleration and broadening of positive demand trends at IEX we think reflect a combination of improving underlying demand trends across portions of the company's portfolio as well as increasing traction/growth tailwinds from the company's focus on Advantaged Markets (e.g., data centers, semiconductor, space & defense). With Advantaged Markets we think contributing to higher growth and increased visibility (given longer lead times and, in some instances, recurring revenue), we view IEX as in the early stages of a potentially extended revenue up-cycle. Solid operational track record and strong operating leverage we think could contribute to outsized earnings growth into '27 and beyond if healthy topline trends remain ongoing as we expect.

EMR's leverage to both positive secular (i.e., energy infrastructure, power utilities) and cyclical (i.e., short-cycle test & measurement recovery) trends we think remains under-appreciated and supportive of good visibility to accelerating organic revenue growth (non-repeat of FY26 software renewal-related headwind also a positive). Modestly improving order momentum in EMR's FY3Q - underlying orders +7% (vs. +5% in FY2Q) is, we think, a positive indicator of largely favorable demand trends that, coupled with consistent execution/strong operating leverage should, we think be supportive of DD EPS growth potential over the coming years.

With CARR's shares coming under pressure recently (stock down ~24% from its late June high), we think investor concerns relative to a sizeable 2H ramp in commercial HVAC deliveries as well as potential lingering price/cost timing headwinds represent a significant overhang that, in our view, results in favorable risk/reward for longer-term investors. While we would not be surprised by some "friction" as CARR aims to significantly ramp commercial HVAC production in 2H26, recent commercial HVAC bookings strength (2Q global CHVAC orders up ~65%) and seemingly solid or positively inflecting demand trends elsewhere in much of CARR's portfolio we think should result in continued positive topline momentum in 2H26 and '27. Additionally, improving price vs. cost over time and ongoing cost-out efforts in CARR's Climate Solutions Europe business could, we think contribute to a return to op margin expansion in 2H and beyond, supporting good share price appreciation potential as healthy EPS growth increasingly comes into focus.

Finally, DOV's accelerated orders (2Q26 orders +16%; 1.06x book-to-bill) we think support solid organic growth despite "hiccups" within its Climate & Sustainability Technologies segment, which amounted to a 1.0-1.5 point headwind to 2Q26 organic growth but (in our view) should subside over the coming quarters. Additionally, we think DOV's significant capital deployment optionality ($3.1bn dry powder as of 2Q26) remains by investors as we think strategic capital deployment (bolt-on M&A and/or share repurchases, such as DOV's Nov'25 ASR) should be a tailwind to DOV's long-term value/earnings creation.

Valuation & Crowding — Sector average valuation of 1.14x compares to the 10-year average of 1.08x, reflecting what we think are elevated growth expectations in portions of our coverage universe, albeit with relatively good visibility in our view. Separately, we note that Citi's proprietary quant crowding score reflects PNR, VNT, and EMR as least crowded amongst our Buy-Rated stocks.

Where is the Crowd? — Screening our coverage universe from a crowding standpoint (score is run by Citi's Equity Research Quant team) we note that PNR, VNT and EMR screen as our least-crowded Buy-rated stocks.

For PNR and VNT, with both stocks trading at significantly depressed valuation multiples vs. our broader coverage universe, we view expectations as exceedingly low. As such, relatively modest positive incremental developments over the coming quarters (i.e., an end to Pool destocking over the coming quarters for PNR; positively inflecting organic growth/margin for VNT's Mobily Technologies business and less "drag" from Repair Technologies) could result in some positive re-rating over time. For EMR, as noted previously, we view the company's visibility to accelerating topline and EPS growth as still under-appreciated given both positive short-cycle and long-cycle tailwinds and solid operating leverage.

How is the Quant Crowding Composite calculated?

The five metrics below are percentile ranked individually across a broad universe of stocks within each region. These rankings are then equally weighted to create the final Crowding Composite score for each stock. We require at least four of these five metrics to have data in order to calculate the crowding composite score. A higher (lower) composite rank indicates a higher (lower) amount of crowding compared to the rest of the universe.

- 1) Most Crowded Quant Factor – ranking of the most crowded factor based on Citi Quant research.
- 2) Historical Relative Valuation – an equal-weighted composite of historical relative Price to Book and Price to FY1 Earnings. We require 24 months of historical data. A higher valuation score indicates more crowding.
- 3) Short Interest Ratio – historical relative short interest ratio (the amount of short interest as % of available inventory). We require 24 months of historical data. Lower short interest ratio indicates a higher consensus trade.
- 4) Sentiment – an equal weighted composite factor, combining analyst sell side ratings and firm news sentiment. We require at least three analyst recommendations. A higher concentration of buy ratings in combination with a higher degree of positive news sentiment could lead to increased crowding.
- 5) Macro Exposure – macro contribution of individual stock risk based from our Risk Attribute Model (RAM). Higher macro exposures in stocks may lead to consensus positions.

Analysts' compensation is determined by Citi Research management and Citigroup's senior management and is based upon activities and services intended to benefit the investor clients of Citigroup Global Markets Inc. and its affiliates (the "Firm"). Compensation is not linked to specific transactions or recommendations. Like all Firm employees, analysts receive compensation that is impacted by overall Firm profitability which includes investment banking, sales and trading, and principal trading revenues. One factor in equity research analyst compensation is arranging corporate access events between institutional clients and the management teams of covered companies. Typically, company management is more likely to participate when the analyst has a positive view of the company.

For financial instruments recommended in the Product in which the Firm is not a market maker, the Firm is a liquidity provider in such financial instruments (and any underlying instruments) and may act as principal in connection with transactions in such instruments. The Firm is a regular issuer of traded financial instruments linked to securities that may have been recommended in the Product. The Firm regularly trades in the securities of the issuer(s) discussed in the Product. The Firm may engage in securities transactions in a manner inconsistent with the Product and, with respect to securities covered by the Product, will buy or sell from customers on a principal basis.

Unless stated otherwise neither the Research Analyst nor any member of their team has viewed the material operations of the Companies for which an investment view has been provided within the past 12 months.

Guide to Citi Research Fundamental Research Investment Ratings:

Citi Research stock recommendations include an investment rating and an optional risk rating to highlight high risk stocks.

Risk rating takes into account both price volatility and fundamental criteria. Stocks will either have no risk rating or a High risk rating assigned.

Investment Ratings: Citi Research investment ratings are Buy, Neutral and Sell. Our ratings are a function of analyst expectations of expected total return ("ETR") and risk. ETR is the sum of the forecast price appreciation (or depreciation) plus the dividend yield for a stock within the next 12 months. The target price is based on a 12 month time horizon. The Investment rating definitions are: Buy (1) ETR of 15% or more or 25% or more for High risk stocks; and Sell (3) for negative ETR. Any covered stock not assigned a Buy or a Sell is a Neutral (2). For stocks rated Neutral (2), if an analyst believes that there are insufficient valuation drivers and/or investment catalysts to derive a positive or negative investment view, they may elect with the approval of Citi Research management not to assign a target price and, thus, not derive an ETR. Citi Research may suspend its rating and target price and assign "Rating Suspended" status for regulatory and/or internal policy reasons. Citi Research may also suspend its rating and target price and assign "Under Review" status for other exceptional circumstances (e.g. lack of information critical to the analyst's thesis, trading suspension) affecting the company and/or trading in the company's securities. In both such situations, the rating and target price will show as "—" and "—" respectively in the rating history price chart. Prior to 11 April 2022 Citi Research assigned "Under Review" status to both situations and prior to 11 Nov 2020 only in exceptional circumstances. As soon as practically possible, the analyst will publish a note re-establishing a rating and investment thesis. Investment ratings are determined by the ranges described above at the time of initiation of coverage, a change in investment and/or risk rating, or a change in target price (subject to limited management discretion). At times, the expected total returns may fall outside of these ranges because of market price movements and/or other short-term volatility or trading patterns. Such interim deviations will be permitted but will become subject to review by Research Management.

Your decision to buy or sell a security should be based upon your personal investment objectives and should be made only after evaluating the stock's expected performance and risk.

Catalyst Watch/Short Term Views ("STV") Ratings Disclosure:

Catalyst Watch and STV Upside/Downside calls: Citi Research may also include a Catalyst Watch or STV Upside or Downside call to indicate the analyst expects the share price to rise (fall) in absolute terms over a specified period of 30 or 90 days in reaction to one or more specific near-term catalysts or events impacting the company or the market. A Catalyst Watch will be published when Analyst confidence is high that an impact to share price will occur; it will be a STV when confidence level is moderate. A Catalyst Watch or STV Upside/Downside call will automatically expire at the end of the specified 30/90 day period. The Catalyst Watch will also be automatically removed if share price performance (calculated at market close) exceeds 15% against the direction of the call (unless over-ridden by the analyst). The analyst may also remove a Catalyst Watch or STV call prior to the end of the specified period in a published research note. A Catalyst Watch/STV Upside or Downside call may be different from and does not affect a stock's fundamental equity rating, which reflects a longer-term total absolute return expectation. For purposes of FINRA ratings-distribution-disclosure rules, a Catalyst Watch/STV Upside call corresponds to a buy recommendation and a Catalyst Watch/STV Downside call corresponds to a sell recommendation. Any stock not assigned to a Catalyst Watch Upside, Catalyst Watch Downside, STV Upside, or STV Downside call is considered Catalyst Watch/STV No View. For purposes of FINRA ratings distribution-disclosure rules, we correspond Catalyst Watch/STV No View to Hold in our ratings distribution table for our Catalyst Watch/STV Upside/Downside rating system. However, we reiterate that we do not consider No View to be a recommendation. For all Catalyst Watch/STV Upside/Downside calls, risk exists that the catalyst(s) and associated share-price movement will not materialize as expected.

Foreign companies are generally not subject to uniform audit and reporting standards, practices and requirements comparable to those in the U.S. Securities of some foreign companies may be less liquid and their prices more volatile than securities of comparable U.S. companies. Net dividends to ADR investors are estimated, using withholding tax rates conventions, deemed accurate, but investors are urged to consult their tax advisor for exact dividend computations.
