Presenters: We hosted Ted Shafer, Director Investor Relations Americas, at ASML.

Bottom Line: 1) New capacity announcement points to further EUV upside, in our view, supported by strong leading-edge Logic visibility, 2) 12-inch reticles improve High NA economics, while broader adoption timelines remain largely unchanged this decade, 3) ASPs and GMs supported by mix, higher productivity and potential pricing rebalancing, and 4) Match Act remains a potential risk, but various factors suggest limited near-term impact.

Key Takeaways

- New capacity announcement points to further EUV upside, in our view, supported by strong leading-edge Logic visibility: Management stated that the recently announced facility would come online around the 2029–30 timeframe. Further, we note that the site is expected to initially focus on DUV production, which should free up capacity in Veldhoven for EUV tools, and in our view could support EUV output beyond the c.120–130 systems currently under investigation. Additionally, management reiterated that its EUV output is booked through next year, with some visibility already extending into 2028. Furthermore, the company highlighted that its confidence in strong DUV unit growth for the next two years is supported by customer prepayments. More broadly, we believe that the management's commentary suggested strong visibility into future demand trends and customer roadmaps, especially in memory applications where the credibility of a strong demand trajectory is strengthened by customers having multi-year agreements with their customers.
- 12-inch reticles improve High NA economics, while broader adoption timelines remain largely unchanged this decade: Management stated that the cadence of High NA adoption is not expected to change based on the recent industry initiative to develop 12-inch reticles. That said, we note that the Goldman Sachs does and seeks to do business with companies covered in its research reports. As a result, investors should be aware that the firm may have a conflict of interest that could affect the objectivity of this report. Investors should consider this report as only a single factor in making their investment decision. introduction of a larger reticle is viewed more a next-decade technical initiative designed to improve cost of ownership and throughput. In this vein, we believe that for Logic applications the technology should reduce stitching, simplify design and shorten cycle times, while supporting broader throughput improvements (note this will coincide broadly with the separate dynamic of increasing high productivity platform adoption); Memory applications should also benefit. Importantly, management does not expect a near-term GM headwind from the initial ramp of the program and reiterated that higher productivity should ultimately support higher pricing under its value-based pricing model. Separately, we highlight that Intel continues to use ASML's High NA tools on its 18A node in small volumes, while Samsung has guided to 2028 HVM and TSMC has indicated adoption by 2030. Finally, management does not expect an immediate increase in High NA system volume demand versus prior expectations, but Intel's production deployment and broader customer adoption (especially from Memory player using High NA for DRAM applications) should in our view support unit volumes from 2027 onwards.

- ASPs and GMs supported by mix, higher productivity and potential pricing rebalancing: Management reiterated that its pricing strategy remains value-based, with productivity improvements (primarily driven by better throughput) historically translating into higher ASPs while customers also benefit from improved imaging and overlay performance. Importantly, we believe that the company sees scope for a one-time pricing rebalancing on products that deliver unique customer value, potentially supporting an uplift as customers transition to new nodes or products. As such, we believe existing purchase orders for EUV extending into 2028 would remain unaffected (and 2027 will not see an impact due to those orders having been placed), but implicitly a LFL price uplift could benefit the EUV ASP mix in 2028 as new orders are placed with an even greater percent of the mix associated with this trued-up pricing over time thereafter in our view. That said we note that DUV lead times are shorter. Separately, management confirmed that the GM contribution from its 3800E Low NA tool is above the corporate average, while High NA is already profitable on initial shipments. While its High NA 5200 tools currently remain below corporate margins due to low volumes, management expects profitability to improve as tool productivity increases and volumes scale, with margins potentially approaching the corporate average once annual shipments exceed c.20 systems.
- Match Act remains a potential risk, but various factors suggest limited near-term impact: While we take no view on new regulatory restrictions, we believe that were any potential entering of the restrictions into the US law to happen it would likely face a lengthy implementation process before being incorporated into Dutch or Japanese law, suggesting limited impact next year. While the proposed restrictions could ultimately extend to all DUV systems, including immersion, the extent to which such measures are stringently implemented in such countries if at all is unknown. Moreover, ASML believes any additional restrictions would primarily shift manufacturing capacity for the rest of the world outside China rather than materially alter overall tool demand. Separately, we note that ASML's ecosystem comprises of c.5,000 suppliers and reflects more than two decades of immersion development across multiple product generations. As such, we believe that any new entrant trying to replicate a workable immersion platform at scale would likely take many years and still leave domestic alternatives materially behind ASML's technology roadmap.

GS Factor Profile

The Goldman Sachs Factor Profile provides investment context for a stock by comparing key attributes to the market (i.e. our universe of rated stocks) and its sector peers. The four key attributes depicted are: Growth, Financial Returns, Multiple (e.g. valuation) and Integrated (a composite of Growth, Financial Returns and Multiple). Growth, Financial Returns and Multiple are calculated by using normalized ranks for specific metrics for each stock. The normalized ranks for the metrics are then averaged and converted into percentiles for the relevant attribute. The precise calculation of each metric may vary depending on the fiscal year, industry and region, but the standard approach is as follows:

Growth is based on a stock's forward-looking sales growth, EBITDA growth and EPS growth (for financial stocks, only EPS and sales growth), with a higher percentile indicating a higher growth company. Financial Returns is based on a stock's forward-looking ROE, ROCE and CROCI (for financial stocks, only ROE), with a higher percentile indicating a company with higher financial returns. Multiple is based on a stock's forward-looking P/E, P/B, price/dividend (P/D), EV/EBITDA, EV/FCF and EV/Debt Adjusted Cash Flow (DACF) (for financial stocks, only P/E, P/B and P/D), with a higher percentile indicating a stock trading at a higher multiple. The Integrated percentile is calculated as the average of the Growth percentile, Financial Returns percentile and (100% - Multiple percentile).

Financial Returns and Multiple use the Goldman Sachs analyst forecasts at the fiscal year-end at least three quarters in the future. Growth uses inputs for the fiscal year at least seven quarters in the future compared with the year at least three quarters in the future (on a per-share basis for all metrics).

For a more detailed description of how we calculate the GS Factor Profile, please contact your GS representative.

M&A Rank

Across our global coverage, we examine stocks using an M&A framework, considering both qualitative factors and quantitative factors (which may vary across sectors and regions) to incorporate the potential that certain companies could be acquired. We then assign a M&A rank as a means of scoring companies under our rated coverage from 1 to 3, with 1 representing high (30%-50%) probability of the company becoming an acquisition target, 2 representing medium (15%-30%) probability and 3 representing low (0%-15%) probability. For companies ranked 1 or 2, in line with our standard departmental guidelines we incorporate an M&A component into our target price. M&A rank of 3 is considered immaterial and therefore does not factor into our price target, and may or may not be discussed in research.

Ratings, coverage universe and related definitions

Buy (B), Neutral (N), Sell (S) Analysts recommend stocks as Buys or Sells for inclusion on various regional Investment Lists. Being assigned a Buy or Sell on an Investment List is determined by a stock’s total return potential relative to its coverage universe. Any stock not assigned as a Buy or a Sell on an Investment List with an active rating (i.e., a stock that is not Rating Suspended, Not Rated, Early-Stage Biotech, Coverage Suspended or Not Covered), is deemed Neutral. Each region manages Regional Conviction Lists, which are selected from Buy rated stocks on the respective region’s Investment Lists and represent investment recommendations focused on the size of the total return potential and/or the likelihood of the realization of the return across their respective areas of coverage. The addition or removal of stocks from such Conviction Lists are managed by the Investment Review Committee or other designated committee in each respective region and do not represent a change in the analysts’ investment rating for such stocks.

Total return potential represents the upside or downside differential between the current share price and the price target, including all paid or anticipated dividends, expected during the time horizon associated with the price target. Price targets are required for all covered stocks. The total return potential, price target and associated time horizon are stated in each report adding or reiterating an Investment List membership.

Coverage Universe: A list of all stocks in each coverage universe is available by primary analyst, stock and coverage universe at <https://www.gs.com/research/hedge.html>.

policy constraints due to Goldman Sachs' involvement in a transaction, and in certain other circumstances. Early-Stage Biotech (ES). An investment rating and a target price are not assigned pursuant to Goldman Sachs policy when this company has neither a drug, treatment or medical device that has passed a Phase II clinical trial nor a license to distribute a post-Phase II drug, treatment or medical device. Rating Suspended (RS). Goldman Sachs Research has suspended the investment rating and price target for this stock, because there is not a sufficient fundamental basis for determining an investment rating or target price. The previous investment rating and target price, if any, are no longer in effect for this stock and should not be relied upon. Coverage Suspended (CS). Goldman Sachs has suspended coverage of this company. Not Covered (NC). Goldman Sachs does not cover this company.

Investors should review current options and futures disclosure documents which are available from Goldman Sachs sales representatives or at <https://www.theocc.com/about/publications/character-risks.jsp> and https://www.goldmansachs.com/disclosures/cftc_fcm_disclosures. Transaction costs may be significant in option strategies calling for multiple purchase and sales of options such as spreads. Supporting documentation will be supplied upon request.

Differing Levels of Service provided by Global Investment Research: The level and types of services provided to you by Goldman Sachs Global Investment Research may vary as compared to that provided to internal and other external clients of GS, depending on various factors including your individual preferences as to the frequency and manner of receiving communication, your risk profile and investment focus and perspective (e.g., marketwide, sector specific, long term, short term), the size and scope of your overall client relationship with GS, and legal and regulatory constraints. As an example, certain clients may request to receive notifications when research on specific securities is published, and certain clients may request that specific data underlying analysts' fundamental analysis available on our internal client websites be delivered to them electronically through data feeds or otherwise. No change to an analyst's fundamental research views (e.g., ratings, price targets, or material changes to earnings estimates for equity securities), will be communicated to any client prior to inclusion of such information in a research report broadly disseminated through electronic publication to our internal client websites or through other means, as necessary, to all clients who are entitled to receive such reports.

All research reports are disseminated and available to all clients simultaneously through electronic publication to our internal client websites. Not all research content is redistributed to our clients or available to third-party aggregators, nor is Goldman Sachs responsible for the redistribution of our research by third party aggregators. For research, models or other data related to one or more securities, markets or asset classes (including related services) that may be available to you, please contact your GS representative or go to <https://research.gs.com>.

Disclosure information is also available at <https://www.gs.com/research/hedge.html> or from Research Compliance, 200 West Street, New York, NY 10282.
